All-Federal Worker Jury Approved by High Court

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Trial juries in the District can be composed entirely of Federal employes, the Supreme Court said yesterday in a ruling from which four justices vigorously dissented.

By a 5 to 4 vote, the court upheld conviction of Robert Frazier here for violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act, even though the jurors in the case were all Federal employes, and one juror, and the wife of another, worked for the Treasury Department which enforces that law.

The majority held there is no denial of impartial trial by jury because a properly impaneled jury happens to represent one type of people.

But the minority declared that any jury whose members are "in the hire of one of the litigants, lacks something of being an impartial jury."

Court attaches estimate that about 50 per cent of those called for jury service here are Federal workers.

Loyalty Demanded

Pointing out that the Government now demands from its employes "unquestioning ideological loyalty," Justice Jackson said in a dissent in which Justices Frankfurter, Douglas and Murphy joined:

"A Government employe cannot today be disinterested or unconcerned about his appearance of faithful and enthusiastic support for Government departments. . . .

". . . such a jury (of Federal employes) has a one-sided outlook on problems before it and an appearance of Government leverage which is itself a blemish on the name of justice in the District of Columbia."

Furthermore, said the dissenters "overloading" a jury with Government workers here is a basic "defect" of the District jury system whereby Goverr ment employes receive regular pay while on jury service, while others receive "inadequate" jury-duty pay.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Rutledge, noted that the high court has previously upheld constitutionality of a 1935 law here which removed a disqualification against Federal employes serving on District juries.

Said the majority:

"The well-settled rule is that, given a lawfully selected panel, free from any taint of invalid exclusions or procedures . . . no cause for complaint arises merely from the fact that the jury finally chosen happens itself not to be representative of the panel or indeed of the community."

But Justice Jackson said for the minority:

"In Federal courts, over which we have supervisory power, sitting almost within a stone's throw of where we sit, a system is in operation which has produced and is likely again and again to produce what disinterested persons are likely to regard as a packed jury.

". . . I would reverse this rather insignificant conviction and end this system before it builds up into a scandalous necessity for reversal of some really significant conviction."

In the disputed case, Frazier, now at liberty on $3000 bond, was convicted on Oct. 10, 1946 in District Court of having in his possession a quantity of morphine sulphate, which was marked "For Army Use" and did not bear tax stamps. He was sentenced to 20 months to five years imprisonment, and fined $2000.

His attorney, M. Edward Buckley, jr., said yesterday he was "startled and disappointed" by the high court's verdict, and will immediately file a motion for a rehearing. Buckley said Frazier served about 15 months of his sentence before being freed on bond. He

White House To Pass On ECA Jobs

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

All new appointments in the Economic Cooperation Administration over the $7500-a-year level will have to be "cleared" at the White House from now on.

This decision, taken at a private White House meeting on the evening of December 13, was communicated informally to ECA officials last week and may be discussed today when Administrator Paul Hoffman reports to President Truman.

Hoffman returned to Washington yesterday after a 16-day round-the-world tour that took him to Great Britain, China, Korea and Japan.

Until now ECA has gone its own way in appointments. President Truman has been scrupulous to keep politics out of it—so scrupulous, in fact, that the high command of ECA is heavily Republican.

What the President wants now, an informed source explained yesterday, is to be able to veto occasional appointments before they are made, and also to suggest the names of qualified Democrats for Hoffman to consider.

If this is all the President wants, Hoffman is expected to comply cheerfully with the White House decision. As it is today, leading ECA officials are almost total strangers to the man in the White House who is ultimately responsible for their actions.

If, however, the President or the White House staff insist on forcing unqualified politicians on ECA, Hoffman has told friends repeatedly he would resign and go off to his pleasant home in the sunshine of Pasadena.

Officials who think they know the President's mind are confident he does not want to make ECA a field for patronage, in spite of insistent pressure from Democratic Senators and Congressmen and from party wheel-horses in other Government agencies.

He has said he wants Hoffman, a Republican, to stay on the job, and has not given the slightest indication that he wants a shakeup in the leading ECA posts at home or abroad.

The temptation to use ECA for patronage is all the greater because it has a higher proportion of high-salaried posts than any other Government agency. Congress allowed ECA to pay 25 of its officials up to $15,000 a year, in the hope of attracting outsiders of high caliber into the Government.

Earlier this month ECA announced that 13 of its officials were getting $15,000 a year, not counting Deputy Administrator Howard Bruce with $17,500, Administrator Hoffman with $20,000 and Special

Hoffman Sees Korea As Democratic Bastion

By The Associated Press

America's foreign aid chief, Paul G. Hoffman, declared last night that the new Republic of Korea may well become the "bastion of democracy" in the Far East.

The Economic Cooperation Administrator, back from a 16-day flying inspection of recovery programs in Europe and Asia, said ECA hopes to take over Korea's economic aid program from the Army "shortly after January 1."

Laurence Duggan, Once Aide In the State Department, Was Accused In Inquiry

New York, Dec. 21 (Tuesday) (NYHT).—Lawrence Duggan, 43, director of the Institute of International Education, and former State Department official, fell or jumped to his death at 7 o'clock last night from his office on the 16th floor of 2 West Forty-sixth st.

Five hours later it was disclosed in Washington that his name had figured in the testimony of the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers spy investigation before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

His was the second death plunge of figures in the investigation. W. Marvin Smith, a Justice Department attorney, died in a fall last October 20.

Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. D.), who is the acting chairman of the house committee, said Duggan's name was brought into the inquiry December 8 by Isaac Don Levine, editor of the anti-Communist publication Plain Talk. The committee was in executive session at the time, and the testimony relating to Duggan was not made public.

According to members of the committee, Levine said that Duggan was one of six State Department officials whom Chambers had accused in Levine's presence at the home of Adolf A. Berle jr., former Assistant Secretary of State, in 1939. Levine said that Chambers had told Berle that the six had passed along confidential information.

Police said Duggen was alone in the office at the time of the fall.

U. S. Blames Dutch in U. N. Move To End War

Paris, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The United States moved energetically toward ending the Dutch-Indonesian war today and to, the surprise of some delegates, took a tough attitude toward the Netherlands.

Informed sources said the United States clearly considers the Dutch government the aggressor.

Robert Pell, American delegation press officer, said the United States is writing for Security Council consideration a resolution which would order a cease fire and withdrawal. In event of refusal, the situation would be branded a threat to the peace.

Today's emergency Council meeting, called at the behest of United States Delegate Dr. Philip Jessup, lasted only an hour. The Council was not able to adopt an agenda because of the absence of the Russian delegate, Jacob Malik, in Berlin.

Jessup even offered to fly Malik out of Berlin in an Allied air lift plane, an American spokesman said.

At the personal request of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, the Council agreed to delay consideration of the case until Malik arrives Wednesday. Molotov's telegram came dramatically a few minutes past meeting time as the other delegates sat idly waiting for the Russian. The Ukrainian representative also was absent.

Jessup, who flew in from Nice, where he has been resting from a series of colds and penicillin treatments, at first pressed for another session Tuesday. He asked Council President Ferdinand Van Langenhove to: (1) make an "urgent plea" to Malik to get here Tuesday, and (2) remind the Russians that delegates are supposed to be on call for emergency sessions.

When Langenhove refused, Jessup modified his demands and asked that Malik be requested to get back Wednesday morning. Langenhove agreed.

The American resolution is not yet in final form, reliable sources said. The State Department has not yet approved it and the Americans have just begun to sound out other delegates for support. It may possibly be softened before it is presented.

The resolution in rough outline would say the Netherlands has not kept faith with the U. N. Good Offices Commission, which has been trying to settle the conflict. It would call for withdrawal to positions held before the Saturday

Dutch Are Unchecked In Indonesia Drive

Batavia, Java., Dec. 20 (AP).—Dutch troops raced unchecked through Java and Sumatra today, threatening the remaining important centers of the young Indonesian Republic.

A Netherlands communique said Dutch marines were on the outskirts of Tjepoe, the Republican army's only oil center on Java. Other Netherlands forces, in a lightning thrust through western Sumatra, were within 40 miles of Bukittinggi, the main Republican city on that island.

This was the second day of what the Dutch refer to as their "police action" into Republican territory. Well ahead of their time table, the Dutch troops have made it almost a bloodless occupation thus far.

They already have occupied large chunks of Republican territory. Jogjakarta, the republic's capital, fell in the first hours of the fighting and the Dutch now are moving through Republican territory immediately west of the city. Virtually all the high Republican leaders, including President Soekarno, are in Netherlands custody.

(Dutch Premier William Drees said at The Hague that developments in the Indonesian republic had brought the Netherlands government to the point where it felt obliged "to end the valueless truce" signed aboard the U.S.S. Renville and to act with all means at its disposal.)

The Dutch drive on Tjepoe apparently originated at Toeban, on Java's north coast. A column of Dutch marines landed at Toeban at midnight Saturday under the protection of Dutch navy units.

Tjepoe is 32 miles southwest of Toeban, but the roundabout mountain road connecting the two cities is approximately 50 miles long. That route passes through Bodjonegoro.

Supreme Court Won't Review Jap Appeals

The Supreme Court yesterday ruled that it has no power to review the action of the International Military Tribunal which sentenced seven Japanese leaders to hang for war crimes and imprisoned 18 others.

In Tokyo, a press spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur said this clears the way for execution of wartime Premier Hideki Tojo and the six scheduled to die with him, but that execution will await formal notice of the Supreme Court's action. This could come at any time.

General MacArthur previously had announced that the sentence would be delayed until the Supreme Court ruled on its power to interfere with the convictions authorized by the Far East tribunal.

All Cases Affected

While the Supreme Court ruled on only 11 appeals made to it, the decision affects all those convicted.

By a 6-to-1 vote, the Supreme Court declared in a brief unsigned petition that neither it nor any United States court has power to review the tribunal's action.

The opinion was concurred in by Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Frankfurter, Reed, Black, Douglas and Burton. Justice Douglas said he would give his reasons for his agreement in a later and apparently more extensive opinion.

Justice Murphy said he dissents. Justice Rutledge said he was reserving his decision and the announcement of his vote until a later time. This could change the vote to either 6 to 2 or 7 to 1.

Jackson Doesn't Vote

Justice Jackson, who was prosecutor at the Nuernberg war crimes trial, took no part in the final decision. Before the Japanese case was heard he announced in an unprecedented statement that he was breaking a 4-to-4 tie vote so the court could hear the Japanese claims and avoid the cloud of a tie vote as a final decision. At that time he expressed the hope his vote would not be needed in the ultimate ruling.

Justices Black, Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge, in that 4-to-4 tie, had voted for a hearing which was

Probe Group May Revise Its Procedure

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A code of fair procedure governing future hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee—correcting many of the practices for which the group has been criticized—may be recommended in the committee session's end report.

This was indicated last night as two leading Republican members—Acting Chairman Karl E. Mundt (S. Dak.) and Representative Richard M. Nixon (Calif.)—told newsmen they will support such a code.

They said they hoped to include in it some of the "better practices" of the committee in recent weeks.

Hearings to Be Closed

The House spy-hunting unit meanwhile virtually closed down public hearings for the balance of this session by yielding to a Justice Department request that they not question five witnesses who may be needed in the perjury prosecution of Alger Hiss, former State Department official.

With Justice Department consent, the committee ordered closed door questioning on Wednesday, however, of former Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayer, who was Hiss' superior at the time former Red runner Whittaker Chambers alleges the "Pumpkin Papers" were stolen, and Anna Belle Newcomb, Sayre's secretary.

Likewise with Justice Department clearance the committee decided to call in for further questioning Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, who like Chambers confessed she was the courier for a prewar Red spy ring.

Compromise Arranged

In the case of two other witnesses wanted by the committee, Justice Department officials, who have been in a dingdong battle with the House group over witness priorities and handling of evidence, agreed to "interviews" by individual committee members, provided no public record is kept.

The amicable arrangement, limiting the committee's hearing scope in the final two weeks before Democrats take over control of the new

Billion-Bushel Wheat Crop Is Indicated

This Year's Acreage Largest Ever Sown To Winter Variety

Another billion bushel wheat crop appears possible next year, the Government Crop Reporting Board, in its first estimate of winter wheat prospects, said yesterday.

The largest area ever planted to winter wheat has been sown this year, the board reported. The acreage, 61,370,000, is 5.5 per cent above the 58,161,000 last year.

The condition of the crop as of December 1, was reported at 82 per cent of normal. A year ago the crop was reported at 76 per cent of normal, and the 10-year average for December 1 is 78 of normal.

Notwithstanding the larger acreage and better condition, the board estimated the yield will be about 25 million bushels below this year's 990 million, with the average per acre set at 15.7 bushels, against 17 this year.

This harvest added to a spring wheat crop of average for the last five years would bring a harvest of about 1259 million bushels—the third largest in history. This could easily create a wheat surplus unless exports are maintained at record levels.

GE and GMC Hold Margin Insufficient To Provide 'Cushion'

By The Associated Press

Spokesmen for the General Motors Corp. and the General Electric Co. said yesterday their post-war profits have not kept pace with their volume of business or payrolls.

They testified before a congressional Economic Subcommittee which is studying corporate profits.

Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric, said that the firm's profits are lower than they should be to "cushion" the company against a market drop.

M. E. Coyle, executive vice president of General Motors, said the corporation's dividends this year will be 10 per cent below the 1936-1941 average, as compared with a 56 per cent jump in employment, a 180 per cent gain in payrolls and a 180 per cent increase in dollar sales.

Coyle contended automobiles are now a better buy than ever before in history.

American production, national income and profits surged to historic new crests in 1948, the Commerce Department reported last night.

The national income for 1948 was estimated at 224 billion dollars. It was still going up in the July-September quarter, when it reached an annual rate of $227,300,000,000, the report disclosed.

Corporation profits after taxes also set a new record. The rate reached $21,700,000,000 a year in

Upshaw, Freed by High Court, Arrested in Housebreaking

Andrew J. Upshaw, freed last week when the Supreme Court found his confession of grand larceny had been obtained by an illegal weekend detention, faced Municipal Court yesterday on a new charge—after another weekend detention by police.

Yesterday's case, however, did not involve a confession, according to police.

Upshaw, 36, of 1533 8th st. nw., was held yesterday for action of the grand jury, under $5000 bond, on a charge of housebreaking, involving disappearance from a warehouse of $337 worth of small oil heaters.

He was arrested at about 11:30 p. m., Friday; booked at the Second Precinct station house for investigation at 12:10 a. m., Saturday; charged with housebreaking at 6 p. m., police records and statements indicated. He was arraigned in Municipal Court Monday at 10:30 a. m., 59 hours after arrest. Court hours Saturday were 9:30 a. m. to noon.

One week ago the Supreme Court reversed a grand larceny conviction of Upshaw because the confession which convicted him had been obtained after he had been in police custody more than 30 hours—which the high court held was an illegal detention.

Upshaw was convicted of stealing a $135 watch on strength of the confession. The Supreme Court, in reversing the conviction, said, "Holding and questioning people on mere suspicion was in violation of law, and confessions thus obtained are inadmissible under the McNabb rule."

In the McNabb case of 1943, involving three moonshiners convicted of murdering a tax agent, the Supreme Court held:

"An officer making an arrest . . . shall without unnecessary delay take the person arrested before the nearest available" committing magistrate.

Joel D. Blackwell, Upshaw's attorney in the Supreme Court case, said he thought the recent police detention of Upshaw did violate the high court's ruling of a week ago.

Blackwell pointed out that there is no hard and fast law or court ruling as to how long police may legally detain a man before haling him into court on a specific charge.

William S. Thompson, Upshaw's attorney in the current case, did not mention the Supreme Court decision when his client was arraigned yesterday.

However, he later told a re-

Icecap Rescue of 11 U. S. Fliers Delayed 48 Hours by Weather

By the United Press

Bad flying weather has forced postponement for at least 48 hours of further attempts to rescue 11 American fliers marooned on a Greenland icecap, the Air Force said yesterday.

Rescue headquarters at Bluie West One, an Air Force base about 110 miles away, reported the weather outlook is "bad" for the next few days.

Despite the 40-below temperature, the stranded men were reported to be "fairly comfortable" in a house built of ice blocks. The Air Force said they were in good physical condition and that their morale is high. Food, clothing, heaters, a radio and even mail have been dropped by rescue planes.

The wife of one of the stranded men was able to talk to him yesterday by radio telephone from the Bluie West One base. The Air Force declined to identify her.

Two attempts to snatch the men off the ice cap by glider failed when the wheels of the light wooden craft crashed through the ice crust. The wheels were removed for a third attempt so the glider's belly could be used as a skid.

The tow plane managed to snatch the glider Saturday but the line snapped when the craft was 50 feet in the air. None of the men was injured.

Seven of the fliers have been marooned since December 9 when their C-47 cargo plane crash-landed. Two others were aboard a B-17 that cracked up four days later in a rescue attempt. Two more joined them Friday aboard the rescue glider.

Marzani Conviction Is Upheld By 4-4 Tie in Supreme Court

In a 4-to-4 vote, the Supreme Court yesterday upheld the conviction of Carl Aldo Marzani for hiding former Communist affiliations while he was a State Department employe.

Marzani

The 36-year-old former Office of Strategic Services worker was sentenced in District Court here to one to three years in prison.

The United States Court of Appeals later threw out, under the statute of limitations, 9 of 11 original counts charging Marzani with making false statements to the Government about his Communist connections.

The court's decision was announced yesterday in a brief order which said Justice Douglas had not participated in the vote. No reason was given.

Tie votes in the Supreme Court affirm decisions of lower courts. Opinions are not written under such a deadlock.

Marzani's attorney, Allan R. Rosenberg, said yesterday he will file a petition for rehearing. He said it would be "pretty difficult to know how to approach the problem" without knowing how the court voted individually.

Marzani himself, reached at his home in New York, said the decision was "a commentary on the political situation in the United States if an American citizen

Dutch Arrest Old Stuff to Soekarno; Indonesian Head Has Led Stormy Life

Soekarno, President of the Republic of Indonesia, has been in Dutch with the Dutch for at least half of his 48 years. His latest arrest by the Netherlands authorities is an old story, but his being taken into custody by paratroops is admittedly a new twist.

The trouble seems to be that Soekarno, an unusually tall and handsome Javanese, is adept at whipping up public opinion by verbally whipping the Dutch.

The islands of Indonesia—Java, Borneo, Bali, Timor, etc.—are rich in rubber, oil, tin, quinine, copper, pepper, tea. The Dutch have been running these East Indian islands for, loc, these many years, have regarded themselves as model colonizers, and Soekarno as a revolutionist.

First Arrested in 1929

Soekarno was first arrested in 1929, only two years after he had come out of Bandung University with an engineering degree in architecture. Instead of building houses, Soekarno had turned to building up the independence movement, already in ferment.

For the next 12 years, Soekarno languished in prison, or in political exile on Flores isle, until freed by the Indies-conquering Japs. Soekarno played ball with the Jap overlords for the rest of the war, and for his services was presented with a medal by the Mikado in person.

The Dutch and others have since denounced Soekarno as a collaborationist. Soekarno and his supporters insist he was making the most of the opportunity to prepare his people for ultimate independence. However, it is a fact that today—three years after V-J Day—Soekarno is looked upon as a national hero in Indonesia, particularly in his native Java.

Took Republic Leadership

Soekarno assumed leadership over the newly proclaimed Republic of Indonesia on August 17, 1945, two days after Japan's surrender.

Since the birth of the Republic of Indonesia, which claimed about one third of the 72 million population and one fifth of the area of the Dutch East Indies, there's been alternate fighting and negotiating between the Republic and the Netherlands. The Dutch have been pushing a plan for a United States of Indonesia, covering most of the East Indies, which would be tied to the Netherlands under a single monarch.

In his three years as President, Soerkarno not only fought with Dutch (and British) occupation troops, but also had to beat down one major Communist uprising. He himself had Marxist leanings in his early political career, but later turned to militant nationalism.

Master Spellbinder

A master spellbinder, Soerkarno is at his best haranguing a mass meeting. His oratory and platform histrionics can enchant the audience, or bring it to its feet howling "Mereka"—Freedom! At the end of each speech he demands and gets three outbursts of "Merdeka!"

Before the days of the Republic, Soerkano often would quote from the words and writings of the American Revolutionary patriots. "No taxation without representation," he would cry. Later, when he became President, Soerkano promised his people a bright future. "Our ideal is an automobile for everybody," he vowed.

Soerkano, a Moslem, has married twice. He took a second wife when the first failed to bear children. He has a son by the second. Soerkano, who spent so many of his years in prison, loves the luxurious life when he can get it. On his speaking tours around the country, a red carpet is rolled out to greet him on arrival. He is also a patron of the arts.

Among his followers, Soerkano is affectionately called "Mr. Merdeka," that is, "Mr. Freedom." Sometimes he is referred to as Achmid Soerkano. And sometimes he uses his title: Ir Soerkarno, "Ir." is the contraction for "Ingenieur," which is Dutch for engineer. He probably has a surname, but like many Indonesians, rarely makes use of it. Most often he's simply called Soerkarno.

Java Faced Chaos, Says Dutch Leader

The Hague, Dec. 20 (AP).—Premier Willem Drees said today the Netherlands government felt obliged "to end the valuless truce" in Indonesia because of developments in the Indonesian Republic.

He told the Dutch Parliament that Republican troops in non-Republican territory of the East Indian islands were supported by the Republican government in Jogjakarta. The Netherlands government, he contended, was unable to counter this because it was bound by the 11-month-old truce agreement, fostered by the United Nations.

Drees said: "It was proved by overwhelming evidence that the Republican commander in chief, General Soedirman, in secret orders instructed the intensifying of the infiltration of Republican troops into non-Republican territory."

The Premier charged the Republicans were preparing for grand-scale actions by January 1.

Dress said his government faced the choice of either beginning military operations in the islands or of leaving Indonesia to herself. If the latter course had been followed, he said, the result in the long run probably would have been chaos and dictatorship.

outbreak, which, in effect, would mean only a Dutch withdrawal.

If this failed, the United States favored abolition of the commission and classification of the case as a threat to the peace. This would mean that the guilty party would be liable to sanctions.

Late today the Netherlands delegation delivered a memo from its government to Langenhove declaring the Dutch will "continue to follow the course of action" upon which it is now embarked.

Dutch Charge Violence

Herman Van Royen, chief Dutch delegate, said an accompanying letter asserted the Dutch took action "to restore peace and order" after "infiltration by Republican armed forces and acts of violence."

The memo said The Netherlands decision "will not be revoked."

The Indonesian delegation revealed that Merl Cochran, United States member of the Good Offices Commission, cabled the U. N. late last night that "in their repudiation of the Renville agreement (signed aboard the USS Renville) the Netherlands have not fulfilled Article 10 of the peace agreement." The telegram reported also was signed by T. W. Cutts, deputy Australian delegate on the commission.

Deeper in the interior of Java, Dutch forces occupied Toeren, 12 miles southeast of Malang, the communique said.

In Sumatra the Dutch moved southward from their bridgehead at Medan into rich rubber producing country. The former Goodyear Plantation, one of the largest in the world, is in that area.

Dutch units threatening Bukittinggi (also known as Fort De Kock), pushed 10 miles inland from Padang on Sumatra's west coast. They took Solok, 40 miles southeast of Bukittinggi, which has been the Sumatra capital of the Republicans.

Army Transport Due In Shanghai Dec. 27

The State Department said yesterday the Army transport John C. Breckinridge is expected to reach Shanghai December 27 to evacuate Americans wishing to leave China.

Latest reports list 2688 American civilians in the port city and the immediate vicinity. In "critical areas," meaning those overrun or threatened by Communists, there are about 5000 civilians, including those at Shanghai.

The transport, bearing a force of Marines from Tsingtao, is expected to sail around December 30, but officials stressed the date is highly tentative.

U. S. Pressure Asked to Halt Indies 'War'

By Edward E. Bomar
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Indonesian Republic appealed to the United States yesterday to bring pressure on the Dutch to call off their new "police action" military campaign in the East Indies.

A ranking Indonesian representative, D. Soemitro, submitted the plea to Undersecretary of State Lovett amid signs this and several other governments are gravely concerned over the violent turn given the dispute by the Netherlands.

Envoys of Australia and India also conferred with Lovett. What the United States proposes to do about it is scheduled to be submitted Wednesday to the United Nations Security Council. Some American officials fear the Dutch move will weaken efforts to halt communism in East Asia.

Will Fight as Guerillas

Lovett was told by Dr. Soemitro, Indonesian Minister for Trade and Finance, that the native republicans will fight on as guerillas if need be despite the loss of their capital and capture of their government leaders. He said the Dutch military campaign "greatly increased" the danger of communism spreading, but declined to say whether the republicans now will accept support from native Communists.

"This is only the beginning of a whole chain of fateful events," Soemitro declared. "We are prepared to carry on protracted guerilla warfare. Very soon you will see a series of counterattacks on the Dutch from the mountains. Our government will function now that Jogjakarta has been lost, from Boekittinggi, Sumatra, and if that is captured it will move elsewhere."

Steps Requested

Speecifically, Soemitro told newsmen he urged that the United States:

1. Extend political and economic support to the republic. Thus far the United States has been pushing for a settlement through the three-nation U. N. Good Offices Commission, on which the United States is represented by Merle Cochran at Batavia.

2. Take under "serious consideration" the cutting off of "ECA dollars" to the Dutch. The Netherlands is receiving American aid through the Economic Cooperation Administration.

3. Support the Indonesian Republic's efforts to end the two-year Dutch blockade of foreign trade from eras under republican control.

China Premier Puts Out a Peace Feeler

Nanking, Dec. 20 (AP).—Premier Sun Fo organized a new Chinese cabinet tonight with the cryptic announcement, "We have to fight on until we can secure an honorable peace" with the Communists.

This statement, which could be viewed as a feeler toward the Reds, came as the Communists tightened their squeeze on the big northern city of Tientsin and a night battle shaped up near Peiping.

Sun Fo, son of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, "father of the Chinese Republic," was appointed Premier November 26.

After his comment about "an honorable peace," he added:

"I can asure you we will not surrender outright to the Communists."

Such a surrender, he said, would mean "scuttling" the anti-Communist front and "China would become a second Poland or Czechoslovakia—which I am trying to prevent."

Asked if his cabinet might compromise with the Reds, Sun replied, "it takes two sides for compromise."

A reported persisted, asking what his terms for surrender might be. Sun bristled and snapped, "Absolutely no surrender, as some of you have suggested."

Sun said Gen Wu Teh-chen, Secretary-General of the Kuomintang (the Government Party) would be Vice Premier and Foreign Minister. He said the cabinet also would include Chen Li-fu, rightist Kuomintang leader; Chang Chun, former Premier, who has been regarded as a peace advocate; Gen. Chang Chi-chung, northwest commander, also considered a peace man, and Wong Wen-wao, outgoing Premier.

An informed military source said the Communists have raided the Tientsin Airfield and were preventing its use by artillery fire. The airfield is about 7 miles east of Tientsin.

At Peiping

U. S. Military Aides Duck Red Barrage

Peiping, China, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Three United States military attaches hit the dust today when they ran into a Communist artillery barrage as they tried to escape from this beseiged city.

The attaches, stranded here while taking a "last look" at the city, were trying to reach the South air field with four American news correspondents.

All seven sprawled on the ground as Red shells whined overhead. One shell exploded nearby, spraying them with dirt. They were forced back into the city.

The officers were Brig. Gen. Robert H. Soule, of Laramie, Wyo., chief U. S. Military Attache in China; Naval Capt. Samuel Frankel, Washington, D. C., and Air Attache Lieut. Col. A. M. House, Long Beach, Calif.

The correspondents were Frederick Gruin of Time and Life, Henry Lieberman of the New York Times, Harold Milks of the Associated Press and Gerald Nozick of the United Press.

An improvised air strip is being prepared within the city which may give them a last chance to leave by air. It is too short and soft for large planes, however.

Nicaragua Charges Attacks by Planes

Copyright, 1948, N. Y. Herald Tribune

The outbreak of seemingly coincidental revolutions in various parts of Latin America has inspired an exchange of views among some of the Western Hemisphere republics with the aim of exploring ideas on what, if anything, might be done about it.

As understood in diplomatic circles here, this exchange was not initiated by the United States, although this country is concerned about the rash of revolutions such as those reported in Peru, Venezuela and El Salvador.

Moreover, the discussions are classed as preliminary and exploratory, with their outcome depending on the nature of suggestions which they may develop. Obviously, it is pointed out, this diplomatic probing is complicated by a major problem: How far can outsiders properly and effectively go toward telling any nation whether, when or how it may go about changing its government.

Diplomatic quarters here are unwilling so far to predict whether the current exchange may have a bearing eventually on possible change in the inter-American policy embodied in Article 35 of the Bogota Pact, which provides for continuation of diplomatic relations among American republics regardless of governmental changes.

U. S. Discusses Trend With Argentina

Buenos Aires, Dec. 20 (NYHT).—The United States has expressed its concern over the mounting number of revolutions in Latin America in which legally and constitutionally elected governments are overthrown by force, it was learned today.

Managua, Nicaragua, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Costa Rican warplanes today attacked a Nicaraguan frontier post and strafed a launch in Nicaraguan territorial waters, a Nicaraguan official charged.

The official said that a Costa Rican P-38 fighter plane, accompanied by a plane described as "a Douglas transport" machine-gunned the border post of Los Mojones, striking a border marker and an army barrack but causing no announced casualties.

The attack reportedly occurred at 2 p.m. Later the plane reportedly machine-gunned the launch Rita, which was flying the Nicaraguan flag and cruising in this country's coastal waters, the official said.

Shortly before the charges were made, Nicaraguan War Minister Anastasio Somoza had declared that P-38s were being flown into Costa Rica from Cuba.

News of the alleged Costa Rican attack was published as a four-power war investigating commission appointed by the Organization of American States (Pan American Union) arrived to study Costa Rican charges that Nicaraguan National Guardsmen were responsible for the 10-day-old invasion of Costa Rica.

Costa Rica Soldiers Kill Five Ambushers

San Jose, Costa Rica, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The government announced today that its soldiers had driven off a band of ambushers, killing five men in eastern Costa Rica, many miles from the northwestern invasion zone.

An official bulletin said that the clash occurred near Siquirres, about 45 miles east-northeast of here on the rail line linking San Jose and the big eastern port of Limon.

A party of soldiers traveling from Limon to the capital in a motor-driven rail car were ambushed by hidden machine gunners, whose fire damaged the car without injuring any of its occupants, the communique said.

Earlier, the government reported that the invaders had sacked and burned the village of Joquinquil, on the northwest coast of the Bay of Santa Elena, near the occupied town of Puerto Soley.

Reports from Alajuela—a town 15 miles northwest of San Jose—said exiled ex-President Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia had declared in a radio broadcast he would abandon his attempt to regain power in Costa Rica by armed force.

Court Won't Act in Jap Cases

held last Thursday and Friday—to help them decide if the Supreme Court should consider the appeals.

The high court's ruling yesterday was technically on a motion for permission to file writs of habeas corpus for the 11 Japanese who appealed.

They included former Premier Koki Hirota, Gen. Kenji Doihara, whom the Chinese called "The Bird of Evil Omen," Gen. Heitaro Kimura and Lieut. Gen. Akira Muto, all sentenced to hang. Sentences for the others who appealed ranged from seven years' imprisonment to life. Tojo had sought the high court review.

American defense attorneys had contended the Far East tribunal was a "purely national" and illegal tribunal under direction of General MacArthur.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman condemned the "audacity" of the Japanese claims, and said for the Supreme Court to "arrogate" to itself review power over the international tribunal would do major damage to this Nation's foreign affairs.

Declared the high court yesterday:

"We are satisfied that the tribunal sentencing these petitioners is not a tribunal of the United States. The United States and other Allied countries conquered and now occupy and control Japan. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been selected and is acting as the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers. The military tribunal sentencing these petitioners has been set up by General MacArthur as the agent of the Allied Powers.

"Under the foregoing circumstances the courts of the United States have no power or authority to review, to affirm, set aside or annul the judgments and sentences imposed on these petitioners and for this reason the motions for leave to file petitions for writs of habeas corpus are denied."

High Court Upholds Conviction for Bribery

By the United Press

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld, 7 to 2, the conviction of a New York jewelry dealer found guilty of bribing a Federal officer.

It ruled that Solomon Michelson was not given a prejudicial trial because the prosecution disclosed he had been arrested on a stolen goods charge 27 years earlier.

The prosecution made the disclosure in cross-examining character witnesses, who said they had not known of the earlier arrest.

Michelson, who ran a second-hand jewelry store in Manhattan, was found guilty of giving a bribe to a Federal agent investigating his income tax returns. The agent reported the bribery attempt. Other officers were present when it actually was given.

Justice Robert H. Jackson delivered the majority opinion. Justices Frank Murphy and Wiley B. Rutledge dissented.

Japan Told To Cut Jobs In Government

Tokyo, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has ordered the Japanese to reduct sharply the number of government employes, Japanese Diet sources said today.

The reported move was the latest step in a program to balance the budget and increase Japanese government efficiency.

Diet leaders said they planned to introduce a bill authorizing the personnel board to halt further wage increases and dismiss surplus employes by March 31. They said the bill would aim to cut the number of government workers by 30 per cent, or 900,000 of the total of three million.

MacArthur wrote a letter yesterday to Premier Shigeru Yoshida warning that the Japanese faced total collapse if they did not work harder and merit American aid.

Jap Farmers' Organization Recommended

The 11-nation Far Eastern Commission gave formal approval yesterday to formation of unions, cooperatives and other organizations by Japanese farmers.

The commission, which sets basic policies for the occupation of Japan, said it has drawn up a formal statement of principles for such organizations. It was adopted December 9, and has been sent to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The 800-word policy statement says that farmers should be "encouraged" to form organizations for their mutual economic and social benefit, and should have full protection of the occupational authorities and the Japanese government.

The commission advised, however, that its policy should be put into effect gradually.

In outlining rights and privileges for the cooperatives, the commission said they should be organized along democratic lines, and have the power to admit persons who are not genuine farmers.

Italy Labels 24-Hour Red Strike Fizzle

Rome, Dec. 20 (AP).—The government said Italian Communists failed today in their attempt to tie up the nation with a 24-hour strike. Communist labor bosses declared the strike a success.

The strike crippled rail services in the industrialized and leftist north, and at one time early in the day service in and out of Rome was reduced about 80 per cent. But in terms of paralyzing the nation, the walkout was a fizzle, the government said.

Postal, telegraph and other services seemed to be running about as usual, and trains in southern Italy were reported on schedule.

The government gave armed protection to the thousands who disobeyed the strike call of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (CGIL).

No disorders attended the walkout.

The government said large quantities of food spoiled as a result of crippled rail service. Strike sympathizers denied there was spoilage. Government estimates said only 20 per cent of ministry employes missed work.

Elaborate precautions had been taken. In Rome police rode mail trucks and guarded entrances of the Central Post and Telegraph Building.

Many public service employes struck, but returned to work. Most stores in Rome remained open.

Soviet to Resume Aerial Maneuvers

Berlin (Tuesday), Dec. 21 (U.P.)—Russia today accused the Western powers of creating an artificial crisis in Berlin to cloak anti-Soviet alliances which were formed in an effort to eliminate the Soviets from four-power rule over Germany.

The charges were contained in a 3000-word statement issued by the Soviet News Bureau here.

The statement reviewed the occupation of conquered Germany and, point by point, blamed the United States, Great Britain and France for the collapse of the four-power government. It made no mention of the fact that the Russians abruptly withdrew from the Kommandatura last summer with the announcement that it no longer existed.

The Soviet statement made clear that the unification of the American and British zones of Germany seriously upset the Russians. It stressed also the failure of Russia to have a voice in control of the Ruhr.

Meanwhile, Soviet fighter planes took to the vital aerial supply corridors for target practice again yesterday as the Soviet sector German police announced new blockade restrictions on the ground.

Allied officials, however, expressed no alarm at the impending resumption of Soviet air maneuvers.

Holy Road to Bethlehem
A Perilous Mine-Sown Path

Bethlehem, Dec. 20 (AP).—An antitank gun points grimly today at Manger Square, a few yards from where the Prince of Peace was born nearly 2000 years ago.

The five-mile stretch of road from Jerusalem that Joseph and Mary trod to the manger when Christ was born is heavily mined and tank trapped. Almost every foot of this route is uner the guns of Arab and Jewish artillery placed on surrounding hills. The opposing armies, quiet in an uneasy truce, are easily visible from the famed Church of the Nativity.

This is the traditional route the pilgrims follow. For the first time since the days of the Saracens, the pilgrims may find the way blocked this Christmas Eve.

They still hope they can make the pilgrimage. The Arabs have agreed "in principle" to permit pilgrims to pass. The Jewish army said officially the faithful may go through Israeli lines.

Those who do visit Bethlehem will be searched for security reasons.

Under the olive trees where David wandered as a boy, Egyptian, Iraqi and Arab soldiers have pitched tents.

The sight of uniforms in the streets is nothing new. Byzantine emperors, Crusader kings and soldiers of the Greeks, Romans, Persians, Israelites, Philistines, Egyptians, Assyrians, Turks, Saracens and Babylonians all have walked here in the pageant of history.

This is the first time in 30 years that the British have not been here in force.

Navy Reassigns 5 Rear Admirals

By Truman

Myron Taylor Given Medal For Missions

Myron C. Taylor received the Medal of Merit from President Truman yesterday for his missions to the Vatican and his labor-management services while a steel industry executive.

Taylor

Taylor, the President's personal representative to the Pope, was given the medal at a White House ceremoney.

The citation said of the former chairman of United States Steel:

"At a time of bitter industrial strife, with the vision of a statesman, he worked effectively to stabilize labor-management relations and in that sphere of complex and conflicting interests, set a pattern out of which grew a more equitable relationship between employer and employe."

The citation went on to add:

"As a diplomatist, Mr. Taylor has been the personal representative of two Presidents of the United States to His Holiness, the Pope, with the rank of ambassador." In this capacity, the citation continued, Taylor "has labored diligently with men of good will in parallel efforts to promote peace and concord among nations torn asunder by jealousy, hatred and ill will and to ameliorate the misery which inevitably follows in the wake of war."

Austrian Pact Talks Expected

The resumed four-power negotiations for an Austrian treaty are expected to take place in London in January.

The State Department announced yesterday that it would consult the British, French and Soviet governments on the subject of a place and date. This will be the next move following Soviet acceptance of the Austrian government's plea to resume the long-stalemated treaty talks.

Since the negotiations were suspended in London last May, officials here believe the protocol-minded Russians will want to resume them in the same place. The United States would prefer the talks in Washington, but the British and French do not want to spend dollars unnecessarily.

The Navy yesterday shifted assignments of five rear admirals and two captains who will be promoted to rear admiral.

They are:

Rear Admiral C. A. F. Sprague, to command naval air bases, eleventh and twelfth naval districts, San Diego and San Francisco.

Rear Admiral Malcolm F. Schoeffel, to command Carrier Division Six, succeeding Sprague.

Rear Admiral John A. Snackenberg, to Deputy Chief of Bureau of Ordnance, succeeding Schoeffel.

Rear Admiral George C. Dyer, to Office of Chief of Naval Operations.

Rear Admiral Milton E. Miles, to Commander Cruiser Division 10, succeeding Dyer.

Capt. Walter E. Moore, to Chief of Naval Group of U. S. Mission to Greece, succeeding Snackenberg.

Greeks Plan Another Drive on Guerillas

Athens, Greece, Dec. 20 (U.P.)—Gen. Tom Pentzapoulos, commander of 25,000 Greek government troops, announced today he would start soon a mopping up operation against increased guerilla activity in the Peloponessus.

A government communique today reported that heavy Communist forces last night attacked the important western Peloponessus town of Pirgos.

Greek Guerillas Drive 650,000 From Homes

San Francisco, Dec. 20 (AP)—Greek guerillas have driven some 650,000 persons from their homes, Henry F. Grady, U. S. Ambassador to Greece, said today.

Grady told the San Francisco Commonwealth Club about 15,000 children have been orphaned by the fighting in Greece.

The Ambassador estimated approximately 24,000 guerillas are operating in Greece, destroying vital industrial, communication and transport facilities.

Intuition Brought Supersonic Flight

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

"Intuitive research" brought about successful supersonic flight many months ahead of schedule, states the man most responsible.

John Stack, designer of the first plane to fly faster than sound, says that "believing what you couldn't prove and trusting it," paid off by speeding up normal scientific processes. He puts it this way:

"You say to yourself, if these things are true, then this must be true. You haven't an exact answer but you do have an intuitive answer. So if you want to make a big step forward, you take a chance of falling flat on your face and trust your intuition."

The 42-year-old National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics scientist—a Government career man for the past two decades—doesn't look like a man of scence. At least like the general concept of a scientist.

He's a rather handsome fellow whom you'd take for a lawyer, a football coach or even an actor. And he doesn't have a string of degrees behind his name—just a bachelor in science from Massachusetts Institute of Technology 20 years ago.

Yet, in awarding the Collier Trophy last week to Stack, Larry Bell of Bell Aircraft, builder of the X-1, and Capt. Charles Yeager, USAF, its pilot, President Truman called their feat the greatest "epochal achievement in the history of world aviation" since the flight of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk 45 years ago.

Stack surprises an unscientific reporter in another way. Though known as the designer of the first plane to "crack the sound barrier," he says there's no such thing.

"It's a figment of someone's imagination," he declared in an interview. "There were many things we didn't know about flying above the speed of sound, but certainly there never was any 'barrier' or 'wall.'"

The NACA scientist told The Washington Post that "we now know enough to fly above the speed of sound." He emphasized, however, that regular flying "above Mach One" may be some time off because of control and safety problems which must be overcome before an "acceptable airplane" can be built.

Getting the landing speed of such a fast airplane down to safe regions is another major question, he said; for "we're a little ahead of ourselves."

Stack explained that NACA's supersonic flight project "really goes back 20 years." It started, he added, "when the late Dr. George W. Lewis, with his long nose for the future, put in the first NACA high speed wind tunnel.

"About the turn of the decade, a few of us felt we knew enough about the supersonic to go ahead," he continued. "Dr. Lewis got the generals and admirals behind us in 1942 and then we made progress."

"There was real unification on this job. The XS-1 was an Air Force plane, but the Navy had a jet engine we wanted and went along beautifully.

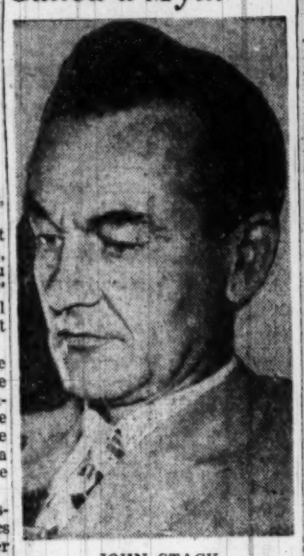
'Sound Barrier' Called a Myth



JOHN STACK
". . . it's just a phrase"

Soviet Claims World's First Piloted Rocket

Berlin, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The world's first piloted supersonic rocket projectile is the spearhead of a new, gigantic Soviet air force, a Russian science magazine claimed today.

The weapon was described by Vokrug Sveta (Around the World) as "a flying arrowhead with a speed far in excess of sound," which is about 700 miles an hour.

On Red air force day, June 25, the Soviet author said, "A huge crowd stood awe-struck by the sight of this extraordinary propellerless machine hurtling past them at colossal speed."

Other new machines being mass-produced in Russia, the magazine said, include a long-range, high-altitude bomber almost identical with the American Superfortress, and the Omega helicopter, said to be able to take off or land on a truck and capable of speeds up to 450 miles an hour—about four times the speed of the conventional helicopter.

The Swiss newspaper Neue Zuercher Zeitung, attributing its information to Swiss and Russian aeronautical engineers, said it was believed Russia has 50 per cent of the world's air power. The paper usually is well informed.

The paper said it understands the Soviet piloted rocket is capable of only 500 miles an hour.

The paper said aircraft production in Russia is believed limited by the country's aluminum shortage.

Plushy Plane To Have First 'VIP' Cargo

By the United Press

Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley, comedian Bob Hope and Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington will fly to Europe Wednesday in the plush new transport plane which both Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and President Truman denied was built for them.

An Air Force spokesman said the flight is conclusive proof that the Air Force intends to use the plane as a part of its special-mission fleet to fly prominent Government officials.

Barkley plans to have Christmas dinner with American airmen supplying food to Berlin in "Operation Vittles" and will attend a meeting of the executive committee of the International Parliamentary Union in Paris, December 28 and 29. Symington has planned for some time to be with the Air Force in Germany on Christmas.

Hope will join a group of entertainers already en route to Germany to give a series of Yuletide shows for American troops.

Sayre to Give Testimony in Spy Case Today

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Francis B. Sayre, former Assistant Secretary of State and now a United Nations delegate, will appear before the spy-hunting Federal grand jury here tomorrow.

Also scheduled to appear before the grand jury tomorrow is his secretary, Miss Anna Belle Newcomb. Both were subpenaed yesterday as they returned from the United Nations General Assembly meeting in Paris.

Sayre is former State Department boss of Alger Hiss, indicted for perjury after he denied giving confidential Government documents to former Communist Agent Whittaker Chambers.

Two witnesses, William Hard Pigman and his brother, George, both former employes of the National Bureau of Standards, testified for more than an hour before the special grand jury today. Chambers, who waited outside the jury room, was not called.

Asked by reporters if he knew Sayre, Chambers replied, "I never laid eyes on him." He said Miss Newcomb's name "means nothing to me."

Last week Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), acting chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said that only four persons had "official access" to State Department documents which Chambers claims were given to him by Hiss a decade ago.

Mundt named the four as Hiss, Sayre and their secretaries.

Sayre, who is president of the U. N. Trusteeship Council, said in a formal statement upon his return here yesterday that he had been absent from this county since August and knew none of the details of the Hiss-Chambers case.

He conferred on U. N. matters at the State Department today.

AEC Clears Graham For Restricted Data

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

"Security clearance" giving him access to "certain restricted data has been granted to Dr. Frank Porter Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, the Atomic Energy Commission said yesterday.

In making its "memorandum of decision" regarding Dr. Graham, a memorandum, necessary because of Dr. Graham's position as president of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Study, the commission said:

"In the course of his vigorous advocacy of the principles in which he believes, Dr. Graham has allied himself, by sponsorship or participation, with large numbers of people and organization all over the country.

"In this way he has been associated at times with individuals or organizations influenced by motives or views of Communist derivation. These associations . . . are all referred to in the security file.

"It does not appear that Dr. Graham ever associated with any such individuals or organizations for improper purposes. On the contrary the specific purposes for which he had these associations were in keeping with American traditions and principles."

The Oak Ridge Institute, for membership on which the clearance was granted, is, according to the AEC, "a nonprofit organization of Southern universities established to assure broad regional participation in the atomic energy educational and training activities centered at Oak Ridge."

"The institute carries on its work," AEC added, "under a cost-reimbursement contract with the Atomic Energy Commission, and much of this work is conducted on a wholly unclassified (or nonsecret) basis.

"However, the president and the board of directors of the institute require occasional access to certain general information of a classified nature if they are to provide effective leadership and guidance in the developments of the institute's programs.

"The five members of the commission have examined with care the security file relating to Dr. Graham. They are fully satisfied that Dr. Graham is a man of upright character and thoroughgoing loyalty to the United States.

"His career as a leading educator and prominent public figure in the South has, it appears, been marked by controversy, engendered in part by his active role in championing freedom of speech and other basic civil or economic rights."

The commission then made a report of its study of Dr. Graham's "associations."

Later it stated that "from the entire record it is clear in Dr. Graham's case that such associations have neither impaired his integrity an and independence, nor aroused in him the slightest sympathy for communism or other antidemocratic or subversive doctrines."

Laurence Duggan Dies In Plunge

ness suit and had one galosh on. The other galosh, with his hat and overcoat, were in the office, the galosh beside the window from which he fell.

The police have listed the death as one caused by a fall or a jump, but found nothing to substantiate the laiter theory.

Duggan's wife, Mrs. Helen Boyd Duggan; three sons, a daughter; his father; brother, Stephen Duggan, jr., and a sister, Mrs. Alfred Weld, survive.

Duggan was graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy and, in 1927, from Harvard University. Two years later he became associated with the Institute of International Education to establish a Latin American division.

He went to the State Department in 1931 and in 1935 was appointed chief of its Latin American division. Secretary Cordell Hull is said to have relied strongly upon his advice. In 1938 Duggan was adviser to the United States delegation at the International Conference of American States at Lima, Peru, and he had a similar post in 1940 at the meeting of American Foreign Ministers in Cuba.

He resigned from his post in the State Department in 1944 and was succeeded by Norman Armour. In July, 1944, he was appointed assistant diplomatic adviser to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Department Attorney Also Died In Plunge

W. Marvin Smith, an attorney for the Justic Department, who notarized a document by which Alger Hiss transferred titled to a Ford, plunged to his death in the Justice Department Building last October 20.

Smith testified before a House Un-American Activities Committee Subcommittee August 24 that he had notarized the document transferring Hiss' car to a motor company. This was one of the bits of evidence by which the committee linked Hiss to Whittaker Chambers. No reason for Smith's plunge has ever been learned.

Court Orders Studio to Put Cole to Work

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (AP).—A Federal judge who called Eric Johnston, head of movie producers, "dogmatic," today ordered one of Hollywood's so-called "unfriendly 10" reinstated in his $1350-a-week job.

Johnston, during trial of writer Lester Cole's suit against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for reinstatement, testified it was on his advice the 10 Hollywood film figures were relieved of their jobs. The 10 had declined to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether they had been Communists.

M-G-M was ordered to pay Cole some $75,000 in back salary since his suspension more than a year ago. His was the first of five Federal Court damage actions. The others have not yet been set for trial.

"Mr. Johnston is dogmatic, a doctrinaire and an absolutist," U. S. District Judge Leon R. Yankwich declared. "He doesn't believe that life is mixed light and shadow, but is black and white. The dogmatic type of mind has long existed in the United States, confined in the past to certain types of clergymen. Mr. Johnston has demonstrated to me that it has reached the sacred precincts of business."

The judge, on the other hand, praised Louis B. Mayer, head of M-G-M, "for the frankness and truthful statements of his testimony . . ."

Cole's counsel, former California Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, argued Cole's actions before the committee did not constitute a violation of the "morals clause" in most Hollywood contracts.

Reds Reportedly Plan To Seize Rule in Chile

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The Polish News Agency PAP reported today that a Communist-led underground is planple's democracy."

Un-American Activities Unit May Revise Its Procedure

Congress, was worked out by Acting Chairman Mundt in a 45-minute conference with Assistant Attorney General Alex Campbell and U. S. District Attorney George Morris Fay.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Mundt and Nixon have held several conferences on a fair procedure code to take the committee off the griddle for many of the practices condemned in the past.

Some of the proposed reforms involve changes already informally put into operation under their leadership, but never formally adopted by the committee.

It is not certain the committee has the votes to officially adopt the changes even now, but Mundt and Nixon are anglin, for them and will move to write them into the final report.

Proposed Changes

Some of their proposed procedural changes:

The purpose of each investigation would be clearly stated and the questions asked would be relevant and germane.

A witness could be represented by counsel at public and closed hearings, and advised as to his rights while testifying.

Every witness would have the opportunity of making an oral or written statement pertinent to the subject at the conclusion of his testimony.

An accurate stenographic record of the hearing would be made available to the witness or his counsel on request.

Cross examination by a witness or witnesses against him would not be permitted but a "compromise" to this approach, permitting accused persons to submit written questions for the committee to ask, would be made part of the code.

The Washington Post editorially and recently the Bill of Rights Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, have advocated these procedural changes and more.

Picture Ban Advocated

For example the committee has been urged to ban photographs, motion pictures, television or radio broadcast of the proceedings, and to provide opportunity for any accused person to cross-examine his accuser directly.

Neither of the latter two reforms will be included in the Mundt-Nixon proposals, it was indicated, for the overriding reason that they would be voted down.

Whatever the committee does on its own to correct alleged procedural "abuses" before it turns over the reins to the Democrats the matter is certain to have a floor airing at the outset of the new session.

A move to abolish the committee altogether, given little chance of success, will be followed by an effort by Representative Chet Holifield (R., Calif.) to get the House to adopt "basic principles of justice" for the group.

Commission Proposed

Meanwhile Representative Nixon disclosed he is considering an individual effort for better correlation of spy-hunting activities on the administrative level.

Nixon said he may introduce legislation to create a joint commission, 'modeled roughly along lines of the commission that broke the Canadian ring, to maintain a constant spy check.

Under Nixon's proposal, still in the formative stage, the commission would not take the place of the Un-American Activities Committee, which would continue its investigations, but would be given the funds, staff and facilities to tab any spies in the executive establishment.

Eight Witnesses Sought

Last night's decision to cut down on further House public hearings in the Chambers case followed submission to Justice Department officials of the names of eight witnesses wanted by the committee.

They were Chambers, Mrs. Alger Hiss, Alger's brother, Donald Hiss; William Ward Pigman, former Bureau of Standards chemist; Henry Julian Wadleigh, former State Department employe; Franklin Victor Reno, Mrs. Hedda Gompers and Miss Bentley.

The Justice Department said all but one, Miss Bentley, were needed in his prosecution of Alger Hiss' perjury indictment.

Chambers has charged that Alger Hiss, Wadleigh and Pigman supplied him with secret Government data for transmission to Russian agents.

Mundt did not specifically identify Reno and Mrs. Gompers other than to say Reno "might be able to shed some light on the Aberdeen Proving Ground situation," and Mrs. Gompers might help the committee throw light on prewar Communist operations here.

Mundt said the Justice Department raised no objections to individual members of the committee questioning Reno and Mrs. Gompers provided what they said is used only for the committee's guidance and not made public.

There was no such restraint on requestioning Miss Bentley, and Mundt said the committee may decide to make her testimony public.

No objection at all was raised by the Justice Department to closed session committee questioning of Sayre and Miss Newcomb Tuesday.

Store Locals Held Red-Dominated

By the United Press

Congressional investigators charged yesterday that Communists have become the "dominant power" in New York City locals of the Department Store and Retail Sales Workers (CIO) and threaten to capture the national union.

A House Labor subcommittee headed by Representative Charles J. Kersten (R., Wisc.) said Communist infiltration of the national union can be halted permanently only if the Federal labor laws are tightened up and CIO leaders do a "thorough job of house cleaning."

The Communists, it said, are on the "verge" of dominating the union nationally although International President Samuel Wolchok himself is a right-wing labor leader.

Recommends Contempt Action

Kersten also disclosed that his subcommittee has recommended contempt charges against 15 officers of the United Electrical Workers (CIO). The Congressmen issued a report Sunday branding the electrical workers union as Communist-controlled.

He said the 15 electrical workers officials had refused to tell the subcommittee whether they are members of the Communist Party. They were listed as:

James J. Matles, Julius Emspak, Russ Nixon, Leo Jandreau, Sam Falcone, Andrew Peterson, William Mastriani, Sidney Friedlander, George Judway, Gordon Belgrade, Roy Lash, Alberta Lenta, Thomas Clifton Cameron, Milo Lathrop and Rudolph Ellis.

The House group's lengthy report on the Department and Retail Store Workers' Union said the methods followed by alleged Communists in the union "were such as to convince us that they were Soviet-inspired."

Steps Urged by Kersten

Kersten also urged:

1. Legislation guarding private plants handling Government contracts against "any breach of security made possibly by the direct or indirect connection of the Communist Party or any other subversive organization with the contracts."

2. That unions be given suitable legal weapons for barring Communists from union office.

3. Changes in the Taft-Hartley law to permit right-wing union leaders to be certified as bargaining agents for their union even though left-wing leaders in the union have refused to sign non-Communist affidavits.

Kersten said there also should be a law to protect union members against "forced subscription" to Communist - dominated publications, and legislation requiring employers as well as unions to file non-Communist affidavits.

In addition, he said, employes should not be allowed to pin the Communist label on proposals advanced by legitimate union leaders to "better the economic and social status of the American worker."

After His 'Suicide'

Chambers Hid Family Of Krivitsky

Whittaker Chambers, top witness in the current Communist spy investigation, declared yesterday he had hidden the widow and son of former Red Army Gen. Walter G. Krivitzky on his Maryland farm for more than a year.

General Krivitzky, former Red spy who turned Stalin-hater and came to this country, was found shot to death in the Bellevue Hotel here on the morning of February 10, 1941.

While his death was officially listed as a suicide by Washington police and Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, Chambers said yesterday he was "convinced" that Krivitzky had been "murdered by Communist agents." There had been a previous attempt on his life, Chambers said.

Wrote About Red Spies

Krivitzky had written magazine articles on Russian espionage and had told the (Dies) Committee on Un-American Activities of Stalin agents in the United States Army and Navy.

Chambers' statements were made in an interview with the Baltimore News-Post, published yesterday. The interview was at his farm, near Westminster, Md., where microfilm evidence of stolen Government documents, hidden in a pumpkin, was recently given by Chambers to investigators of the Un-American Activties Committee.

Chambers said his family and the Krivitskys had become quite friendly because both he and Krivitsky, who had cnanged his name from Samuel Ginsburg in 1919, had broken with the Communists.

"Fearing that Mrs. Krivitsky and her son also had been marked for death by the Red underground in America," he told the News-Post, "I took them in. Her entire family had been wiped out by the Reds in Europe, and she needed someone to help her."

After they spent more than a year on a farm he previously owned and on his present one, without any attempt against them, they left, Chambers added, but would not say where they are living now.

Chambers described Krivitsky as an "old Bolshevik" who joined in the 1917 revolution, became an Army officer in 1920, and later was named head of the Communist underground in western Europe.

After he broke with the Communists, Krivitsky fled to Holland, and decided to come to this country. In Paris, while waiting on a station platform for a boat train to Le Havre, he was fired on by NKVD agents under the eyes of French police, Chambers said Krivitsky told him.

Finally Judged a Suicide

During the police investigation into the Krivitsky shooting, Coroner MacDonald first issued a suicide certificate, then recalled it after acquaintances of Krivitsky said they believed he was assassinated by Russian secret police.

A note to his wife, Tonia, and his son, Alek, then 7, said, "I want to live very badly, but it is impossible."

On October 12, Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, announced, "Now, as before, we are convinced that Krivitsky killed himself," and the case was closed.

Rhinebeck, N. Y., Dec. 20 (U.P.).—William G. Sorrells, 19, Memphis, Tenn., student at Bard College, was in serious condition today after accidentally shooting himself in the abdomen with a .22-caliber rifle.

Storm Leaves 24 Dead in East, Midwest

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—An Arctic-born storm swirled out over the Atlantic today, leaving 24 persons dead and New York City digging out of 19.5 inches of snow.

The United States Weather Bureau forecast a continuation of "pretty much the same December weather." The dead, largely traffic fatalities, were confined principally to the Eastern section. Seven died on icy highways in northern Illinois, five in New York City, five in New Jersey and seven throughout the New England area.

This was the picture by areas:

East—New York's 19.5 inches of snow was the third heaviest in the city's history. The big falls of 1888 and 1947 were the other two larger. Traffic was slowed, some trains were canceled or late, and surface transportation crept along—but officially the word was the city was not paralyzed.

New England was hit by lighter snow ranging from 1 to 8 inches. Between Hartford, Conn., and Philadelphia the range was 10 to 19.50 inches.

Midwest — Snow between one and six inches deep covered much of the Midwest, with a little thawing and some areas of wind. A little more snow was in prospect with colder weather. Heaviest snow on the map was 20 inches at Houghton, Mich.

South — The chilliness reached into Florida spots, with Jacksonville reporting 49, Charleston, S. C. 25, and Memphis, Tenn., 30. By contrast Tampa and Miami reported 82, and skies were generally clear.

West—Snow and wind were reported from Plains States. Gusts in the Dakotas and adjacent States hit 45 miles an hour. Passes through the Cascade mountains were blocked by rain-loosened avalanches of snow.

High winds swept northwestern Colorado and southeastern Wyoming today. Some gusts reached 93 miles an hour. Thousands of dollars in damage was reported.

Eastern and southern Idaho had piled snow which stranded automobiles and public transportation. Several rural schools were closed.

Gulf — Fair and warm was the report.

Destitute Alley Resident Gets Aid After Post Story

Mrs. Mattie G. Colemon, bedridden, destitute resident of an alley slum dwelling at 8 Dingman pl. nw., yesterday was cheered by a donation of food and bedclothing.

As a result of a story outlining conditions on Dingman pl. in Sunday's edition of The Washington Post, a box of canned vegetables and two new sheets, pillow slips and blankets were given Mrs. Colemon by the American Rescue Workers, a nonsectarian, independent charitable agency at 611 6th st. nw.

More Thawing Predicted for Area Today

Metropolitan Washington shed some of its snow yesterday, just enough to clear most highways and mess up chances for some good sledding.

As for today, considerable thawing was looked for by the weatherman with some cloudiness and the mercury climbing to around 45 degrees.

Winter will officially arrive today at 5:34 p. m. (EST), at which moment the sun will cease its southward journey and turn north again. And, also, it will mean the shortest day of the year north of the Equator and the longest day south of the Equator.

But actually, according to the U. S. Naval Observatory, there will be little difference in the length of days at this time. Today will be only three seconds shorter than yesterday, and, in case you're interested in such things, Wednesday will be one second longer than today.

Children's sleds came out in force yesterday afternoon on sections of 31 streets roped off by police from traffic after-school hours. The weatherman said there probably would be enough snow left for a little more sledding today where vehicular traffic had not worn the snow away. There was still, officially, 2.3 inches of snow on the ground near the flagpole circle at National Airport yesterday afternoon out of Sunday's total of 5.4 inches.

The mercury yesterday varied from a low of 31 at 1:30 a. m. to a high of 35 at 1:44 p. m.

All forms of travel returned to near normal after Sunday's tieups and delays. District crews got most crosswalks in busy sections cleaned off early.

Three Persons Injured

Three persons were injured in accidents blamed on the snow. Police issued about 200 tickets to motorists charged with blocking snow removal by illegal parking.

Don Cassity, 22, of 6503 Fairfax dr., Bethesda, suffered a broken back when a school bus carrying 44 children, driven by Ada L. Windsor, 40, of RFD 3, Bethesda, skidded into him at 8:15 a. m. as he stood at Fairfax rd. and Bradley blvd., Bethesda. His condition at Suburban Hospital was described as good.

The following streets were roped off by police for sledding after school hours:

Marzani Conviction Upheld

should get to jail on a 4-4 decision.

"It is also a commentary on civil liberties that the Government should be proud to send someone to jail, since the basis on which indictments were made is so delicately balanced," he added. "I think the Government might exercise some restraint before putting a veteran in the penitentiary."

Marzani, who served in England, Germany and Italy with the OSS, said he was getting his personal affairs in order. He has been free under $2500 bond. He and Mrs. Marzani have two children, aged 5 and 1½.

Rosenberg said the court's mandate would become effective in 25 days.

The two counts on which Marzani was sentenced charged him with concealing Communist ties and denying use of the alias "Tony Whales" during a conversation with a State Department superior in 1946.

His denial allegedly was made during an interview after Marzani had been requested to resign from the State Department for "security reasons."

In another case involving the Communist issue, the Supreme Court yesterday refused for the third time to review the conviction of Leon Josephson, New Jersey attorney and admitted Communist.

He was found guilty of contempt of Congress in refusing to testify before a subcommittee of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Josephson was sentenced in Federal Court in New York City to a year's imprisonment and was fined $1000. He began his term March 18.

Josephson's attorney argued that since the court on November 8 agreed to hear an appeal by Gerhard Eisler, it should hear Josephson's case and order his immediate release on bail.

Eisler was convicted of contempt of Congress after being charged with refusal to testify before the full House Committee on Un-American Activities. He was described by the committee as the "No. 1 Communist" in the United States.

Man Who Shot 2 Held to Be Sane

Herman D. Evins, accused of shooting and seriously wounding his wife and 13-month-old baby last May 12, "is not now insane," Dr. Joseph J. Blalock, superintendent of Southwestern State Hospital in Marion, Va., has informed Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

Dr. Blalock, in a letter to the judge, declared Evins "has shown no evidence of a pschosis or insanity since admission" on October 5.

Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker said yesterday Evins probably would be brought back to Arlington this week preparatory to setting a date for a Circuit Court hearing on his case.

Evins, a 32-year-old veteran and an Army Map Service employe, is charged on two counts of assault with intent to kill. The double shooting occurred after a family argument at 4100 N. 37th st., Arlington, the home of his wife's mother and stepfather.

Tuck Ruling Cited In Appeal for 3 Va. Oystermen

Colonial Beach, Va., Dec. 20 (AP)—Attorneys for three watermen convicted of violating Potomac oyster laws said today a statement by Governor Tuck regarding jurisdiction left the case in a "state of uncertainty."

Attorneys have filed an appeal, and had planned to fight the case to the U. S. Supreme Court, on the claim that a Maryland law providing for the trial of Virginians breaking Potomac oyster laws in the free state was illegal.

Governor Tuck, in a dispatch from Richmond, was quoted as saying that Maryland has "unquestioned" jurisdiction over Virginia watermen breaking Potomac river laws.

Tuck was referring to a case involving three Colonial Beach dredgers convicted by a Leonardtown, Md., trial magistrate. They received fines and the boat of one was confiscated.

5-4 Vote of High Court Upholds All-U. S. Employe Juries

will now be recommitted to prison, unless a further stay is granted on Buckley's motion.

In upholding Frazier's conviction, Justice Rutledge said for the majority that part of the cause of the all-Federal jury in this case was the defense counsel's choice in challenging more prospective jurors who were private employes than he challenger Federal workers.

By ruling such a Federal jury legal, the majority rested its decision in large part on a 1936 decision here, United States vs. Wood, involving a theft from a private corporation and a challenge that three jurors who convicted Wood were Federal employes.

"Weak Crutch," Says Jackson

The Supreme Court, in upholding that conviction, declared all citizens are equally interested in law enforcement, and, "it is difficult to see why a governmental employe, merely by virtue of his employment, is interested in that enforcement either more or less than any good citizen is or should be . . ."

Disagreeing, Justice Jackson said, "The precedent of United States vs. Wood . . . on which the court leans heavily, is a weak crutch," inasmuch as it concerned a private firm, and only 3 of the 12 jurors were Federal employes.

In the Frazier case, he said, "At the same time that it (the Government made its plea to them to convict, it had the upper hand of every one of them in matters such as pay and promotion. . . .

"I do not doubt," said Justice Jackson, "that the Government employes as a class possess a normal independence and fortitude. But we have grounds to assume also that the normal proportion of them are subject to that very human weakness, especially displayed in Washington, which leads men to '. . . crook the pregnant hinges of the knee where thrift may follow fawning.'"

Jackson added:

"The cause of overloading this jury with persons beholden to the Government is no mystery and no accident.

". . . That defect is this: When the panel of jurors was drawn, the court appears to have asked all those who did not wish to serve to step aside, and they were excused from serving.

Cites Dual Standard

"This amiable concession in some jurisdictions might produce no distortion of the composition of the panel; but it is certain to do just that in the District of Columbia because of the dual standard of dubious method of jury compensation.

"The non-Government juror receives $4 per day, which under present conditions is inadequate to be compensatory to nearly every gainfully employed juror.

(Justice Jackson was referring to the $4 rate stated in the 1940 District Code. The present jury rate is $5 a day—Editor's Note.)

"But the Government employe is not paid specially; instead, he is given leave from his Government work with full pay while serving on the jury. The latter class are thus induced to jury service by protection against any financial loss, while the former are subjected to considerable disadvantage."

Importers Group Approves ITO, Urges U. S. to Join

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The National Council of American importers came out today for United States participation in the proposed International Trade Organization.

The controversial Havana charter for the ITO, which is expected to be submitted to Congress early next year, drew the approval of the council's directors after several months' study of its provisions.

"The imperfections of the charter are recognized," the board said, "but we believe that an International Trade Organization, functioning under the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations, is vital to international prosperity and peace. The United States and the world have more to gain than to lose by its acceptance, and it should be put into effect as soon as possible."

Colonel Lindberg a Private

Marinette, Wis., Dec. 20 (AP).—Colonel Lindberg is a private today. Staff Sergt. Harvey Borman says he recruited Colonel Lindberg—that's his name—for a three-year hitch in Japan with the Medical Corps. Private Colonel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lindberg, of Mariette.

2 Policemen Indicted in Store Theft

Two Arlington policemen were indicted by the Arlington grand jury yesterday on charges of breaking into a grocery while on duty.

The policemen are Pvts. Louis L. Liptrap, 24, and Charles H. James, 28. Both pleaded innocent to the formal charge of housebreaking with intent to commit larceny when arraigned in Arlington Circuit Court yesterday. Hearing was set for January 28.

According to Arlington Police Chief Harry Woodyard, the two policemen were caught by Police Sergt. R. S. Cole behind the Acme Supermarket, 4717 Lee Hwy., on November 16 after they had loaded about $25 worth of groceries into their scout car.

Among six other indictments returned by the grand jury yesterday was one against Bennie L. Griffin, 32, of 2120 S. 2d st., Arlington, charged with murder in the death of a 65-year-old man whom police say he struck after an argument over a minor traffic accident.

The victim, Audie Carroll of 829 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, died in Arlington Hospital four days later. Griffin, an auto mechanic, pleaded innocent yesterday.

Arlington police say they have a statement Griffin signed describing how he struck Carroll twice after their cars collided on Wilson Boulevard at N. Fillmore st.

Also indicted yesterday was Paul Z. Brooks, 31, of 422 First st. sw., charged with robbery in the theft of a wallet containing $25 from an Arlington man on November 20 after grabbing the victim about the neck.

Others indicted included: William Glover, 50, of 1007 Fourth st. nw., grand larceny; James Robert Taylor, 29, of 2617 S. Seminary rd., Arlington, attempted housebreaking and entering; Hubert L. Farmer, 29, of 3851 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, and George H. Hughes, 30, of Falls Church, Va., both grand larceny.

All except Hughes pleaded innocent. Hughes was not present yesterday, and his arraignment was set for January 27.

Upshaw Held In New Charge

porter he is exploring the possibility that any evidence secured by police against Upshaw would be inadmissible if it had been obtained during and because of an illegal detention.

At any rate, Thompson said, he plans to file in District Court a motion to quash the arrest on grounds it was illegal. Police Friday night had no reasonable grounds to suspect Upshaw committed any offense, certainly not housebreaking, Thompson said. At most, evidence indicated he might have been suspected of receiving stolen goods.

"Moreover, why didn't police take him before a magistrate Saturday morning with whatever evidence they did get and ask he be held till they completed their investigation?" Thompson queried.

Arrested Without Warrant

Second Precinct police said they arrested Upshaw at his home, without a warrant, after a citizen telephoned that a man was trying to sell stolen property at that address.

Police said Upshaw, at 2:30 or 3 a. m., agreed to point out the alley, in the rear of the 1200 block of 7th st. nw., where he contended he had helped two men remove the stoves, unaware the property was stolen.

The location was near a warehouse of the Walker-Thomas Furniture Co. Police said they could not get identification of the stoves as having been stolen from the warehouse until Saturday afternoon, too late for court.

Upshaw implicated another man, Wallace Brown, 24, of 447 R st. nw., police said. Brown also was held yesterday for housebreaking under $5000 bond.

Two Jailed For Fighting Policemen

Two brothers who kept on fighting policemen long after they should have quit yesterday drew fines and jail sentences when they appeared before Judge Alan Bowie in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

The battlers are William Earl Barden, 26, who was sentenced to 12 months in the House of Correction and fined $50, and his brother, Jesse, who drew six months and $100 fine.

It all started, according to police, with a fracas at Mike Young's tavern on Marlboro Pike near Hillside last Saturday night.

Assault Complaint Lodged

When Upper Marlboro Policemen Charles H. Nalley and Vincent S. Fee arrived, the brawl had ended, but William Dean, 52, Upper Marlboro, complained that he had been assaulted by Jesse.

While police were investigating, it was testified, William let loose with a few choice cuss words.

So police, charging him with disorderly conduct and his brother with assault, put them both in a police car and set out for the office of Justice of the Peace Judson R. Creecy, Suitland, Md.

Fighting Starts Again

As the car drew up in front of Creecy's, William made a break but got tangled in a wire fence.

As the group drove toward the Upper Marlboro Jail, William started kicking at Policeman Nalley, who was riding in the front seat with Free.

While the pacification move was in progress, Nalley's cap was knocked off and as he alighted from the car and stooped to pick it up, William lunged at him. At this point, Free joined in the fray and was followed by Jesse.

When the dust had cleared, both fighters found themselves lodged in jail.

Rape Case Penalty Of Death Affirmed

The conviction of John H. Hall, 34, now awaiting execution for child-rape, was upheld yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals here.

Hall is scheduled to die January 7 for the crime which took place on Kenilworth ter. ne., in October, 1946. His victim was 8 years old.

In upholding the conviction appeals, Judge James M. Proctor commented:

"The rape of a little girl, with all its horrible details—even as recited by the accused—must inevitably be regarded as a sexual crime of fiendish depravity. It would challenge our imagination to suppose that any group of persons, or any jury, with ordinary standards of decency could escape such an impression."

At the time of his trial, Hall was under a 10-to-30-year sentence for another carnal knowledge conviction.

In the present appeal, Hall contended that it inflamed the jury when the prosecutor asked him whether he were a "sex fiend." He also said it was prejudicial to allow into testimony details of the prior sex conviction.

Speaking of the "sex fiend" question, Judge Proctor said:

"The remark of the prosecutor was improper. Cross-examination is no place for argument or vituperation."

But, said the opinion, the trial judge took away any possible harm when he cautioned the jury to disregard the remark. Also, the prior conviction was admissible insofar as it concerned the credibility of Hall's testimony, it was said.

The jury remained calm despite such testimony, Judge Proctor found, as evidenced by the fact that during their deliberations they submitted this question to the judge:

"It is unanimous among the jurors that this man shall never be set free on society. Will he be given a life sentence if found guilty . . ."

When the judge replied that the heaviest prison sentence Hall could get was 1 to 30 years, the just returned with a recommendation of the death penalty.

3 Students Are Held in Home Thefts

Three Bladensburg High School students yesterday were charged with breaking into 15 homes in the Lanham, Md., area and making off with loot valued at $3000.

Seven pistols, jewelry and $300 in cash were stolen in the housebreakings during November 1 to December 2. Two of the teenagers also are accused of stealing an automobile belonging to the Salvatorian Fathers of St. Mary's Catholic Church at Landover and driving it to Florida. The priests will not press charges.

Arrested were: Charles L. Watkins, jr., 18, of 4208 70th ave., Landover Hills; Thomas M. Kleindienst, 18, of 4110 71st ave., Landover Hills, and a 16-year-old boy.

First clew in the series of robberies that had plagued householders in Radiant Valley, Landover Hills, West Lanham, Bellemead, Lanham Park and Lanham was a phone call made to police by the mother of a Bladensburg High School girl.

The woman told authorities that her suspicions had been aroused by an expensive bracelet given her daughter by young Kleindienst.

Detective Richard A. Pearson of the Prince Georges police identified the jewelry as having been stolen.

Additional light was shed when the Kleindienst lad and the 16-year-old boy were reported missing by their parents and police broadcast a lookout for the pair.

In the meantime, on December 7, Kleindienst and the younger lad were picked up by St. Petersburg police as they slept in the parked car.

The boys admitted that the car was stolen, police said, and also revealed they had committed four housebreakings in St. Augustine, Tampa and Orlando.

About two thirds of the loot, including the seven guns, has been recovered, police said. A $125 watch was sold in Sayannah for $5 and the boys spent most of the cash on sumptuous steak dinners and movies in Washington, police said.

Watkins and Kleindienst were released in $200 bond each for appearance in Hyattsville Police Court Monday. The youngest lad will appear in Juvenile Court Thursday.

One of the guns was found in a Landover Hills sewer, another had been sold to a juvenile, another was found in the attic at the Watkins home.

Evidence Found Of Old Australia, New Guinea Bridge

New York, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Further evidence that a land bridge once existed between Australia and New Guinea was discovered by an expedition of the American Museum of Natural History which has just returned from a seven-month field trip to Australia, it was disclosed today.

Leonard J. Brass, expedition leader, said there probably was "two-way traffic" across the bridge for both plants and animals. The expedition found particularly similar vegetation on the Cape York peninsula of northeast Australia and on New Guinea.

One of the specimens brought back was a tree-climbing kangaroo which was shot down from a tree top during the last month of the expedition. Another was a spiny ant eater, a survivor of a type of mammal which was numerous 60 to 70 million years ago.

Cottonwood Town Takes in Christmas

Cottonwood, Ala., Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Cottonwood extended its town limits today to take in Christmas. The city council approved a quarter-mile extension of the limits to include the home of Joe Christmas, jr.

Christmas was elected to the council in September but later moved outside the old limits, making him ineligible to serve. Four of the five qualified voters in the area approved the annexation. The fifth was out of town.

Indictment Found In Shotgun Killing

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Orval N. Jackson, 63, for first-degree murder in the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Mary Jane Frei, 43, last month.

This indictment was among 54 returned in District Court.

Mrs. Frei was found dead of multiple shotgun wounds November 5 at her house, 4609 Polk st. ne., where Jackson also lived.

Jackson told police that after an argument with Mrs. Frei she suddenly "seemed to be in a smoke" and he was impelled to shoot her. Mrs. Frei is divorced, police said, and had been living with Jackson for several months. She had announced her intention to leave him shortly before the slaying, according to police.

Manslaughter Charged

William H. Warren, 44, of 4819 41st st. nw., was charged with manslaughter in the bludgeoning with a baseball bat of Reuben A. Stewart, 52, 4825 41st st. nw. on November 14. The men argued, according to police, over whether a woman should smoke while cooking breakfast.

Willie H. Thomas, 37, of Charlotte, N. C., was charged with manslaughter in the knifing of Zedekiah McCoy, 38, of 1404 C st. ne. Police said the two men quarreled about payment of a 5-cent bet.

A second-hand furniture dealer was accused of receiving $3000 in stolen property. The defendant is John T. McQuaid, operator of McQuaid's Furniture Co., 301 H st. nw. The property involved was $1000 in furniture reported taken from the Mayer Furniture Co., and $2000 in electrical machinery allegedly taken from the Noland Co., Inc.

Impersonation Case

Rudolph A. Hunter, 38, of 1245 Hamlin st. ne., was charged with impersonating a Police Department detective. He flashed a badge and said he was a sergeant, in mulcting $130 from two persons seeking hackers' licenses, according to police.

The alleged victims are Samuel W. McCaulley, 730 13th st. ne., and William Brown, 2321 Lincoln rd. ne. They said that Hunter promised to get them licenses for a stipend.

Charged with keeping 11 half-gallon jugs of bootleg whisky without tax payments was James L. Simms, 602 2nd st. sw.

A 23-year-old former Marine was charged with making a false claim in asking for a duplicate Armed Forces Leave Bond. The defendant, Thomas F. Townes, of Baltimore, according to authorities, said the $109.99 bond was lost when actually it had been given to an acquaintance as security for a loan.

Earl H. Newton, 28, of 943 G st. sw., was charged with taking improper liberties with a 7-year-old girl.

Bus Driver Shot, Killed By Gunman

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 20 (AP).—Ted A. Carrier, a Virginia Transit Co. bus driver, was shot and killed last night when he defied an armed holdup man and attempted to drive away. Five passengers saw the shooting. Today police were looking for suspects.

Witnesses said that when Carrier stopped his bus at Princess Anne rd. and Smith st., the gunman drew a pistol and said "Get out, this is a holdup."

Carrier attempted to speed away, and was shot by the gunman, who then fled. A few minutes earlier police received a tip from two brothers who had just left the bus that they saw two men aboard acting suspiciously, and that they believed a holdup was being planned.

A native of Bluff City, Tenn., Carrier had been a resident of Norfolk for 12 years.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Carrier of Bluff City, and two sons, Ronald E. Carrier and Ted a Carrier, jr.

Md. Bandit Suspect Held In Jail at Harrisonburg

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 20 (AP).—John Edward Webb, jr., 22, wanted by Baltimore authorities, today refused to waive extradition.

He was arraigned on charges of possessing a stolen automobile and being a fugitive from justice. A hearing was scheduled for December 30 and Webb's bond was set at $25,000.

He is wanted in Maryland on charges involving at least 10 armed holdups and theft of two automobiles.

(In Baltimore, Capt. Henry J. Kriss, chief of detectives, went before a grand jury today to present the case against Webb.

(He described Webb's capture as "another good piece of police work. We had splendid cooperation from the police of Catonsville, Ellicott City and the Virginia State Police.")

A 14-State alarm—directed particularly to Virginia—had been broadcast after the fugitive allegedly wrecked and abandoned a car in Maryland Friday night while about 75 police cars combed three counties for him.

Webb denied he was the man who wrecked another stolen car at Grottoes, where his wife lived, yesterday morning. Residents found the car, the property of Robert S. Thomas of Silver Spring, Md., in 7 feet of water in a mill race of the South River. Apparently it had plunged over a 15-foot embankment.

State police theorized Webb abandoned the second car and made his way afoot to his wife's house. Thence the couple hitchhiked to Staunton and boarded a Charlottesville bus.

Baltimore police aired a description of Webb they obtained from undeveloped film in the car he wrecked Friday.

Bay Is Dragged For Body of CPO Drowned Saturday

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 20 (AP).—Naval and civilian authorities are dragging Breton Bay for the body of a young Navy chief petty officer reported drowned Saturday.

The public relations office at Patuxent River Naval Air Station said James F. Burns, 28, of Osceola, Pa., drowned when a rowboat capsized.

A companion, Nicholas Pessas, 27, was able to make his way to the shore, the Navy said.

Self-Defense Claim Made in GI Killing

Marburg, Germany, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Mrs. Wilma Ybarbo told an American military government court today that she killed her GI husband in self-defense after a violent four-day quarrel over their sexual incompatibility.

Before the 23-year-old Malden, Mass., mother testified in her own defense, the court reduced the charges against her from murder to manslaughter, thereby saving her from a possible death penalty if convicted.

She testified that after the shooting on the night of September 20 she brought her husband water to ease his pain and that she saw "he wasn't mad at me any more." Sergt. John Ybarbo of Goliad, Tex., died 11 days later.

Fathered Two Children

Mrs. Ybarbo told of life with her war-decorated husband from the day of her arrival in Germany in December, 1946, until the night she shot him.

She said that the day after she joined him, he told her he had fathered two illegitimate children in Germany. He forced her to hire as a maid a pretty fraulein pregnant with his child, she testified.

With GI wives jamming the courtroom, she related the events which she said led her to to shoot Ybarbo.

Their prolonged quarrel, Mrs. Ybarbo said, was climaxed when the sergeant beat her as she lay almost naked on her bed in their army billet. She fought back, smashing his nose, she said.

When her husband went to the bathroom to wash his nose, he said, Mrs. Ybarbo testified: "When I come back I'm going to blacken both your eyes, break your nose and knock out all your teeth."

"I thought of his remarks that he would kill himself and kill me first," she told the court. "I thought of other fights we had—I couldn't go through that again.

"I got off the bed and reached for the gun . . . and then started walking toward the bathroom. I started to push open the door and he came toward me. I fired the pistol and he screamed. . . .

"He sprang at me and got hold of my hand. The gun went off two more times."

Struggled on Floor

The struggling couple rolled on the floor, her husband yelling for help, she said. Two other soldiers and two German girls who were in other rooms of the Ybarbo apartment rushed into the hall. They went out for help, they said earlier in the trial.

"I held his head," Mrs. Ybarbo said. He asked for a drink of water. I said he could not have any water because I saw he was shot in the stomach . . . then I got him water. I gave it to him in my hands as he lay on the floor. When a neighbor came to help, I got him some blankets.

"I saw he wasn't mad at me any more."

Apartment Owner Gives Yule Party For 350 Children

More than 350 children in the Parkglen Apartments, 824 South Arlington Mill dr., Arlington, Va., attended a Christmas party last night given by the apartments' builder and owner, Jesse Johnson.

The affair, the second annual party given for the children by Johnson, was held in five gaily decorated garages at the apartments. Santa Claus showed up in time to give every child present a Christmas gift.

At 7 o'clock today Johnson will give a party for children of the Parkwood apartments, on the Leesburg pike, which he also owns, and Wednesday at 7 p. m., one for children in the Frederick Courts Apartments, 5050 Columbia pike, a third apartment he owns.

Debtors Face Posting

Nottingham, England, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—The National Union of Small Shopkeepers decided at a meeting yesterday that member shopkeepers should post in their windows a list of credit customers who refuse to pay.

Madrigals, Folk Songs Suit Season

Madrigals and folks songs seem wonderfully suited to the days just before Christmas.

Last night the Madrigal Singers of Washington-Lee High School sang a dozen or more of these. They sweetened the mixture with music by Bach, Vaughan Williams, and other choral masters. The program was given in Phillips Gallery, under their director, Florence Booker.

These youngsters have rare talent in singing. Their sense of music is excellent—they read well, sing with spirit, disciplined in tone, style, and balance. Group enunciation is startlingly clear, and their pleasure in singing well together communicates itself to those who hear them.

Simple but entirely effective devices suffice to give them the pitch from one number to the next, and they have an ingenious way of keeping together. But most of all, they listen to each other. More chorus singers in both large and small groups should do this.

Our country lacks enough good amateur singers. Florence Booker deserves high praise for the numbers of well trained choristers she is giving this admirable experience and leadership. Our Christmases would be better for more of such singing.

Bill to Repeal Lindsay Law Planned in Md.

The Montgomery County delegation to the Maryland Assembly will present and support a bill to repeal the Lindsay law which bars nonpartisan elections of councilmen in counties adopting a charter form of government.

The delegation's position was disclosed last night by State Senator Roy Tasco Davis who said the delegation met recently with charter leaders and pledged its support of the bill if the charter directors wanted.

Davis spoke at a meeting of the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring in the County Liquor Dispensary Building in Silver Spring.

Davis also revealed that the Montgomery County Volunteer Firemen's Association is seeking establishment of special tax areas for maintenance of the 12 volunteer fire units in the county.

Davis said the delegation has proposed that the association draw up a master plan outlining the volunteer companies' jurisdiction.

Davis said the delegation also will support a bill for an elected county school board and legislation for larger grants for new school buildings.

Anders Lofstrand, jr., chairman of the delegation and a member of the legislative council, said the council favors a bill that will return revenue from gasoline taxes to the county on a sales volume basis rather than on mileage figures. He predicted the bill has a "good chance for passage."

Lofstrand predicted defeat of a bill to increase the representation in the State House of Delegates.

The group unanimously opposed any increase, temporary or permanent, in telephone rates charged by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. unless and until such increases are approved by the State Public Service Commission after full hearing and proof concerning both the existence of a financial emergency and justification, if any, of such increased rates.

Falls Church Gets Police Pension Plan

A pension and retirement system to cover Falls Church's 13 policemen was proposed last night to the Falls Church City Council.

Under the suggestion, made by City Attorney LaRue Van Meter, funds for the pension system would be administered by a 5-member board, including the city treasurer, two members elected by the Police Department, and two appointed by the City Council.

The council postponed action on the proposal until Wednesday, pending a survey of costs. A citizen, the council was told, has offered to donate $1000 to start the pension fund.

The council rezoned property owned by William A. Pierce on West Broad near the city limits, from residential to commercial to permit the owner to build five stores and install 12 bowling alleys there.

Council also upped the insurance coverage on its City Hall and Police Station by $32,500; purchased two new police cars; bought a $3051 bookkeeping and billing machine; and agreed to charge off $528 in uncollectible sewer and water bills accumulated over a period of years.

Y. M. C. A. Reelects Frailey President

Membership of the YMCA in annual meeting last night reelected Carson P. Frailey president and heard that Central Y membership has neared the 14,000 mark.

The membership also reelected 6 other officers, reelectd 10 members of the board of directors and enlarged the board by electing 6 additional directors.

Other officers reelected were L. T. Breuninger, first vice president; William S. Culbertson, second vice president; Henry W. Fisher, jr., recording secretary; Lanier P. McLachlen, treasurer, and James C. Wilkes, general counsel.

Egress Rule Repeal Urged

About forty persons last night urged repeal of licensing and egress regulations in the District at a meeting sponsored by the Columbia Improvement Association.

The group adopted a resolution charging "the license and egress regulations govefning housing facilities lately adopted by the District of Columbia are unreasonable, unnecessary, unconstitutional and invalid, are a burden and nuisance to home owners, and should be repealed."

Mrs. Margaret H. Worrell, president of the association, said she would appoint a committee to present the resolution to the Commissioners and District Committees in the Eighty-first Congress.

Objections brought out in a discussion of the laws were directed at license fees for rooming houses, classifications of tenements and restrictions on transoms and latticed screen doors leading into corridors at the Clifton Terrace Apartments, 14th and Clifton sts. nw.

Symphony Board Sets $175,000 Goal

The National Symphony Orchestra's board of directors yesterday agreed on a tentative goal of $175,000 for the coming sustaining fund campaign.

A spokesman emphasized that the figure, $10,000 above the 1948 campaign goal, does not include expenses for a Watergate season.

He said a meeting would "probably" be held today between members of the Board of Trade and Symphony leaders to discuss the possibility of including the projected expenses of a Watergate season in one overall campaign rather than to rely upon underwriting—as was done last season.

Board members estimated that expenses for the winter season would total $395,700 while the earned income would amount to $220,700. They set the tentative campaign goal at the difference.

The last drive brought contributions from more than 8000 individuals and groups, but officials hope to treble the number of contributors in the forthcoming effort. The drive is scheduled to run from February 3 to February 25.

By GOP Group
Taft-Hartley Changes to Be Urged

By The Associated Press

Six "fairly important" changes in the Taft-Hartley law—including broadening of the non-Communist provision to apply to management—will be urged by a Republican-dominated Congressional committee.

Senator Ball (R., Minn.), chairman of the Senate-House "watchdog" committee set up to study the labor law, announced yesterday that the group will recommend a half dozen "substantive" revisions.

At the same time, Ball said "nuts" to the idea of repealing the Taft-Hartley measure and replacing it with the old Wagner Act without any change in the original version.

Shortly after Ball announced plans to file the committee's report December 31, four days before the Democrats take over control of Congress, a Republican member of the study group denounced the document as "obviously partisan."

Three-Hour Meeting

"I am not going along with the report," said Senator Ives (R., N. Y.), "partly because it obviously is a partisan report and partly because I don't quite agree with some of the things in it."

The New Yorker did not go into detail on his objections. He agreed with the committee's recommendation that management representatives in collective bargaining negotiations should be required to sign affidavits stating that they are not Communists. That section of the law now applies only to union officers.

Ball's announcement that the study committee will recommend six "fairly important" changes came after the group had met for three hours behind closed doors.

Other Proposals Listed

He gave only a sketchy report of what the committee has in mind. Another member said some of the amendments, still subject to change, call for:

1. Broadening of the non-Communist affidavit requirement to cover management and to make the term "officer" include members of all policymaking and governing bodies, as well as anyone who exercises administrative, disciplinary or negotiating authority.

2. Elimination of a provision requiring a majority vote to authorize a union shop. The committee finds that in 98 per cent of elections held thus far, a union shop has been authorized. Under such a shop, workers must join a union within 30 days after they are hired.

3. Limitation of the National Relations Board's jurisdiction to exclude local businesses whose operations only remotely affect interstate commerce.

4. Revision of the machinery set up to try to avert "national emergency" strikes.

5. Authorizing the NLRB, in the case of mass and coercive picketing, to require the union to reimburse workers who have been denied access to their jobs. This amendment would amount to a clarification.

Truman Urged Repeal

President Truman campaigned in behalf of a repeal plank in the Democratic platform. Organized labor groups also are demanding repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and reinstatement of the Wagner act.

Ball, defeated in his bid for reelection to the Senate, was asked today what chance the labor groups have of achieving their objective. He replied that the proposal to eliminate the Taft-Hartley law and replace it with old Wagner act "is nuts."

He added that to follow that procedure would result in "complete chaos."

Hartman Quits Post With Sen. Brewster

Douglas W. Hartman announced yesterday his resignation as administrative assistant to Senator Brewster (R., Me.), effective January 1, to enter private law practice.

At the same time Hartman disclosed that he is an active candidate to fill a Republican vacancy on the Federal Trade Commission to be created by the withdrawal of Chairman Robert E. Freer.

Michigan Bar on Barmaids Given Supreme Court 'Setup'

The gentle art of bartending by the gentler sex of Michigan is legally a family affair, the Supreme Court ruled in effect yesterday.

A Michigan law which bars a woman from serving 'em up, unless she is the daughter or wife of the owner, was upheld in a majority (6-3) opinion written by Justice Frankfurter.

The ban, passed by the State Legislature in 1945, applies to cities with more than 50,000 population. It was challenged by a group of barmaids on the ground it violates the guarantee of equal protection under the Constitution.

"The fact that women may now have achieved the virtues that men have long claimed as their prerogatives and now indulge in vices that men have long practiced," wrote Justice Frankfurter, "does not preclude the States from drawing a sharp line between the sexes, certainly in such matters as the regulation of liquor traffic."

He added that Michigan "cannot play favorites among women without rhyme or reason." The State, he wrote, "evidently believes that the oversight assured through ownership of a bar by a barmaid's husband or father minimizes hazards that may confront a barmaid without such protecting oversight."

Consequently, Justice Frankfurter concluded, "we cannot give ear to the suggestion that the real impulse behind this legislation was an unchivalrous desire of male bartenders to try to monopolize the calling."

The minority opinion, written by Justice Rutledge and concurred in by Justices Douglas and Murphy, charged the statute "arbitrarily discriminates between male and female owners of liquor establishments."

"Although a male owner himself is always absent from his bar, he may employ his wife and daughter as barmaids, Rutledge wrote.

"A female owner may neither work as a barmaid herself nor employ her daughter in that position, even if a man is always present in the establishment to keep order."

The statute therefore is a "denial of equal protection," the minority contended.

Ives Says GOP Ignored Popular Demands

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) yesterday blamed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's election defeat in part on "the failure of Republicans in Congress to keep abreast of popular demands."

The New York Republican said GOP "overconfidence" was the biggest single element in the Republican rout but they still might have won had the Eightieth Congress paid more heed to what the people wanted.

Ives mentioned public housing, slum clearance and Federal aid to education as examples of legislation in the public interest that the Eightieth Congress let die.

"There is a crying need for public housing and slum clearance," he said. "The public wanted and still wants something done. And if you are going to get education on the level it should be you have got to have Federal aid."

Sponsored by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), the bills cited by Ives passed the Senate but died in the House. Ives however hit indirectly at an all-conservative leadership slate, reported to be topped by Taft as policy chief, being lined up by some of his colleagues.

"Liberal" Participation Urged

Ives said about a dozen Republicans from the Northeast, West, and Sentral States who class themselves as "liberals" should have a share in GOP policy-making. Opposed to these, he said, is another group of Republicans which "is a little more conservative in its views."

He said he has no personal leadership aspirations, and is keeping out of the early maneuvers, "but when the time comes I expect to state my position clearly."

When Ives said one of the flaws in GOP campaign strategy was the failure to "sell" the Taft-Hartley Act to the public, a reporter asked if his friend, Gov. Dewey had done all he could to "sell" it. Ives said he could not comment "for obvious reasons."

Inventor Agrees to Stop Sale of 'Fedelerizer'

The "Fedelerizer," an electric plug-in device which "mineralizes" common liquids into a "cure" for pernicious anemia, colds and other ailments, will not be sold any more, under an agreement between its inventor and the Postoffice Department.

The inventor is John H. Fedeler, 79, of New York City, who was persuaded yesterday by a department attorney that it would be wiser to end his 30-year business without facing Federal charges. He was not persuaded however, that the "Fedelerizer" doesn't do what he claims for it.

Enough Defense

The Eberstadt committee survey of the armed forces does not attempt to state precisely what is an adequate defense budget. That is properly a political decision, to be reached at a level above the military establishment after evaluation of all the factors in addition to arms that make up national security. But the Eberstadt report does state pretty conclusively—and damningly—that the country is not getting its money's worth for its defense dollars. There is scant comfort in the report for the groups dissatisfied with the 15-billion-dollar ceiling set by the President for the 1950 defense budget.

"The military services," the study observes flatly, "are far too prodigal with Government funds." The sprawling nature of the military establishment makes inevitably for waste, but not the kind of waste that the report describes. For example, the Eberstadt committee found that the Army was unable to account for 9000 tanks; in another place a misplaced figure added some 30 million dollars to budgetary estimates. These and other factors lead to the committee's conclusion that "the costs of the military establishment—currently about 15 billion dollars a year—appear to be unduly high, in terms both of the ability of the economy to sustain them and of the actual return in military strength and effective national security."

How does it happen that expenditures equivalent to $100 annually for every citizen still do not bring effective security? One answer is that military men have been thinking in terms of absolute rather than the relative security which is possible in an unregimented society. The report knocks down the hopes for a lavish increase in defense spending:

> The awful cost of reasonable safety—one to four million dollars for a modern bomber, over $250,000 for a tank, 10 to 150 million dollars for a ship—has put a premium upon military economy. Strategic plans presented to the Munitions Board in the fall of 1947 calling for expenditures of 80 billion dollars, the original supplemental estimates of nine billion dollars last spring and current preliminary budget estimates of the three military departments of over 30 billion dollars indicate a lack of realization of our economic position and capabilities on the part of many highly placed military people.

It is, of course, easier to talk of economy than to effect it. Even the Eberstadt report does not point the way except in general terms. But it seems to us unchallengeable that as long as estimates are drawn up individually by each service apart from its relationship to the whole defense, the accent will be on wasteful competition. This in turn gives rise to the tendency to regard the armed forces as ends in themselves rather than as services to the people. The defense budget must be approached like a jigsaw puzzle. It is imperative to know the over-all mission before the parts can be fitted together intelligently. And the way toward more appreciation of the over-all goal is through more unification from the top down.

Television Everywhere

No one has suggested seriously that it would be a good idea to install television for the diversion of locomotive engineers, but a Connecticut legislator is taking no chances. He plans to introduce a bill at Hartford banning video sets in locomotive cabs or in automobiles where the driver can see them. If this restriction seems farfetched, it is only because such places are among the few spots where the benefits of television are not at least projected. The vogue has seized the country.

When the Federal Communications Commission approves the new high-frequency bands, more channels will be available. So that, with the advent of network video broadcasting and the possibility of stratovision, even the smallest hamlets may soon have a choice of beams. What is in store, then, is a general as well as fundamental revision of American entertainment habits. Surveys already have shown a marked drop in movie attendance. But even at home the outlook is for a reduction in after-dinner reading and conversation, with a possible drop in book selling. While it is possible to do other things while listening to the Hit Parade, as any teen-ager bears witness, television demands full attention.

It is the magnetism of television that places the infant industry under a profound social responsibility. Something will have to be offered to replace the informational and educational activities that are being superseded. At the present rate of growth it may not be long before sets are placed on sightseeing buses to take passengers' minds off the scenery.

Needling The French

The French press has been berating the ECA administrator in Paris, Mr. David Bruce, for a speech he made at Lille reminding the French of the need for fiscal house cleaning. We have now seen a full copy of the speech, and in it no warrant can be found either in word or manner for the attack on Mr. Bruce. Mr. Bruce is under obligation to watch and spur performance in France under the Marshall Plan. He would be derelict in his duty as a gadfly if he viewed with equanimity the fiscal disorder with which M. Queuille is trying to cope. What Mr. Bruce was obviously trying to do was to back Mr. Queuille's efforts.

Mr. Bruce began by explaining what France had received in the first six months of operation of the Marshall Plan. The extent and variety of the aid are impressive. But for American wheat, the bread ration would be only 100 grams a day. Without a long line of raw materials received under Marshall aid, many factories would have to discharge tens of thousands of workers. American cotton, for instance, furnishes 70 per cent of the consumption of northern France's textile mills. After going over these details, Mr. Bruce told his French audience what this aid means in terms of American sacrifice. Some of the goods we are sending abroad are in short supply in the United States, and the American is thus paying for Marshall aid in higher prices for similar goods on sale in the American market. In addition, he has to pay the tax collector for the cost. There follows in the Bruce speech a recognition that this help can be potentized and French obligations of cooperation fulfilled only by French self-help. In this respect, while Mr. Bruce praised accomplishments so far, he reminded the French that "lack of confidence in the franc has prevented up to now the maximum exploitation of American aid." This is the truth expressed without bluntness. Mr. Bruce wound up with a reference to the fact that Congress will soon meet to pass upon the second Marshall appropriation. Only an inference is left to be drawn that performance by the beneficiaries will be the yardstick of congressional action.

The entire speech is a model for ECA diplomacy. It was a happy mixture of delicacy and pointedness, unlike the recent excursion by Mr. Howard Bruce, who used a blunderbuss. Yet the French proceeded to attack Mr. David Bruce for his "intervention." If the critical newspapers had been limited to the Left, there would have been no cause for complaint, but such MRP organs as L'Aube found Mr. Bruce speaking "contrary to the spirit of Marshall's speech at Harvard." Mr. Bruce was told he must not forget he is not at home. The Figaro, which is moderate Right, joined in the umbrageous chorus, and only the Gaullist newspapers took the speech without offense. The general's principal organ said that "the United States is justified in its concern about the quality of our effort in work and in production," a reference which, coupled with the last speech by De Gaulle, may be evidence that the general regrets the slur he indulged in about the Marshall Plan at his last press conference.

Does the general resentment mean that the French don't realize the relation between the Marshall Plan and their standard of living? Mr. Andre Visson, in his Sunday article for this newspaper, says that in this respect French public opinion is ignorant. The French man-in-the-street has an idea that he is doing us a favor in accepting our "surplus," which, occasionally, is called "junk." This notion may betray less ignorance than uneasiness. There is a touchiness about the French nowadays coming from a sense of inadequacy that they are not pulling their weight in reconstruction. Yet they cannot complain that their friends have not been understanding. The times, however, are now so urgent, the stakes so high, that the French need to be reminded of the self-help they have pledged both to the United States and to their continental partners in European recovery. Americans will hope that Mr. David Bruce will keep it up.

New Wine

American correspondents in Tokyo and a good many news editors here at home have been making a good deal of amusement for their readers out of the affair of the unhappy Mr. Sanroku Izumiyami, the Japanese Finance Minister. If we are to take them seriously, Mr. Izumiyami's inebriate and amorous conduct at a recent session of the Japanese Diet toward a lady member has created a national scandal almost great enough to precipitate the downfall of the government of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida.

The incident has been seized upon as an opportunity to give vent to the increasing dissatisfaction with the policies of the American occupation which is ordinarily unable to find expression. There are signs that the Japanese honeymoon with American-style democracy, which followed the surrender and the occupation, has come to an end, and that the more restless minds among the Japanese are casting about for other ideas and are beginning to find those exported from Moscow as attractive as European and American intellectuals found them in the 1930s. The whole Japanese social structure has been reduced to a dangerous state of flux with the legal liquidation of the samurai leadership and the economic liquidation of the property-owning classes. Mr. Burton Crane in a thoughtful dispatch to The New York Times reports that > Books on the American type of democracy are beginning to prove less popular . . . Inflation has virtually eliminated the middle class and changed the type of students attending colleges. Now most are the sons of the newly rich, especially black marketeers. These take little interest in serious questions and leave campus leadership to Communist sympathizers. According to the Supreme Command's educational authorities, there is no doubt that Communist organizations are subsidizing college attendance by leftists. Some register for the sole purpose of agitating and do not bother to attend classes. Most student strikes since have had roots in Communist cells.

General MacArthur's action in taking back some of the controls which had been returned to the Japanese government comes as a recognition of the increasing ferment. It appears that the American authorities in Japan have repeated the mistake which has characterized all the policies of this country since the Spanish-American War in relation to subject foreign peoples. The Japanese like the Hawaiians and Puerto Ricans and, more recently, the Germans, are victims of the well-intentioned effort to make them over in the image of American democracy, without regard for the differences of history, customs and traditions.

Indonesian Trouble

The Netherlands government has always contended that its troubles in Indonesia are domestic matters beyond the jurisdiction of the United Nations. Except on a narrow and highly unreal ground, this contention cannot be supported. The consequences of what happens in the Netherlands East Indies are, as Professor Jessup told the Security Council yesterday, of "very grave concern" to the United States. The same concern must be felt by other nations with colonial interests in Southeast Asia, and most intimately of all by Australia.

"No intervention on the part of international organizations of friendly powers can be of further assistance," the Dutch representative told the Security Council. This is perhaps the most forthright statement so far made by either party to the controversy. Friendly intercession can never be of assistance unless both parties wish it to succeed—and the Dutch clearly want no more of it. No doubt the desire of the Indonesian Republic for a peaceful settlement has been more evident in words than in deeds. But this attempt to kiss the United Nations Good Offices Committee goodby sits as poorly on The Hague as the sudden resumption of "police action" while the Good Offices Committee was still at work.

Two months ago, when the Republican Government was fighting for its life against the Communist uprising centered at Madioen, the Netherlands Embassy here issued a statement on the situation. Some excerpts are worth quoting:

> It is to be hoped that the Republic under President Soekarno and Premier Mohamed Hatta will have sufficient strength to resist the Communist effort to take over completely the Republic . . . The moderate elements in the Republic have always been hampered by the extreme elements which now at last have shown their real purpose . . . This and this alone is the explanation of the lack of progress in the negotiations . . . The efforts of the Netherlands government are aimed at strengthening the hand of genuine nationalist leaders on Java and elsewhere in the archipelago against destructive and disturbing Communist elements who never wanted to come to a peaceful settlement.

Curiously enough, it is these same nationalist leaders, who put down the Communist revolt without help from the Dutch, who are now in custody. Now they are called the extremists who have delayed negotiations. How this strengthens their hand it is difficult to fathom. Soekarno and Hatta may not always have been able to keep their followers strictly in line. The numerous breaches of the truce are evidence enough of that. But the alternative to their leadership in the independence movement is precisely the extremist and Communist leadership they and the Dutch and we ourselves abhor.

The Dutch decision was taken in part on the professed ground of a duty to see that the non-Republican areas of the archipelago get the self-government promised to them. This sounds very appealing. But the fact is that the other parts of the proposed United States of Indonesia have not been very anxious to get out from under the Dutch wing. Contrary to the Republicans, they would doubtless be satisfied with a colonial status. The curious result is that we see the Dutch giving the appearance of suppressing self-government among those who most want it in Indonesia for the ostensible purpose of providing it to those who least want it.

LULLABY

Hush, I will hold you as you cry,
Cradled in comfort in my arm—
Soon will the world be painless, free
Of fright and harm.

Hush, I can feel the pangs you feel
Lashing like waves on a wind-blown sea—
Watch how the whitecap moments calm,
So placidly.

Hush, this is not the wide world's weather,
Child who must cry the clock around—
Soon will this transient storm be stilled
And peace be found.
Hush, all these marks of sorrow scratched,
Marring your jewels, day and night,
Never will scar your later gems
Of pure delight.

Would that this world of pain and hate
Could nestle again at the bosom of earth—
Then would the dreams of man be eased
Through cries at birth.

Health Insurance

Doctors must have read their Journal of the American Medical Association with troubled hearts. AMA members are to be assessed $25 to educate the taxpayer against the unwisdom of President Truman's proposed health insurance program. Ideological war has been declared in the Nation's sickroom.

Only understanding can heal. Without an honest attempt to substitute healing for fighting both sides will be guilty of unpardonable aggression.

Organized medicine has two understandable reasons for mistrusting our President's health insurance proposals. The Department of Justice's revival of medical antitrust prosecutions implies that medical economics is the concern of grand juries and courts. We believe this usurps the law-making prerogatives of Congress.

Congress easily could dissolve all unfair practices and conspiracies in a Federal health insurance program. It could do this by prescribing conforming standards for participating doctors and hospitals. Proven professional incompetence should be the only grounds to refuse hospital privileges to a qualified doctor. We cannot have a national health program if doctors insist upon a veto of prejudice or unfair discrimination.

The second reason for resisting President Truman's previous health program proposals spring from fear of repeating England's mistakes. The doctor is underpaid and cruelly overworked. He is little more than a signer of printed prescriptions, certificates and requisitions. For the disgusted, frustrated patient, the health plan is just another weary, disappointing queue.

The lesson is to limit our national health security program to the urgently needed and the possible. We sorely need low-cost, noncancellable insurance against bankruptcy health risks. We can take care of the little health burdens alone. But we need self-help for the heavy burdens. These are childbearing, catastrophic illness, malignancy and the degenerative diseases of age.

England's health plan failed because its labor government promised more than good will could deliver. There must be a quid pro quo between wage and work. The British government forgot the doctor is only a human worker. It made him the slave of a bungling, bankrupt bureaucracy. This must not happen here.

Italian Colonies

In your issue of December 7, a letter implies that "Italy's contribution to the general welfare of the world" does not merit the return of her colonies.

Viewed in the light of history, the tragic betrayal of her true destiny twice during the last decades can scarcely outweigh Italy's priceless gift to civilization during more than a thousand years in the fields of science, music, sculpture, painting and literature.

Let the world acknowledge its debt to Italy by providing her with the living space she so desperately needs. Many of us have seen and admired the Italian peasant who cultivates all available land, including the narrow stony terraces on their mountain slopes, to gain a scanty living. In spite of hardships they are the most joyous and affectionate people in the world. May those who have visited their beautiful country and who understand their economic difficulties, lack of raw materials, and insufficient agricultural land, come forward now, before it is too late, and assure Italy a living space in the world.

Special Streetcars

Why has the Capital Transit Co., despite increased fares, abandoned the special trolleys to and from Constitution Hall the nights of important concerts?

We residents of the Northwest section now have to crowd out patrons who try to board the only trolleys that stop at the concerts, those going home to the Catholic University or Northeast sections, so that we can reach Pennsylvania ave. at 18th st., where we stand until our No. 30 car comes.

There are special buses for sports events at the Uline ice arena. Why not treat Northwest patrons of musical events—and there are thousands—on an equal basis?

Rent Hardships

It must be conceded that present conditions under rent control are abnormal. Rent control is of undoubted benefit to tenants. However, it results adversely to the interests of owners and even causes hardship in some cases through decrease in income. Thus there is an unbalanced situation which should be remedied.

Would it not be in the interest of all concerned if there could be a gradual increase in rentals, say 5 per cent each year for the next three years, until the 15 per cent increase suggested by some commentators would become effective? In all probability such gradual increases would be acceptable to owners and certainly would not be so hard on tenants as abolition of rent control or an immediate increase of 15 per cent in rentals would be. If such increase in rentals were authorized there should also be some kind of an agreement or obligation requiring that, as rents increased, owners would be required to make some repairs annually and, at the termination of the three-year period, resume paying for all repairs and upkeep that might be needed.

In my opinion the plan proposed, if adopted, would provide for gradual and easy steps toward normalcy and afford considerable relief to the present unsatisfactory condition of rent control.

Segregation In Washington

I am impelled to respond to the published statements of Mr. Clifford Newell, former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, in regard to the segregation in Washington report. I, too, am an old citizen of Washington, having lived here for all of my 35 years. My father lived here from the time of his graduation from Dartmouth College in 1907 until his death in 1941; my mother has lived here since the year of her graduation from Ohio State University in 1908.

Never in my recollection, nor in that of my parents, has there been a time when Washington, by any conceivable stretch of the imagination, could have been regarded as even a potential "Heaven for Negroes." And since this euphuism is applied by Mr. Newell in an attempt to emphasize his conviction of the report's bias in favor of the Negro, I might counter by saying that to the average Negro Washingtonian, the report errs, if at all, on the side of conservatism.

Most of us can, and would be happy to supplement the report's data with valid accounts of personal experiences which, taken collectively and voiced to Mr. Newell, would be more than sufficient to belie the gentleman's position that no Negro has ever indicated to him bad treatment at the hands of white Washingtonians.

As a Negro woman of reasonable alertness, a parent and a teacher, I have had innumerable occasions through the years to learn what to expect in the way of racial insult in Washington, to teach my child what to expect, and to try to provide the young men and women of my classes with some type of protective philosophy as they prepare for a world ostensibly democratic and actually warped and biased in racial attitudes to the point of sociological disease.

As I look back, perhaps my most poignant memory is of the consistent effort of my parents, people of modest means, to get their children "north" on vacations and to New York at regular intervals. They felt that part of their obligation to three Negro children being reared in a Southern town was to expose them as often as possible to the educative and recreational facilities that cities north of Washington offered.

As a parent, I have for nearly 10 years had the difficult and often delicate job of teaching my child loyalty to her country and to her flag. Simultaneously, I have had to teach an understanding tolerance of the local mores that make it necessary for her to pass one school to reach her own, that makes it imperative for her to wait months to see a Margaret O'Brien picture, that make her set her shopping expeditions at times that do not conflict with her normal lunch hour or her period for attending to personal wants—unless I am willing to subject her to a hot dog in a dime store or a mysteriously located lavatory marked "For Colored Women."

I had to defend these same Washington mores to her in words geared to her understanding years ago when, on the Wilson Line wharf, a rosy cheeked boy of college age blandly assured us that "niggers don't ride the boat to Mount Vernon."

As a teacher, I am constantly confronted with the problems of vigorous, intelligent young men and women who are unable with degrees, to secure the jobs readily available to white high school graduates. I meet young people from Northern and Western States who are shocked at the limitations imposed on them in terms of shopping, entertainment, housing and entree to churches.

Mr. Newell, with a condescension characteristic of those who look to "education—and the duration of time" as the factors most conducive to the millennium, has congratulated Negro leaders for "having come as far as they have." The people to be truly congratulated are those Negroes who have had the patience, tolerance and courage through the years to accept economic deprivation, social ignominy and the anomaly of their presence in the Nation's Capital.

Washington Calling

War In Indonesia

THE REALITY behind the black headlines is so hard for us here in the United States to conjure up. It is Christmas here in America. Across the expanse of snow-covered lawn the fir trees are masked in snow. Java is a long way off. Jogjakarta is an impossible name.

White men are at war with brown men in the steaming jungle. That is the significance of the Dutch attack on the Indonesia Republic for western Europe and North America—the two little islands of white peoples in a vast sea of color.

The guns of the Dutch have silenced a debate that has been going on since the end of World War II. They may have ended for a long time the hope of a peaceful conclusion of that debate.

From across the far Pacific you can hear those voices. The Dutchman is the efficient manager and exploiter of Indonesia's rich resources. He built up the profitable structure of processing and trade that existed before the war. He speaks with clear, calm precision, trying to keep out of his voice his irritation with those who do not understand the problem.

The native speaks with quiet intensity. He believes in his heart that he speaks for all the dispossessed and exploited millions of Asia. He is convinced that his is the voice of the future, of freedom and independence.

THE DUTCHMAN: You do not understand in America. When you say Indonesia, you have no picture of what we are faced with. The Malay is indolent. He does not create. In all the time that we have been there, no Malay has ever made a fortune.

The native: Of course not. We have been given no opportunity. We have been held in subjection under the Dutch system of colonial exploitation, and a very efficient system it was.

The Dutchman: Yes, but the Chinese who came to Indonesia have prospered. Many have made fortunes working alongside of us. Let's not talk of the past. Americans do not seem to appreciate that we offered the Republic of Indonesia independence in a federation with The Netherlands. We have been extraordinarily patient in the face of anarchy and chaos.

The native: You expect us to move overnight, in a moment of time, from colonial serfdom—it was almost that—to orderly government. And this after we have suffered the terrors of invasion and occupation by the Japanese.

The Dutchman: The fact remains that your so-called government cannot control the irregulars and the guerillas whose threats and depradations prevent any order in the territory over which the republic assumes jurisdiction. The leaders of these irregulars are, in effect, war lords. We have waited many months through long drawn-out negotiations for some indication that the republic could establish an orderly government.

The native: Your federation is merely a device whereby you can continue the kind of colonial exploitation that enriched the Netherlands before the war. Our toil, our sweat, our resources supplied nearly half of the wealth of Holland and made it possible for you to maintain a high standard of living.

The Dutchman: To begin with, your figures are quite wrong. The contribution of the Indies to our economy was at the most 15 per cent. In Borneo, the Celebes and, in fact, two thirds of Indonesia, the people are willing to accept federation. You threaten their peace as well as the peace of the world.

The native: Even if all that you said were true, which it is not, you cannot conquer us by force. We are millions and you are a few.

The Dutchman: Without us you will lapse into anarchy and barbarism. The trading structure we have built up will disappear. The police action we are taking is more essential for you than it is for us.

SO THE guns roar and the bombs begin to fall. During all the bitter debate, the United States has tried to intervene. But the effort, it seems to me, has been too tentative, too timid, without constructive and positive purpose. This is the more tragic in view of our strong moral position in Asia against the background of having worked with the Filipinos toward their independence.

Our policy has been to restore Holland to strength and prosperity in Europe while preventing the kind of war which has now broken out. Perhaps that was an impossible goal. And in spite of our good intentions, we may end with the ill will of both sides in this momentous struggle.

Key To Ignorance

A lifetime of travel, reading and profound thought is in this Robert Quillen gem. "The more ignorant a man is, the better he is satisfied with himself." With it you can measure the culture of a man. The wise welcome it as a super weapon against ignorance. But in it there is too much truth for it to be funny to a fool.

Israel's Future

By Sumner Welles

Weakness Of U. N. Conciliation Group

NEITHER the United Nations nor Israel was served by the General Assembly's most recent resolution on Palestine.

By this resolution the Assembly created a new conciliation commission, composed of France, Turkey and the United States, and instructed it to bring about "a final settlement" of all of the differences still outstanding, either through mediation between the government of Israel and the governments of the Arab states, or by direct negotiations between the parties to the controversy.

It is true that in the text of this resolution the United Nations has implicitly recognized the government of Israel. It is also true that Israel has obtained the ostensible abandonment of Mr. Bevin's beloved Bernadotte plan.

But Israel has at the same time lost an asset which may prove to have been of far greater value. When the Assembly adopted the present resolution it simultaneously discarded the partition resolution of November 29, 1947. That constituted Israel's basic title to independence. It represented the decision of an overwhelming majority of the nations of the world that Israel should be free. It defined her territorial rights. It proclaimed that Israel should become wholly independent by October 1, 1948.

THE PARTITION resolution has until now operated as a brake upon the great-power pressure that has repeatedly been brought to bear upon the government of Israel. It has thwarted many of Mr. Bevin's maneuvers. The Israeli government must now deal with a conciliation commission which is governed by the vaguest of instructions, which will be restricted by none of the specific safeguards contained in the partition resolution, and which will inevitably be responsive to British influence. The people of Israel must now rely primarily upon their advantageous military position as a means of securing the territories which the partition resolution declared were justly theirs.

By its abandonment of the partition resolution the United Nations has admitted its inability to overcome British and American opposition to the enforcement of its authority.

It is, of course, the belief of some Israeli leaders that the understanding with Trans-Jordan which has resulted in the proclamation of King Abdullah as the ruler of Arab Palestine will prevent the other Arab states from upsetting territorial arrangements upon which Trans-Jordan and Israel agree. The Arab League seems to be split, and Abdullah's Legion is certainly the strongest Arab force in the Near East.

BUT FROM the larger viewpoint, will the atmosphere now created prove conducive to Israel's welfare? The opposition of Ibn Saud to this enlargement of Abdullah's domains will be as persistent as it will be violent. Political disorders in Iraq, Syria and Egypt will be inevitable if their governments acquiesce. The anathema already hurled against Abdullah by the council of the Ulemas in Cario is a sign of the fanatical dissension that will disrupt the Moslem world.

At this juncture, chaos in Arabia would further the Soviet plans for a Communist Near East. There could be no greater menace to a democratic Israel.

British influence will continue to be preponderant in Trans-Jordan. So long as Mr. Bevin decides British policy it will not favor Israel's development. The British are already trying to block Israel's outlet to the Red Sea near Aquaba although this is indispensable to her future prosperity.

Israel's welfare depends upon her being able to secure sufficient territory for resettlement and for the development of a prosperous economy. But it also depends upon her ability to conclude cooperative agreements for development projects, irrigation, customs and communications with her Arab neighbors. The majority of these will now be more than ever bitterly antagonistic.

ISRAEL'S predicament is due primarily to Mr. Bevin's stubborn refusal to end what Mr. Churchill so aptly calls his "sulky boycott." But it is due even more to Washington's acquiescence in Mr. Bevins' attempt to secure strategic advantages at the expense of just settlements that can make for a peaceful world. Washington has recently given assurances of de jure recognition after next month's general elections. But had the United States been willing to assume leadership in the Assembly, Israel would today be a member of the United Nations.

If she now enjoyed that status, Israel could negotiate with her neighbors on a basis of equality. She would not be forced to resort to strategems in order to procure her just rights. She would not be tempted to heed her own extremists who are clamoring for a territorial aggrandizement that could not make for lasting peace.

Many years ago Dr. Chaim Weizmann, now President of Israel, said to a Zionist congress that "practical politics, like mechanics, are governed by one golden rule: You can only get out of things what you put into them."

The Jewish people have put into Israel a devotion to a transcendent ideal which has been forged by 2000 years of tragic suffering and an unsurpassed amount of sacrifice, capacity and effort. It is from this rather than from territorial or material acquisition that will stem the immense contribution that a free Israel can make to civilization.

GOP Plans To Take Stock Of Its Assets

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

What is the difference between the Republican Party and the Democratic Party? Just what is the Republican program? And what is the GOP going to do about the off-year election of 1950?

These are some of the questions members of the party of Lincoln want answered in the wake of the 1948 election.

Representative Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is ready to propose a policy conference at which party leaders would attempt to answer the questions.

Much Soul-Searching

The first step will come at a meeting of the National Committee this winter. Chairman Scott, it was learned yesterday, probably will call the meeting for January 28-29, more than likely in the Midwest.

Chairman Scott will ask the national committeemen to approve a GOP policy conference to be held after the first session of the Eighty-first Congress is over. By that time, it is reasoned, there ought to be some clear-cut reaction to President Truman's program.

There has been a good deal of soul-searching in Republican ranks since the great upset of November. This is evidenced by the torrent of mail that has poured in on Chairman Scott.

Some of the letter writers feel the Republican Party should stop being a "Me Too" party, one that accepts all New Deal reforms but argues that it can administer them better. Others think the party should stop looking upon the words New Deal as an epithet. They feel the GOP ought to accept the reforms and go on from there.

"Special Interest" Bogey

At any rate, many in the GOP are satisfied that something has to be done to explode the argument that Mr. Truman used so successfully in his 1948 "crusade"; that the Republican Party is the party of "special interests" and the Democratic Party is the party of the people.

The Democratic Party it is argued, also favors special interests—organized labor, for example. What bothers Republican leaders right now is that the special interests being befriended by the Democratic Party seem to have the most votes.

Associates of Chairman Scott are convinced by now that no serious effort will be made to depose him from leadership when the National Committee meets next month. In any event, he is determined to hold on to his post.

Burglar Alarms Protect Royal Treasures

London, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—New phonographic burglar alarms are being installed in Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle to protect priceless royal treasures, it was reported today.

Pressure pads concealed under the carpets set off a record which makes a self-announcing telephone call to Scotland Yard and a number of police stations.

The record announces that: "Intruders have entered Windsor Castle or Buckingham Palace)" and keeps on repeating it.

Truman to Fly To Missouri Wednesday

President Truman will fly home for Christmas.

He plans to be gone a week, taking off at 10 a. m. (EST) Wednesday for Independence, Mo., and returning about December 29. He will go in the White House plane Independence.

The President first had intended to go today but the White House said pressure of work had held him up a day.

Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret already are at the family home in Missouri.

Given Leather Bookmarks

Each was given a leather bookmark bearing these words which Mr. Truman used often in his fall campaign speeches:

"I would rather have peace in the world than be President."

Below that quotation the markers are inscribed:

"Christmas greetings from the President and Mrs. Truman."

Mr. Truman showed off his early Christmas presents, including a reproduction of the desk used by George Washington. It is made of wood taken from the White House when the building was repaired 20 years ago.

The President had reporters look at the underside of the desk to see scorches in the wood. He said the marks were left when the British burned the White House in 1814. He said carpenters in the White House shops made the desk in off hours, for his study.

From Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, Mr. Truman received engravings of all his presidential predecessors. Top aides gave him new leather correspondence files, and younger members of the White House staff came up with a portable television set.

Pullman Space Black Market Hearing Opens

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—A widespread "black market" exists in the purchase of railroad reservations, an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing was told yesterday.

Several witnesses testified of paying bonuses ranging from $5 to $35 to obtain Pullman car or coach reservations after they had failed to get them at railroad ticket offices.

They also told the hearing of alleged collusion at Pennsylvania Station here between the reservation bureau and the ticket sellers.

Richard F. Mitchell, a member of the ICC, presided at the hearing. He said the hearing might Train reservations may have to be prepaid—and late cancellations banned—to keep them from resale on the black market.

"If the railroads don't do it, we may do it," Mitchell said.

Edward L. Murphy, ICC agent, said 27.1 per cent of the pullman space available at the station was unused in a three-month period studied. Most of this represented cancellations.

"There is nothing to prevent the reservation clerks from passing on the cancellation to their favorite ticket seller," instead of to the waiting list, with black marketing possibilities, he said.

ICC Blocks Increase In N. Y.-Florida Fare

By The Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday blocked a proposed increase in charges for luxury pullman accommodations between New York and Florida resort points.

The commission's suspension order was issued against a proposed advance in the charge for single occupancy of drawing rooms and compartments in through cars between New York's Pennsylvania Station and the Florida points.

The present charge for such occupancy is 1½ fare. The Pullman company proposed to advance this to two fares.

The commission said the change will be held up pending an investigation of the reasonableness of the proposal.

Suit Protests D. C. Liquor Ads in Md.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 20 (AP).—A taxpayer today asked a court order to block publication of Washington liquor advertisements in the Annapolis Evening Capital.

Albert Block of Annapolis, sought an injunction against the Annapolis Capital-Gazette Press, Inc., to bar advertisements by out-of-State liquor dealers "inviting the Maryalnd public to purchase more than 1 quart of alcoholic beverage at a time for personal use."

State law prohibits the importing of more than 2 quarts of liquor a month—and more than 1 at a time—by Marylanders.

Block said the Capital, on December 16, published an advertisement of Eig's Liquor Store, 5416 Georgia ave. nw., Washington, which he said was "openly inviting the public to break the law."

"Have entered into a one-year contract with a reputable businessman, we question our right to refuse to publish his advertising," General Manager Elmer M. Jackson, jr., said.

"Many subscribers reside in southern Anne Arundel County and are employed or have offices in Washington. These people, in our opinion, have a perfect right to purchase liquor in any quantity they see fit, provided it is not brought across the Maryland border in excess of the statutory limit.

"I feel that had we refused this advertising, we may have become involved in various Federal statutes which govern trade between States and the restraint of such trade," he said.

Because of a lower tax in the District of Columbia, liquor is generally cheaper in Washington than in Maryland.

Appellate Ruling

Parents Win Flier's U. S. Insurance

Changes in beneficiaries of National Service Life Insurance policies must be made in writing, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

Under this decision the court held that the parents of a deceased Navy flier were entitled to his $10,000 policy, instead of the woman he married 10 months before he died in December, 1944.

The serviceman was Herbert Cohn, 21, who resided with his parents, Morris B. and Dora A. Cohn at 7444 Georgia ave. nw. His widow is Mrs. Helene S. Cohn, whose address was given as 3339 Davenport st. nw.

Although Herbert had designated that his parents be beneficiary when he took out the policy, there was evidence that he had talked of changing it to make his wife beneficiary and had told a fellow officer he had "made it out" to his wife.

The Veterans' Administration requires a change in beneficiary be evidenced by writing. But, Helene contended that Herbert constructively transferred the policy proceeds to her, before he died in California.

In speaking for the appeals court, Judge E. Barrett Prettyman said:

"We are constrained to speak a word of warning concerning cases of which this is one, and of which so many seem to be appearing in the courts. On the one hand, it is highly desirable that the wishes of servicemen in respect to their insurance be observed, and the courts should be diligent to that end, disregarding mere technicalities and formalities of all sorts. But, on the other hand, it is equally important that the door not be opened to the enormous frauds obviously latent in the situation if basic minima of proof be disregarded."

4-Year Plan Is Announced By Britain

London, Dec. 20 (AP).—Britain's Labor Government announced today a four year plan to harness all the nation's manpower, capital and raw materials in a drive for economic recovery.

The goal is to make Britain self-supporting by the time the American-financed European Recovery Program comes to an end. For the British people the plan is a call for four more years of struggle and austerity.

There may be "modest" increases in supplies of food, the planners said, depending on the success of the program to boost domestic production. A 15 to 20 per cent increase in clothing and household goods was promised.

The planners estimated that next year Britain will need 940 million dollars from the ERP compared with $1,263,000,000 during the current fiscal year.

The program calls for:

A 50 per cent increase in agricultural output at home.

Doubling production of crude oil from British-owned fields.

Raising coal output 25 per cent.

Capital investments totaling more than eight billion dollars a year.

4 More Firms List Bonuses For Employes

By S. Oliver Goodman

More Washington corporations yesterday announced Christmas bonuses for their employes.

Capitol Cadillac-Oldsmobile Co. will distribute 25 per cent of its year's earnings to 200 employes. President Floyd D. Akers reported yesterday. The extra compensation will be at the rate of $102.36 for each year's service. Akers commented that majority of employes have 5 to 10 years or more service. The distribution will be made Wednesday. In addition each employe will receive a Christmas turkey, which has been the company's custom since its inception in 1934.

More than 1700 employes of the G. C. Murphy Co.'s six stores in Washington area have received Christmas gifts ranging from $5 for new workers to $80 for those of longer service. ..ccording to B. C. Hoyt, manager of the F st. store. He added that 57 employes here received the maximum gift.

Additional pay totaling more than $2,100,000 has been distributed to employes of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. All A. & P. workers throughout the country with six months or more service were eligible.

Smith's Transfer & Storage Co., Inc., of Washington this week will give its employes the usual Christmas bonus and party. In addition, two employes were promoted. Miss Dorothy Stamper was made manager of the U st. furniture store and Mrs. Mary Woods was named manager of the Bladensburg furniture store.

More than 175 employes of the Union Trust Co. enjoyed a Christmas dinner and dance at the Carlton Hotel. Bonuses were distributed earlier this month.

ODD LOTS: New York Central and two affiliated railroads announced orders totaling 18 million dollars for new Diesel-electric locomotives . . . Lack of a stockholders' quorum caused postponement yesterday of a vote on a Tid. Water Associated Oil Co. plan to buy certain California oil properties for 43 million dollars . . . The Chicago Corp. and Warren Petroleum Corp. have announced the joint purchase of all outstanding capital stock of Midland Gasoline Co. . . . RULE WAIVED: Holders of "Series D" savings bonds, which were issued in 1939 and will be paid off starting January 1, were invited yesterday to reinvest the proceeds in the regular "Series E" savings bonds. Secretary Snyder said the Treasury will waive in such cases the rule which limits the sale of Serie E bonds to $10,000 for any one investor in a single year. Only individuals may qualify for the transfer because the law requires that Series E bonds be purchased only in the names of individuals, not banks or corporations.

The estimate was based on advanced reports from representative Class I railroads —those doing one million dollars or more gross business annually. The reports indicated that freight revenues were up 9.2 per cent from last year, while passenger revenues decreased two-tenths of a per cent.

Income and Profits Both Set Records

the third quarter, or 20 per cent above a year ago. Before deducting taxes, corporate income was $35,600,000,000.

The after-taxes figure for 1947 was $18,100,000,000, and for 1946 was $12,800,000,000. Both those years were the highest in history, but now eclipsed.

The department commented with caution on its profit figures, perhaps in view of speculation whether the new Democratic-controlled Congress will restore the excess profits tax, as twice urged by President Truman.

Industrialists who have upheld high corporation earnings in recent hearings of a Senate-House economic subcommittee could draw some comfort from the Government findings.

The report said: "Although the absolute level of profits is currently far above either the prewar period of 1929, the same is true of other national income shares"—including, it added, the total of payments made to employes.

Moreover, if the profit figures are adjusted to allow for the present-day high cost of replacing inventories as they are used up, the profit figure is reduced.

When such an "inventory valuation adjustment" is made, the department said, profits before taxes are lower than they were in the war years, 1941-44, inclusive.

Before taxes, the actual third-quarter profits were $8,900,000,000, a half-million-dollar climb, or about 6 per cent, above the previous quarter. After taxes, the quarterly profit was $5,416,000,000.

In the same three-month period, corporate sales rose 3 per cent, to a total of 90 billion dollars. Payments to employes, boosted by "third-round" wage increases, rose to $5,600,000,000.

Three-quarters of the total gain in profits before taxes, or, 375 million dollars, was in the manufacturing industries. Railroads accounted for another 100 million dollars. The iron and steel industry showed a sharp gain from its temporarily depressed profit levels in the second quarter.

Two of the nonmanufacturing groups—retail and wholesale trade, and communications and public utilities — suffered declines from the second to the third quarter, caused mainly by seasonal trade dips.

The national income rate rose $5,600,000,000 in the third quarter from the second quarter. It was $27,000,000,000 above the annual rate of third-quarter 1947.

The market value of production, or "gross national product," climbed to an annual rate of $255,900,000,000 in the third quarter, a gain of $28,000,000,000 over the annual rate a year before. This represents not only factory and farm production, but such services as laundry and medical care, construction and repair, transportation and selling. Since it is measured by dollars instead of physical units, it is inflated by rising prices; the actual physical increase in production in 1948 probably will not be gauged until President Truman sends his annual economic message to the new Congress.

steak at 93 cents per pound to equal a price of a Chevrolet.

"Many other cost of living items have come up more than car prices."

He compared a 1929 Buick four-door sedan, priced at $1320, and a 1949 Chevrolet four-door sedan at $12.80, both manufacturers' list price. To show how much more the customer gets today in a Chevrolet than he received when he bought a Buick in 1929, he added:

"The Buick price did not include the spare tire and bumpers which are included in the Chevrolet price. In addition, the 1948 Chevrolet price includes a number of features not found on the 1929 Buick, for example: All-steel body, four-wheel hydraulic brakes, safety glass, sealed-beam headlights, synchro-mesh transmission, hypoid differential gears, automatic spark advance, voltage regulator, thermostatic controlled pressure cooling system, knee-action suspension, low-pressure tires, built-in luggage compartment, dash glare compartment, no-draft ventilation, gear-shift lever on steering column, etc."

He told the committee also that GM stockholders have received 55 per cent of the corporation's earnings since the end of the war, as compared with 85 per cent for the immediate prewar years.

Wilson urged the committee to help clear up what he called public "distrust and suspicion" of profits.

There is confusion in the public mind "which causes many people still to look on the existence of profits with a vague feeling of distrust and suspicion," the witness said.

He observed that "to give labor all the gains of technological improvement would eliminate the incentive for future risk-taking on the part of capital."

Wilson told the subcommittee that while General Electric's wages have risen about 90 per cent since 1940 and its selling prices 40 per cent, profits paid out as dividends have gone up only 8 per cent.

"It is our serious conviction that the present margins are lower than they should be to provide the necessary cushion to protect us against any drop in the market and to assure us of the opportunity to continue with our endeavor to show progress in the field of industrial achievement," he said.

Wilson said that GE is currently making a profit of 7.4 cents on each dollar of sales, as compared with 7.2 cents last year, 12.4 cents in 1940, 12.5 cents in 1939, 9.3 cents in 1938, and 15.2 cents in 1936.

Huge Wheat Yield Seen

Economics, it was stated last night that if weather conditions from now until June are as favorable as this year, "we'll have a record crop."

(The lower estimate per acre as compared with the 1948 crop is based on "historical weather conditions" for the first six months of the year in the wheat belt. Growing conditions for the first six months of 1947 and 1948 were far above average, it was stated.

(This year's growing weather, moisture, etc., have so far been far above last year at this date, BAE reported.)

Canada Encouraging Uranium Prospecting

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Canadian government acted today to encourage private prospecting for uranium. Such prospecting already has made "several discoveries that appear to be important," Trade Minister C. D. Howe said. He announced that two years have been added to the period in which the government will guarantee a floor price for uranium.

That means prospectors can be assured of set prices for any uranium ores and concentrates they find up to March 31, 1955.

British Bribe Evidence Said To Be Lacking

London, Dec. 20 (AP).—Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross told a special tribunal investigating rumors of bribery in the Labor government today there is "not sufficient evidence to justify criminal prosecution against anybody."

What the tribunal must consider, he said, is whether "indiscretion proceeded into impropriety or impropriety into corruption.

"But whatever conclusion may be reached about Ministers whose conduct has been investigated," he said, "the idea of indiscretion or impropriety or corruption, whichever it turns out to be, is at the most extremely small.

"So far as concerns the civil service there has, in my submission, not been a shred of a title of real evidence which suggests any corruption or even any impropriety on the part of the civil servants whose names have been involved in this inquiry.

"I wish I could say the same for each of the Ministers and public men whose conduct has been involved in this case, but there have been indiscretions on the part at any rate of one of them as indeed admitted by Mr. Belcher's resignation."

John W. Belcher, a key figure in the investigation, has resigned as parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade. . .

Belcher denied taking bribes, but admitted accepting gifts from Sidney Stanley, Polish-born promoter. Such acceptance, he acknowledged, was incompatible with his position as a Minister of the Crown.

Stanley himself was described by Sir Hartley as the person around whom "the whole tangled web had been spun."

Truman to Get ECA Job List

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman with $25,000.

Hoffman was appointed last April on the strong recommendation of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), president pro tem of the Senate and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. When Hoffman proposed the appointment of Undersecretary of Commerce William Foster, a Republican, as his deputy, President Truman objected that a nonpartisan agency should not have two Republicans at its head.

In the end Hoffman himself suggested the name of Howard Bruce, a Democrat from Baltimore, and the President gave his wholehearted approval. Even this, therefore, was not a political appointment forced on Hoffman.

Since Bruce's appointment the President has not vetoed a single ECA choice. He has given the new agency greater freedom in these matters than, for example, the State Department, which submits to the White House all appointments requiring Senate confirmation, and all names of delegates to international conferences.

One consequence of the new White House decision—which officials insist was not a formal "order"—may be closer relations between Hoffman and the President.

Hoffman is a member of the National Security Council and, by law, of the National Advisory Council on international monetary and financial problems. The act of Congress gives him Cabinet rank, yet until his recent world tour he had only had four talks with President Truman since being appointed head of ECA last April.

Most of ECA's leading posts are filled, but vacancies are likely next spring and early summer, with the retirement of officials who agreed to serve for one year only.

One on the Aisle—

Can't Tell a Star Without Program

By Richard L. Coe

IT WAS, after all, only an accident that Columbus discovered America, and it may be an accidental discovery that Joan Fontaine has hit on in "You Gotta Stay Happy," at the Palace.

Miss Fontaine is now playing the part of Jean Arthur, and a trend may very well be under way. The movie folk are screaming that novelty is what's needed, and since one new idea always starts a trend I think we can look forward to a followup of Miss Fontaine as Miss Arthur.

We may soon have the novelty of Miss Garson playing Miss Davis, puffing cigarettes with a reckless zeal that would delight a Carolina duke. Eve Arden, if her employers have any sense at all, may wind up as Joan Crawford, breaking her heart over a ragged musician.

Miss Fontaine is not, to be sure, playing a character named Jean Arthur. The lass is named Dee Dee Dillwood, the world's richest bachelor girl. But it's all you can do to keep from calling her Jean. She looks like Jean, talks like Jean, dresses like Jean.

Like the gals Jean has played in countless movies, Miss Fontaine's Dee Dee is rich, spoiled, puzzled, outspoken and yearns to be Loved For Herself Alone. She breaks away from her marriage contract with stuffy, rich Willard Parker and runs right into the bedroom of shy, poor Jimmy Stewart. Jimmy owns an air-freight line (two two-motor planes), doesn't plan on marraige for another six years. But on a hop across the country, Love Dawns, the sleeping pills of the rich go out the window and the virtuous poor Stewart is rewarded with a four-motor Constellation.

And a Funny Ape

Joan plays the role throughout as Jean would. The cracked voice, the breaks into an excited falsetto, the starry eyes, the helpless gestures, the sad little walk, the pert peering-out from male attire.

Please don't think that in so happy a season of the year I'm looking askance at this practice. I simply think it's amusing and may lead to all sorts of diverting ideas (Marjorie Main as Ethel Barrymore or Gregory Peck as Tyrone Power). Other actresses have pulled the same trick before, however ineptly or subtly, but I think this is the first time I've seen so outspoken a mimicry. Uncanny, you might call it.

Apart from Miss Fontaine, there are few surprises, which can be hard on the comic spirit. "You Gotta Stay Happy" starts out well enough with reasonably original credit lines, but it takes over 30 minutes to get out of Hampshire House, that Waldorf Tower of Central Park South, which may be a great cinematic boost for HH, but it does pall as entertainment.

Stewart is blithe as ever, but isn't called on to say anything that he hasn't before. Eddie Albert is his pal and there are agreeable supporting performances from such standbys as Roland Young and Percy Kilbride. Joe, a chimpanzee, plays Joe, a chimpanzee, with zestful amusement and is as effective in the role as is Miss Fontaine as Miss Arthur.

"YOU GOTTA STAY HAPPY" Universal release of Rampart productions (Karl Tunberg and William Dozier). Screen play by Tunberg from the magazine serial by Robert Carson. Music by Daniele Amfitheatrof. Directed by H. C. Potter. At the Palace.

IN PALACE COMEDY: James Stewart and Joan Fontaine in "You Gotta Stay Happy," the new comedy opening this morning at the Palace

Society Gives Up, Imprisons Incorrigible Boy Burglar, 16

Detroit, Dec. 20 (AP)—Society gave up today on 16-year-old Gordon Douglas, who turned down every chance to prove that there is no such thing as a bad boy.

Recorder's Judge O. Z. Ide sentenced the slender, soft-spoken youth to 1½ to 5 years in prison for burglary.

Nobody came forward this time to say a good word for the boy.

Gordon started skipping school in the first grade and was in a training school at the age of 10. At 13 he was "doing time" in a boys' vocational school for stealing. On his release, he became involved in one theft after another, until he was placed in a juvenile home.

He ran away repeatedly. During one flight he robbed 54 homes in 57 days.

At 15 the juvenile court gave him up and turned him over to the adult court. But newspapermen stepped in and interested the late Fr. Edward J. Flanagan. Gordon went to Boys Town, Neb., where many a youngster has been turned from a shiftless life to one of honesty.

But Gordon ran away from there and began his burglaries again.

Still society did not give up. He was sent to a State hospital, where psychiatrists thought they might be able to untangle the anti-social snarl in his mind. But he ran away.

Gordon made one last effort to escape prison today. He asked the court to let him join the Army.

"They wouldn't take you," Judge Ide told him sadly.

A court officer took Gordon away.

Dr. Jensen Asked to Become Chief of Staff at Gallinger

Dr. Frode Jensen, nationally known in the field of medical education, has been asked to become chief of staff of Gallinger Hospital with the possibility of also becoming superintendent under an overall title of medical director.

Admiral P. S. Rossiter, who is 4 years over the 70-year retirement age, was scheduled to retire as chief of staff last September, but agreed to stay on until a replacement could be found. Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, 67, member of United States Public Health Service, is superintendent of the hospital.

Dr. Jensen is director of graduate and postgraduate education at the University of Denver Medical School.

For some time Commissioner Guy Mason has been considering the consolidation of the position of superintendent and chief of staff. And confirming his offer to Jensen, Mason commented:

"We have been negotiating with Dr. Jensen for just the chief of staff job, but it may be that we might change his title to 'medical director' and at some later date eliminate the superintendent's job."

Reached by telephone last night, Dr. Jensen said he was "tremendously attracted" by the District offer.

He said no firm salary offer has been made thus far, though "a $15,000 figure has been bandied about."

Dr. Jensen said he plans to some to Washington in February to look over the situation after attending a medical conference in Chicago on February 9. If he accepts the District post, Dr. Jensen added, he would not be available until sometime next July.

Dr. Jensen, who was born in Denmark, was graduated from the Columbia School of Physicians and Surgeons. His education was financed by the famous author Alexander Woollcott whom he met soon after arriving in this country in 1922.

Pros' Peace Meeting Ends; No Definite Action

Strong Indications Seen That All-Amercia Will Fold

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—The "peace" meeting between the National Football League and the All-America Conference ended late tonight without any definite agreement being reached in their "cold war."

There were fairly definite indications, however, that the AAC will collapse with two of its members, Cleveland's Browns and San Francisco's 49ers, going into the National League next season.

A joint announcement when the meeting adjourned said that "the committees (of the two leagues) terminated the meeting with the expectation that future meetings might provide some formula for a common understanding between both leagues."

And that "efforts by both sides to formulate a mutually satisfactory agreement were not consummated."

The National Football League draft will start at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

For 10 hours, while the NFL draft was postponed, moguls of the two leagues discussed peace.

A general and friendly debate indicated that the owners were willing to end warfare which contributed to an estimated loss of two million dollars in pro football in 1948.

George Preston Marshall of Washington's Redskins called the turn on the apparent stalemate when officials of the two leagues took time out for dinner earlier in the evening.

"The trouble with the whole meeting," Marshall said, "is that the All-America men who asked for this session don't know exactly what they want themselves.

"Every time something different is brought out, they have to retire for a private meeting. I don't like to knock anybody, especially such a bunch of nice guys, but the fact is I never saw so many football men who know so little about football."

Marshall himself is an advocate of admitting the strongest two teams of the AAC, the Cleveland Browns and the San Francisco 49ers, into the National League and letting the rest of the All-America pass out of the picture.

He said that the AAC committee claimed that all of its eight teams could be made solvent for next season. This was brought out in the junior circuit's request for a common draft of players, a working agreement on schedules and a world championship game between the leagues at the end of the season.

Marshall's reply to this claim, he said, was to suggest that the AAC continue operating on its own for another year before the two leagues got together. This obviously was not the desire of the junior league's representatives.

"These AAC people," said Marshall, "haven't the least idea of the problems involved in getting the two leagues together. Somebody wanted to know how a schedule could be worked out with a 12 or 14 team league and the AAC answer was that that was only a minor detail. Huh!"

All 10 NFL owners were present or represented at today's unprecedented conclave. Ted Collins of the Boston Yanks, who recently arranged to move his Boston franchise to New York, missed the early portion of the meeting but showed up for the night session.

The five AAC owners in attendance were Ben Lindheimer, of the Los Angeles Dons, Arthur McBride of the Cleveland Browns, James Breuil of the Buffalo Bills, Tony Morabito of the San Francisco 49ers, and Dan Topping of the New York Yankees.

Unrepresented were the Baltimore Colts, Brooklyn Dodgers, Chicago Rockets.

The censensus of observers was that Marshall would get his own way to a certain extent. He has said, "There isn't a chance of the two leagues, as such, operating together next year."

Cleveland and San Francisco appeared almost certain to join the NFL, giving it a 12-team membership. The other two rabid football men among the AAC owners, Lindheimer and Breuil, might be allowed to buy into the Los Angeles Rams and Boston Yank franchises.

McBride did the only straight talking of any of the club owners when questioned. He said the NFL offered to take the Cleveland Browns and San Francisco Forty-Niners into the senior pro football circuit.

But, said McBride, the AAC insisted on a two-league operation with 14 teams including the 10 NFL teams and the Browns, Forty-Niners, Los Angeles Dons and Baltimore Colts of the AAC.

McBride said the Colts were listed as a "must" to any negotiations and that the NFL was adamant in refusing to consider Baltimore

AAC Goes Ahead With Draft Today

Cleveland, Dec. 20 (AP).—Admiral Jonas Ingram, commissioner of the All-America Football Conference, announced tonight the conference draft would start at 8:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Asked for comment on the announcement from Philadelphia that the AAC and the National Football League had failed in a move to end their professional football war, Admiral Ingram said:

"Not having attended the Philadelphia meeting, I have no comment to make."

Philly Group Makes Bid for Eagles

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (AP).—James P. (Jim) Clark, former chairman of the Democratic City Committee, said today he and a group of businessmen have "made an offer" to buy the champion Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

Clark declined to say how much the group offered for the Eagles but declared it was less than $350,000.

Cleveland and San Francisco Expected to Join National

Stumbling Block to Peace

Colts Say Marshall Plan Excludes Them

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—The refusal of the Baltimore Colts to give up an All-America Conference franchise was the stumbling block in the efforts of the AAC and the National Football League to end their football war, an official of the Baltimore club said tonight.

Robert C. (Jake) Embry, president of the Colts, said he had been informed that the Washington Redskins of the National League balked at having Baltimore included in any consolidation plan.

Embry said the AAC had pledged that Baltimore would be included in any settlement. The Conference committee "lived up to its pledge in Philadelphia," where representatives of the two leagues met today in an effort to make peace, the Colt president added.

(In the 1948 season just ended, attendance at Redskin games dropped approximately 7000 per game.)

(Before Baltimore entered the All-America Conference, hundreds of fans from Baltimore regularly attended Redskin games, coming over on special trains and in their own cars.

(Marshall has control of the Baltimore area under territorial rights of the National Football League. As in major league baseball, a National Football League club can object to any other city within a radius of 50 miles being awarded a franchise in that league.

(For Baltimore to be admitted to the National League under realignment proposed at Philadelphia, Marshall would have to waive his territorial rights in Baltimore's case.

(Before Baltimore came into the All-America conference, the Redskins for years played an annual preseason charity game in Baltimore under the sponsorship of the Variety clubs of Washington and Baltimore.

(It was recently announced that next year the Redskins would not play in Baltimore but that the Colts would step into the Variety Club's promotion there against an opponent to be selected. The Variety Club of Washington hopes to arrange a game in Maryland University's new stadium at College Park featuring the Redskins.)

George Marshall Denies That He's Blocking Baltimore

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—George Preston Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, denied tonight that he blocked the inclusion of Baltimore in professional football proposed realignment of teams.

"I purposely stayed out of all discussion about Baltimore in the meeting here," Marshall said.

"The other nine National League representatives were opposed to including Baltimore in any future plans," Marshall added. "I emphasized that I did not want to comment either way, and centainly did not want to be placed in the position of blocking Baltimore."

Havre de Grace May Try Racing in March

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BUTTON UP your overcoat, race fans, there's a chance we will have 1949 racing in Maryland during the month of March.

At least, Havre de Grace is considering such a move and not without reason. The Graw took a beating this year. The first two weeks the track had to buck Garden State, which hogged the Philadelphia crowd that meant the difference between red and black on the ledger.

In trying to escape another dose of the same, Havre moved the second meeting into mid-July. However, this failed to change the situation. Fans simply wouldn't take the heat and make the daily trip to the banks of the Susquehanna. When the sun wasn't cooking everything in sight, the rains came.

As if the weather wasn't enough of a handicap, somebody threw in another fast ball in the form of harness racing. The customers left Havre in droves, preferring to take their chances in the cool of the evening with the sulky steeds at Laurel Raceway.

The Graw doesn't want to conflict with a Jersey track—either Garden State or Atlantic City—in 1949. And dit doesn't want any the Maryland milers, plus some of more of that summer stuff, after the half-milers have taken the cream off the overall bankroll in these parts.

Bowie Doing All Right

Havre de Grace doubtlessly is making eyes at the Bowie dates, and what Maryland track isn't? Bowie was the stepchild of racing in the State once and the legislative big shots decided to give the Prince Georges track the freeze-out. The only dates granted Bowie were the first two weeks in April and the last two in November.

This was before New Jersey came into the pictures. Bowie struggled through snowstorms and cold rains and kept plugging while the other tracks gathered in the big profits during the ideal late spring and early fall periods.

But times change. In April, Bowie finds itself going it alone in the East for some days and then with no opposition closer than New York. In November Bowie again has the field to itself. Add to this the fact that Bowie has taken on the new look under the second generation of owners and the track is doing big business.

All this is known to Havre de Grace and so is something else—Charles Town.

Charles Town Beats Weather

Don't think for a minute that the Graw officials haven't had half an eye on the West Virginia track. Charles Town, operating during a season when every track in the East folds—the first three weeks in December—the 6-furlong oval comes up with its best meeting in history. True, Charles Town had to be lucky with the weather and, oddly enough, the winter's first snowstorm in this area began eight hours after the crowd saw the last race of the meeting. However, the popular track has taken all sorts of late December weather for more than a decade and has never failed to how a profit.

President A. J. Boyle says Charles Town is still growing. Perhaps this accounts for the fact that, with most of the nation's tracks showing a decrease in betting, his track was up more than 10 per cent despite crowds slightly under last year. In addition, the Charles Town track was never fast during the 18-day session.

Bowie had only a few days of fast tracks during its successful fall session. I always have contended that heavy, muddy or sloppy tracks tend to increase rather than decrease betting. It's true that some big wagers might be held back when the oval is not dry, but the big majority of bettors believe they have more chance to get a good price.

Whether Havre de Grace takes a shot at March racing remains to be seen. Perhaps they won't risk their entire 25 days on a meeting, but they couldn't be blamed if

Cooper Scores TKO Over Tony Longo

Jimmy Cooper, fast little Washington featherweight, closed the 1948 fight season at Turner's Arena last night by securing a technical knockout over Tony Longo of Baltimore.

A bad cut over Longo's left eye prevented his coming out for the fifth round. It was Cooper's second kayo victory in as many weeks. Cooper, who weighed 124 to Longo's 125, took command of the bout during a furious toe-to-toe slugging session in the third round. He used his left jab to good advantage in this session to wear down Longo, who had won the first two rounds.

A crowd of 603 paid a gross gate of $1281.45 and a net of $935.34 to see the last card at Turner's until January 10.

In the only one of three cofeatures to go the tight-round distance, Sonny Bunn, 143, of Washington, outpointed Lester Harris, 140½, of Baltimore.

Jackie Ford, 143, Washington, and Roy Wirt, 144, Roanoke, Va., fought a rough five-round draw in the main preliminary.

In scheduled fours between local fighters, Scott Richardson, 159, chilled Tee Edwards, 161, at 1:27 of the second, and Walter Hamm, 130, scored a second-round TKO over Tommy Butler, 133½.

In the first of the scheduled eight-rounders, Jimmy Green, 134½, of New York went down in the first round without an apparent blow being struck by Biff Jones, 138½, of Washington. Referee Charley Reynolds called it no contest, and the boxing commission held up Green's purse and suspended him indefinitely. Green claimed he was the victim of an unintentional butt from Jones.

Paper Claims Voyles Ousted

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The News reported tonight Carl Voyles had been ousted as coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the All-America Football Conference.

A Brooklyn spokesman who declined use of his name said, however, the report is not so.

The News said Voyles would remain with the Dodger organization as business manager until his $12,500-a-year contract expires at the end of 1949.

The present business manager, Gerry O'Brien, has been ousted to make room for Voyles, the paper added.

Voyles, former football coach at Auburn and William and Mary, was given the Brooklyn post last year by Branch Rickey.

At the time Rickey announced the contract was for one year at an undisclosed salary.

The Dodgers finished last in the Eastern Division standings of the Conference race this year, winning only 2 games while losing 12.

Reached at the AAC meeting in Cleveland, Voyles said:

"I don't know a thing about it. As far as I know, I am director of football and coach of the Brooklyn club. I signed a contract to that effect through 1949."

Virginia Beats GW By 67-53

Charlottesville, Dec. 20.—Joe Noertker dropped in 17 points tonight as Virginia University spanked George Washington University, 67-53, in Memorial Gym.

Len Small made 15 points for G. W., but his running mate, Jim McNiff, leading Southern Conference scorer until tonight, was held to five points. Virginia's Bill Pandak and Walter Yoos did tight guarding jobs on McNiff.

Virginia got away to a 5-0 lead, held the advantage all of the way and widened the gap by 21 points when the score was 61-40.

In the last few minutes, Small's accurate shooting on set shots brought up G. W.'s score.

Virginia now has won six games, lost two. Virginia has beaten American, Maryland and G. W. of the Washington area.

Alexandria Boys Club romped to a 61-43 victory over the Eastern Boys Club in the finals of the First Annual Alexandria Boys Club Holiday Basketball Tournament last night at the Boys Club gym.

Billy Rorer, former all-State forward at George Washington High, scored 17 points to lead the scorers and pile up a total of 52 for the three-game tournament.

Rorer's total was the highest of the tournament and brought him the trophy awarded to the outstanding player. Charlie Loving, also of the Alexandria Boys Club and runner-up to Rorer for the tourney high, received an award for foul shooting. Loving netted 16 in 17 attempts.

Navy's Rally Fails, Gophers Win, 47 to 40

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 20.—Navy gave it the old college try here tonight before Minnesota's famed one-two punch salted away a 47-40 Gopher victory and brought the middies their second straight defeat at the hands of Western Conference opposition.

The final score didn't tell the true story for Minnesota's margin was only two points with less than four minutes to play.

But the tars, with Dick Williams in the sparkplug role, threw a scare into the partisan fieldhouse crowd of 10,622 with their last-half rally. The young Navy center rang up 11 points as the Gophers' 22-16 half-time edge was 29-28 with 13 minutes to go.

By then Williams had committed four fouls and Coach Ben Carnevale withdrew him. Even under that handicap the Midshipmen fought back to a 35-33 deficit on the strength of Dave Mullaney's back-handed field goal and Dick Clinite's free throw.

At that point the height of big Jim McIntyre, the Gophers' six foot nine inch center, and the eye of Whitey Skoog tipped the balance.

Mac tipped in a rebound, Skoog hit a bucket to up the margin to 39-33. After John Barrow connected on a swisher to keep Navy in contention, McIntyre and Skoog rang up six straight tallies for the home team and it was all over.

Rift Patched Up

Gilmer Case Brings Increase In Insurance for All-Stars

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., said today it had worked out insurance coverage changes with the National Football League to guarantee continuance of the All-Star football game.

The revision stemmed from the "Harry Gilmer case" last summer when the former Alabama star refused to joint the 1948 All-Star squad.

The Tribune said the maximum insurance for All-Star players under contract to various professional teams against salary loss due to injury was increased from $8000 to $10,000. This is for one year only.

The Tribune also said it had extended its insurance policy to include the National League and member clubs from general liability and property damage.

Gilmer, under contract to the Washington Redskins, balked at reporting to the All-Star camp. He demanded the sponsor grant insurance protection for the life of his professional league contract and his complete salary. This amount was estimated at $80,000.

A dispute over the case flared between Owner George Marshall of the Redskins and Sports Editor Arch Ward of the Tribune, who threatened legal action against the league for breach of the All-Star contract.

The insurance change, while comparatively slight, indicated the league and Ward had patched the rift.

Touchdowners Ask Truman to Dinner

The Touchdown Club yesterday invited President Truman to address its annual dinner at the Statler Hotel January 8. The dinner will honor the outstanding football coach and players of the year chosen by local sportsmen.

The President took the invitation under consideration and accepted a life membership in the Touchdown Club from Carroll Bird, club president.

Most of the President's Cabinet will be there, Bird said. Attorney General Tom Clark, Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson, Treasury Secretary John Snyder, Commerce Secretary Charles B. Sawyer, Army Secretary Kenneth L. Royall and Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan have all indicated their desire to attend.

Pittsburgh Battles Lions

The best defensive team in the American Hockey League this season, the Pittsburgh Hornets, will perform this evening against the Washington Lions in the last local hockey game of 1948.

The Hornets have only permitted 76 goals against them to date and share third place in the Western Division with the Cleveland Barons. Credit for the relative security of the Hornets' goal goes to Aldidge "Baz" Bastien, just about the stingiest net tender in the league. Bastien's fire shutouts last year were tops for the league.

The two teams have had several arguments over the past two years and the Hornets usually require another kind of defense against the Lions. Here, too, the Pittsburghers are well fortified in the person of Phil Samis who set a record for penalties last year.

"After tonight's affair the Lions swing out for a two-week road trip, returning home January 4 for a game against the Hershey Bears.

Louisiana Gamblers Clean Up by Using Walkie Talkie to Flash Race Results

New Orleans, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—A gambling ring using walkie-talkies was reported today to have won $12,000 last week from New Orleans bookies by betting on races already run.

Walkie-talkie operators, stationed where they could see the finish line at Fair Grounds, flashed the results of races to confederates. The colleagues called up bookies and got their bets down on the winning horse before the bookies could get the same results by wire.

As a result of the scheme, a service that supplies horse race results warned New Orleans bookies today to refuse all bets after post time.

Six Other Games Also Scheduled

George Washington of Alexandria's lofty young sprouts, having won their first three basketball game this season, meet tough Eastern in one of seven high games involving local schools scheduled today.

Eastern, with a record of one defeat in its pre-Interhigh season so far, will travel out to Arlington hoping its sharp forwards, Ray Lamon and Red Brown, will overcome the formidable height advantage enjoyed by the Virginians.

Tony Daukas, 6-foot 6-inch center, and forward Jim Gahagan at 6-foot-2, are the longest of the George Washington lot that averages 6-1, and behaves generally like the next Virginia Group 1 champion.

Chamberlain visits Coolidge for another one of those games that may or may not turn up in the interhigh standings later in the year.

Chamberlain, still sweating out admission to the Interhigh League which will act on the application at some unspecified future date, has a record of 2-2.

Its last victory was over Bell, its companion in doubt about its future status.

Should Chamberlain get in, today's game with Coolidge might count toward the final standings. But the game could be nullified and rescheduled after January 7, when Interhigh play begins officially.

Montgomery-Blair, undefeated in four games to date, also invades Arlington to do battle with the Generals of Washington-Lee.

Woodward visits St. Louis in the only other local afternoon game. Out of town games involving area schools find Anacostia at Baltimore City and Clarksville at Pooleville. All games begin at 3:30.

Tonight Hyattsville plays at Mount Rainier, beginning at 8 p. m.

Breechen's Record Best In National

New York, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, stocky St. Louis Cardinal southpaw who was supposed to be past his prime, turned in the most impressive record of his career in 1948 to top all National League pitchers, official averages revealed today.

The 34-year-old Brecheen from Broken Bow, Okla., registered the best earned run average in the circuit, 2.24, and the top won-lost percentage, .741, while winning 20 games and losing only 7. It marked the first time in his seven-year career that the Redbird lefthander won 20 games.

Not content with only these two laurels, Brecheen won the strikeout title by whiffing 149 batters and led the loop in shutouts with 7.

Leonard Second With 2.51

Among hurlers who toiled 10 complete games, Emil (Dutch) Leonard of the Phillies was second in earned run averages with 2.51 and Johnny Sain of Boston third with 2.60. Only other moundsman to turn in an ERA below three runs per game was Southpaw Johnny Schmitz of the Cubs with 2.64.

Sain, whose pitching was a vital factor in the Braves' climb to the pennant, won the most games, 24, while losing 15 for a .615 percentage; hurled the most complete games, 28; worked the most innings, 315; faced the most batters, 1313, and yielded the most hits, 297.

Brooklyn's Rex Barney pitched the only National League no-hit, no-run game in 1948 when he beat the Giants, 2 to 0, on September 9. Among pitchers who failed to pitch 10 complete games, Veteran Truett (Rip) Sewell of the Pirates notched the highest won-lost figure, .813, by winning 13 and losing 3.

Sewell Wins Eight in Row

Sewell, a 40-year-old right-hander, enjoyed the season's longest winning streak by winning eight straight games from July 22 until the end of the season.

Despite his exceptionally fine earned-run average, Leonard lost the most games, 17.

Holder of the season's longest streak was lanky Bob McCall of Chicago, who dropped 13 straight contests between May 15 and September 22.

Boston pitchers turned in the lowest collective earned-run mark in the circuit, 3.38, while Cincinnati pitchers had the highest earned-run average, 4.48.

Havre de Grace May Try Racing in March

they experimented with two weeks.

The question of horses would have to be considered. Many thoroughbreds now stop by Bowie for that session before going on to New York and New England. Perhaps the Graw could lure them here earlier. Bowie generally depends, in a measure, on horses wintered in this section. This is a gamble, however. If the winter hereabouts is an open one, the local horses will be ready. However, should the ice and snow keep horses in their stalls, the Graw would have to rely solely on steeds coming up from warmer climes.

Perhaps the track will supply electrical outlets throughout the stands where the fans can plug in their electric blankets. Which reminds me of a Winter meeting at Charles Town some years ago. For two days the temperature was under 15 degrees.

The customers stood around "bully" stoves in the betting ring, appearing in the grandstand only long enough for the actual running of the race.

The pressbox gang noticed that one middle-aged woman sat midway up the stands throughout the afternoon, apparently unmindful of the biting cold. After the last race we found the answer.

The matron arose, reached in under the blanket that had been wrapped around her, brought out a farm lantern, blew it out, gathered her things and left for home.

I asked her about it the following day and she said, "Nothing new about this. We farm women have been sitting on lanterns and milking cows for generations. It's just as good when you're playing the horses."

Bring your bankroll, your Racing Form and your lantern and I'll be seeing you at Havre de Grace, maybe.

Former Nat Pitcher Sold to New Orleans

Hollywood, Dec. 20 (AP).—Joe Krakauskas and Al Yaylian, both lefthanded pitchers, were sold today by the Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League to New Orleans of the Southern Association. The sales price was not announced by the Stars management. Krakauskas formerly pitched for the Washington Senators.

Stan Musial's Father Dies After Illness

St. Louis, Dec. 2 (AP).—Lakasz Musial, 58, father of Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, died last night after an illness of several months.

Groom Convicted Of Stimulating Horses

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (U.P.).—Racetrack Groom Robert H. Brennan, 26, was convicted today of stimulating two longshot winners during last summer's Hollywood Park race meeting.

Superior Judge Walter S. Gates, hearing the case without a jury, found him guilty on two counts of doping the horses Fracture and Criss-cross, June 29 and 3. He ordered Brennan to appear January 11 for sentencing, which could result in a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison.

Democrats to Get First Call for Top Federal Jobs

One new Truman policy has been set —no Republican will be appointed to a top Federal job if a Democrat of at least equal ability is available. Very few so-called non-political appointments will be made during the second Truman Administration.

The President himself is reported to have informed Democratic political leaders of his patronage plans. In general, they are said to include:

That the recommendations of the Democratic National Committee will be sought on presidential appointments and other Federal jobs to patronage;

That the advice of the State Democratic organizations will be sought on Federal appointments in the respective States, and on possible appointees from the States;

And that those Democratic members of the Senate and the House who "play ball" with the Administration will be asked to recommend the appointments of Federal officials in their States.

An arrangement to handle future appointments is being worked out between the White House and the Democratic National Committee. Labor, liberal, and women leaders are reported to head the list of possible appointees.

SPY PROBE: What did Eleanor Nelson tell the spy-hunting grand jury? Nothing of consequence if my information is correct.

It's reported that Miss Nelson preferred to stand on her constitutional rights and refused to answer directly questions put to her on what she knew, if anything, of the Hiss-Chambers controversy.

However, it's a very good bet that the Justice Department will not drop this phase of its investigation; that it will continue to seek what information, if any, the old left-wing Federal Workers union and its key members have of the 10-year-old Communist spy ring.

Miss Nelson, a former Labor Department employe, was president of the United Federal Workers (CIO). When her union was merged with the State, County and Municipal Workers into the United Public Workers, she was made secretary-treasurer. That was in 1946. Miss Nelson didn't show up at the convention this year and it was announced that she was in ill health. It was also rumored that Miss Nelson had had a break with the blatent left-wing clique that operates UPWA.

Meantime, the House Committee on Un-American Activities is looking into a reported spy ring that once operated at the Army's Aberdeen, Md., Proving Grounds.

DRAFT: War Service and temporary employes who are drafted for military service after the end of this month will not have a legal claim to their jobs after they are discharged. The change in its rules was announced yesterday by the Civil Service Commission. The law guarantees reemployment rights only to classified employes.

Civil Service explains that it was changing its regulations in order not to build up false hopes of reemployment by the drafted employes. By the time most of them will complete military service, it's pointed out, their jobs will have been filled by status employes who were chosen on a competitive basis. The status employes, of course, would retain their jobs since they would have preference for them.

Actually, the order won't affect many draftees since more jobs daily are being added to the classified list.

LEAVE: Two new sick leave changes were ordered yesterday by Civil Service. They are:

(1) A war service or temporary employe who is fired because of a Civil Service displacement order will be recredited with his unused sick leave if he gets another Federal job within a year, and (2) employes who, between January 1, 1945, and July 1, 1946, transferred to other Federal jobs under special leave acts will be recredited with their unused sick leave when they reenter the classified service.

JOBS: Civil Service will announce an exam soon for cartographic survey aide jobs in Commerce's Coast and Geodetic Survey. The jobs pay from $2152 to $3727 to start . . . An exam to fill 80 bacteriologist jobs in the Food and Drug Administration also is in the works. The jobs pay from $3727 to $7432 to start . . . Exams are open for nurses aide jobs at Bolling Field ($2284) and employe relations assistant ($3727 to $4479) for openings in nearby States.

U. S. Rests In Trial of Son in Death Of Mother

His Statement Read in Court; Jury Told Victim Was 'Very Drunk'

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

James W. Hawkins, jr., stocky, bushy-browed 23-year-old bricklayer killed his mother, 44, in self defense with a knife with which she had attacked him, a District Court jury was told yesterday.

The allegation was contained in a statement which the youth made to police shortly after the tragedy last July 20. The statement was read in court before Federal Judge David A. Pine. Hawkins is accused of second-degree murder, a crime carrying a penalty of 15 years to life.

After the reading and testimony by Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg that tests showed the mother had been "very drunk" at the time of her death, the Government's case was rested by Prosecutors Richard Roberts and John Conliff.

Drank 3 Bottles of Whisky

Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford indicated he would complete his case today after a motion to dismiss the murder charge in favor of manslaughter, which carries a 5 to 15 year penalty.

In the statement, young Hawkins told how he and his father returned to their home, 605 Sheridan st. nw., from work at about 4:40 p. m. on July 19.

He said his mother was in a surly mood, complaining that her eyes ached.

After describing how he, his parents and his wife, Myrene, 22, drank about three one-fifth gallon bottles of whisky, Hawkins, in his statement, said he walked into the kitchen from the living room, where he had been listening to "The Johnson Family" and a crime thriller, "The Falcon," on the radio.

According to the statement, his wife was sitting on the kitchen table while the elder Hawkins was seated near her.

"As I passed through the door," the statement went on, "my wife snatched her dress down."

Row with Father

Hawkins' statement described an altercation with his father over the incident and intercession by his mother in behalf of the elder Hawkins.

According to the statement, Myrene left the house, the father went upstairs to bed and young Hawkins decided to pack his things and take off for Texas.

The statement said the mother agreed to the plan and helped her son pack canned meat and beans, but after a few drinks she changed her mind and forbade him to leave.

An argument ensued, the statement said, and the mother grabbed a knife.

"I took the knife away from my mother after she made a lunge," the statement read. "I grabbed her arm and then proceeded to protect myself. She was in a rampage. There was also a knife in the kitchen. I didn't know whether or not she would get that after I went to sleep," the statement said.

Elsewhere in the document Hawkins admitted stabbing his mother in the neck.

According to the statement, Hawkins then left, tried to hitch a ride, returned to the house and fell asleep to be awakened by his wife, who hysterically pointed to the dead body of Mrs. Hawkins sprawled on the davenport, the 9-inch knife blade in her neck.

Hawkins, in the statement, contended that his mother had threatened his life a number of times.

Mothers Freed Of Charges of Shoplifting

The two women, both of them mothers of small children, were accused of shoplifting.

In their possession, police had found two sets of 39-cent earrings, a dress, a dime-store horn, another toy, a pair of imitation pearls, two pairs of baby shoes.

But yesterday, because it was Christmas time, they were free, their Municipal Court cases nolle prossed.

"After all," said First Precinct Detectives Clarence R. Weinmiller and Assistant United States Attorney Andrew J. Howard, "they were penniless, had no previous records, and the stores they stole from agreed to drop the charges."

The women were identified as Mrs. Hope Settles, 23, and Mrs. Marion Thompson, 18, both of No. 47 D st. se.

They were planning to use the items for presents, Weinmiller said.

Backing Truck Kills Builder As Son, Workmen See Tragedy

A truck, backing up, ran over and killed a construction superintendent on a housing job about 4:30 p.m. yesterday in the 200 block on Dale dr., Silver Spring, Md.

Fred L. Manuel, 65, of 431 Cedar st. nw., the superintendent, apparently died instantly before the eyes of several workmen as they shouted at the truck driver to stop. One witness was Manuel's son, Stanley, who was so overcome by shock he was taken to Washington Sanitarium, and later was sent home.

Manuel was directing workmen building houses for Mack Stoller & Son, carpenters, 420 Deerfield dr., Silver Spring. He had been with Stoller 15 years. Manuel had just finished surveying, had picked up his transit, and was walking toward a new house, when the truck backed into him, and ran over his shoulders and back.

James Howell, 1815 18th st. nw., a bulldozer operator, said he was one of the workmen who saw the accident and shouted at the truck driver.

The driver, William L. Davis, 29, of 331 McLean ave. sw., was held by Montgomery County police in $500 bond on a manslaughter charge for a hearing January 11 in Silver Spring Police Court.

An unidentified man, about 65 years old, was critically injured when he was struck by a car in the 5300 block of 16th st. nw., about 10 p. m. yesterday.

Police said the man, who apparently was walking in the street, was admitted to Garfield Hospital with a fractured skull, compound fracture of the right leg and other cuts and bruises. Police identified the driver of the car as Robert A. Haynie, 53, of 8711 Second ave., Silver Spring, Md.

Mail Truck Not Stolen, Police Learn

After 45 harried, questing minutes, the entire police force yesterday found the stolen mail truck it had been searching for—and found at the same time it hadn't been stolen after all.

While scout car and motorcycle men throughout the city searched for the truck, Lee S. Bealle, a Postoffice supervisor, drove it unobserved from the 3700 block of 16th st. nw. to the National Guard Armory, 2001 East Capitol st.

Shortly before 1 p. m. the driver of the truck, whom they identified as James B. Kennedy of 3701 16th st. nw., parked the truck in front of his home while he and his two helpers went to lunch.

The supervisor, out on a routine check, saw the truck unattended, and when the driver did not come back in a few minutes, decided to take the truck back to the armory. Shortly after he drove off, Kennedy came out and found the truck missing. He reported it to police.

Barrett Urges Series of Don'ts For Inaugural

Police Chief Would Have Commission Ban Toy Revolvers, Confetti, Handbills

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett yesterday asked the District Commissioners to approve a list of "don'ts" to be observed during inauguration week, including a ban on confetti throwing.

Commissioner John Russell Young sent the proposed 28 regulations down to Corporation Counsel Vernon West to check their legality. West announced that, with few exceptions, the rules were identical with those adopted during the 1941 inauguration.

Here are some of the proposals:

No box, barrel, cable, ladder, chair or other obstruction shall be offered for sale or for hire to be placed along the lines of march nor shall any person use one.

Handbills Banned

Posting of handbills, circular cards and so forth on the reviewing stands, lampposts, electric light poles and such places, to be prohibited.

No owner or lessee of a building on the line of march or in an adjacent area can permit use of his porch or balcony to spectators without getting a permit from the inspector of buildings.

No person shall on the public street engage in sale, distribution or use of confetti, kindred substance nor of devices capable of annoying any other person.

Toy Revolvers Out

No person shall give, sell, or offer for sale, or carry or display, any imitation or toy revolver.

No person shall sell, offer for sale or distribute any article in such a manner as to cause inconvenience, annoyance or discomfort to the general public. Nor shall any person, by loud or unnecessary outcry, advertise any article for sale or distribution.

Barrett urged that any person violating these regulations be made liable to a fine up to $100 or imprisonment up to 60 days.

Appeal for Suffrage Float

In the meantime, protests were initiated by several local organizations against the Inaugural Committee stand prohibiting a District float that would point up the suffrage question.

Taft Feiman, chairman of the Greater Washington Area Council of the American Veterans Committee, sent a letter to Carter Barron, chairman of the parade and special events committee for the inaugural, appealing for reconsideration of a float that "would depict the District lack of home rule." Barron had ruled out such a float as too "controversial" and "political."

Feiman declared that "the disenfranchisement of District citizens is not controversial nor even political since all parties have within their platforms a plank calling for suffrage for the District."

Benjamin C. Sigal, president of the District Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action, sent a letter to the Commissioners urging them to "place a suffrage float in the inaugural parade."

Wilbur S. Finch, president of the Central Suffrage Conference, said he was planning to write a letter to the Commissioners asking that they "let the float have the suffrage motif." He said his organization would "probably be interested in having a separate float" if all proposals to play up the suffrage question are flatly rejected.

Melvin D. Hildreth, 1949 Inaugural Committee chairman, asked whether opposition of local groups had altered his position against a suffrage float for the District, announced through a spokesman that his "position in favor of suffrage is well known" but that to stress suffrage would not be "appropriate" in the January 20 parade.

The Democratic Central Committee for the District, which some time ago voted to have its own suffrage float, is slated to meet at 4 p. m. today in the Ring Bldg. to decide what action to take now that the Commissioners have agreed to sponsor a purely historic float. Hildreth is a national Democratic committeeman from the District.

With 2 Wives

Court Hears Love Letters Of a Sailor

The love letters Chief Pharmacist Mate Laurence Cash Garrett wrote to the wife he wants to leave were read yesterday in District Court in front of the wife he wants to keep.

The big and balding sailor who has been in the Navy for 26 years seemed a little embarrassed by the missives as he grinned shyly on the witness stand.

Garrett wants his 1937 marriage to brunette Mrs. Margaret Compton Garrett annulled. He contends that he was drunk at the time of the marriage and also was still wed to the woman he now prefers, blonde Ruth Matilda Garrett. He married Ruth in 1936, he declared.

One letter to Margaret which he admitted sending in 1937 read:

"My Darling Little Wife:

"I wonder how you are getting along. I am so lonesome for you I don't know what to do.

"Be a sweet little girl and remember I am thinking of you.

"Your loving husband,

"Laurence."

In another, he closed with "Be a sweet little girl and kiss Helen, and remember I love you both."

Helen is Margaret's 14-year-old daughter. Garrett admits he is the girl's father.

Margaret has yet to take the witness stand in her cross-complaint for a divorce on the grounds of adultery with Ruth.

As to the marriage to Margaret, Garrett said it took place in Ellicott City, Md. He stated he was intoxicated and not responsible at the time. On cross-examination, he admitted that he drove the automobile to and from Washington for the wedding.

At another point, he testified he helped Margaret and her child move in 1938, using his Navy truck to do it. Also, he said that when he was in charge of a Navy laundry here, he had her washing done.

The case is to be continued today in the courtroom of Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

Boys Club Of Trinidad Seeks $25,000

The Trinidad Boys Club opened a 1949 fund drive last night under new leadership following resignation of its former directors in a disagreement over affiliation with Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs.

Goal of the drive is $25,000. A new slate of officers, with John F. Miller, 5625 67th ave., East Pines, Md., as president, will head the club along with 20 other new directors.

This year's officers and directors resigned last week after a score of members' fathers opposed unconditional affiliation with the Metropolitan Police Clubs.

The police clubs' executive board had rejected an application by the Trinidad club, submitted with the conditions that the club retain its name and present facilities at 1119 Wylie st. ne., remain a club for white boys, keep its Mother's Club organization, and retain representation on the metropolitan clubs' board of directors.

A suggestion by former directors that Trinidad affiliate with police clubs anyway and become Metropolitan Police Boys' Club No. 9 met with protest and led to the resignation.

The main reason for the affiliation proposal was a pressing need for financial support, club officials explained.

Board of Trade Plans Segregation Report Study

A special committee to study the recent report on segregation in Washington will be set up within the Washington Board of Trade, it was announced yesterday.

At the monthly meeting of the executive committee of the board of directors, Leon Chatelain, jr., Board of Trade president, was authorized to name a special group to study the report released December 10 by the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital.

The Board's cultural development committee is exploring the possibility of cooperating with the National Symphony sustaining fund campaign, to begin next February, provided the goal provides for the Watergate summer concert series in 1949, it was revealed.

Definite recommendations will be made by the committee after conferences with the leaders of the symphony campaign.

On Steve Roper's Trail to Fame, a Redskin Bit the Dust

By Fred Laughlin

Never high-hat the lad who hands out the doughnuts over the bakeshop counter.

He may be another Elmer Woggon. Elmer actually was working on the counter of a doughnut dispensary when he first started dreaming of being a comic-strip artist.

Across the street was a young chap named Allen Saunders who had started out teaching Romance languages at Wabash College. He went from this work into batting out a panel cartoon for a large syndicate. This feature was entitled "Miserable Moments." He had been at it only a short period of time when the most miserable moment of all came, and he was notified by the syndicate that newspapers were rejecting his brain child in large numbers, and would he please find himself another job.

Eventually, our doughnut salesman got himself out from behind the counter and got a job as artist for the Toledo Bade. Then he became the creator of one of the first, if not the first aviation strips, "Skylark." This effort was quickly grounded. In the meantime, Saunders had become a dramatic critic, and Woggon eventually became an art director.

It was inevitable that they should eventually get together, both of them were biting their fingernails and dreaming of a comic strip.

Allen Saunders (left), continuity writer, and Elmer Woggon, artist, do a bit of research on lights and lenses for their "Steve Roper" strip

Woggon got the idea of a little Indian named "Chief Wahoo," and Saunders wrote the story.

Their joint effort made its appearance in the fall of 1936 in 74 newspapers. But as time went on, it became very obvious that the slap-stick humor of the little Indian was not too uproarious, and so the spotlight was changed to a stalwart, paleface friend of the chief, a handsome, two-fisted photographer named Steve Roper. The chief was sent back to the reservation, and the strip became Steve Roper. In came a surrounding cast of colorful characters, and up went the popularity of the strip to the point where it now appears in 135 newspapers in the United States and Canada.

As they both live in Toledo, they work together like a couple of brothers. When Woggon is not drawing Steve Roper, he is busy with amateur movie-making. For this hobby, he probably has more equipment than Paramount Pictures.

They have come a long way, this former farm boy from Indiana, and the former doughnut wrestler. And according to reports from The Washington Post comic fans, their efforts certainly are appreciated.

Medical Society To Hear Dr. Lull

Dr. George F. Lull, of Chicago, secretary and general manager of the American Medical Association, will speak here Wednesday night at special meeting of the District Medical Society, it was announced yesterday.

Purpose of the talk, it was learned, will be to explain the aims and operations of the special assessment fund voted in a recent AMA convention to fight national compulsory health insurance. The assessment of $25 for each AMA member is designed to raise $3,500,000.

Protests by local physicians against the secret manner in which the levy was voted led to a request by the society for official explanation of the measure, it was said. Dr. Lull's talk will be preceded by a business meeting of the society which had been scheduled before the assessment controversy arose.

Dr. Cumming, Once Surgeon General, Dies

Dr. Hugh Smith Cumming, 79, Surgeon General of the United States from 1920 to 1936, was fatally stricken at 6 p. m. yesterday at his home, 2219 California st. nw.

Dr. Cumming

Ill since November, 1947, when he suffered a stroke, Dr. Cumming was hospitalized at Walter Reed General Hospital until last June, when he returned home.

He began his long career with the United States Public Health Service as an assistant surgeon in 1894. He advanced through the ranks, serving in this country and abroad, to the Nation's highest medical post, and was Surgeon General for 16 years. He retired February 1, 1936.

A native of Hampton, Va., Dr. Cumming took an M. D. degree from the University of Virginia in 1893 and another the following year from the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond.

The early part of his public health service was spent at seaports in Southern States, where he aided in preventing entry of yellow fever and smallpox from infested ships.

The interest he formed then in quarantine work remained throughout his career. Subsequently, he went to Japan in 1906 to spend four years in preventing vessels from sailing for this country when bubonic plague cases were aboard.

Appointed Surgeon General by President Wilson in 1920, he reorganized the USPHS hospital division, expanding it to care for medical needs of World War veterans until the Veterans' Administration was set up.

During his term as Surgeon General he also completed the national quarantine system, established a leprosarium for care of lepers in the United States, helped put through legislation for new Marine hospitals throughout the country, and developed research and field investigative activities of the Public Health Service.

Dr. Cumming was a member of the American delegation to the conference at Cannes, France, which resulted in formation of the old League of Nations. During the first World War, he served with the Navy.

He was a member of numerous medical and honorary organizations, and held honorary degrees from the University of Pennsylvania, Yale University and the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Cumming leaves his wife, Mrs. Lucy Booth Cumming, of the California st. address; a son, Hugh Smith Cumming, jr., counselor to the American Embassy at Stockholm, Sweden, and a daughter, Mrs. Diana Cumming Kendrick, of Sheridan, Wyo. Two grandsons also survive.

Imported Stocks Of Newsprint Ruled Taxable

Imported newsprint paper stocks are subject to the District's tax on tangible personal property, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The court holding that the tax assessor was correct in levying a $727 tax on Canadian paper [illegible] by the Mercury Press, Inc., last year.

The company contended that the tax was unconstitutional in that all imposts by Federal authority must be uniform throughout the countries. But the appeals court said that Congress may constitutionally impose imposts in the territories which it governs directly without making such taxes generally applicable to the country at large. What is needed in any case is the consent of Congress to the tax, and the resultant proceeds must go to the Federal Treasury, the court said.

Rape charges against Paul Theodore Kratzmaier, 39, of 1420 21st st. nw., scheduled for hearing yesterday in Bethesda Police Court were continued to Thursday in Rockville Police Court.

A continuance was also granted to Joseph A. Wagstaff, 24, of 5506 Grove st., Bethesda, until January 10 in Bethesda Police Court on charges he assaulted a maid in his home with a paring knife.

U. S. Land Taxing In Md., Va. Favored

Taxing of Federal Government lands in Maryland and Virginia was approved "in general" last nightby the Interfederation Council meeting in the Evening Star Building.

The group, composed of representatives of federated citizens' groups of the District and of adjacent counties, accepted without dissent a report of its committee on law and legislation offered by Daniel M. Greene of the Prince Georges County Federation.

Following an outline of previously unsuccessful attempts to obtain congressional action on the subject, the report recommended that such legislation be sought on specific projects rather than on a national, or even a State, basis.

Legislation for payment by the Federal Government of tuition fees for children of residents of Federal property was also recommended in the report. The situation existing at the Glendale Sanitarium where children cannot attend Maryland schools without charge unless they are legal residents was pointed out.

Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, first vice president presiding in the absence of President William G. Watt, referred the report, after its acceptance, to the federation's committee on fiscal relations and taxation for specific recommendations regarding federal projects which would be taxed.

Mrs. Sartwell appointed a committee headed by Fred W. Gast, Prince Georges delegate, to nominate a slate of officers for election at the January meeting.

Christmas Party Given By Capital View Group

The Capital View Civic Association dispensed with formal business last night to enjoy a Christmas program sponsored by the association at the George W. Richardson School, 53d and Blaine sts. ne.

Shepherd Park Group Protests Transit Change

The Shepherd Park Citizens Association last night directed its public utilities committee to ask Congress or the Public Utilities Commission to change existing regulations governing bus or streetcar service.

The group, meeting at 14th st and Kalmia rd. nw., objected to what it said was the present system of changing transit service without holding public hearings. Members cited a Capital Transit Co. change last January, on 16th st. north of Walter Reed Hospital, which reduced shuttle bus service from every 15 minutes to every half hour. Members said public hearings were not held until after the change became effective.

The association also directed its delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations to favor a proposed change in the constitution of that body making all past officers of the federation delegates to the federation for 10 years.

Association Praises Segregation Report

The Public Interest Civic Association last night praised the recent report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capitol and sought Negro representation on the Inaugural Committee. The association met at Calvary Episcopal Church, 11th and G sts. ne. For the appointment to the Inaugural Committee, it recommended Ernest F. Harper, president of the Federation of Civic Associations.

Gift Hunters Go to Dogs at District Pound

The District pound is doing a brisk business selling pups for Yuletide gifts.

Yesterday there were still a few pups left and a pretty good assortment of larger dogs but at $2 per pet the poundmaster and his attendants were doing a brisk business hunting just the right size to fill a Christmas stocking.

What's more, everybody was happy about the whole affair. Poundmaster Frank B. Marks, who says he "hates to have to destroy the little fellows when they get too numerous," was glad to be relieved of that sad chore and the dogs themselves seemed to be eagerly awaiting a chance to crawl under a sofa again.

One good reason the dogs were finding homes, Marks said, was a picture of two of the "little fellows" appearing in the Sunday edition of The Washington Post and a story telling readers about the pets he had at the pound.

The poundmaster and his attendants are on hand at the kennels, South Capitol and I sts. sw., every weekday from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. and are willing to show prospective customers every dog on the place.

All the dogs, setters, collies, scotties, tiny terriers or great danes, sell for the same price, $2. District residents must purchase a dog license at the pound for $3.

Police Honor Private Davis On Retirement

"After 24 years of pounding the pavements on 9th st., I'm just going to loaf," declared Police Pvt. Samuel Davis 57, who attended his last roll call at the First Precinct Station House yesterday afternoon.

Davis

It was a special roll call in honor of Davis, who received an engraved white gold wrist watch from his fellow workers at the precinct. He retired December 1.

Originally from New York, Davis joined the force in 1924 and was assigned to the First Precinct, the headquarters of which was at 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

"I moved right along when the station house was moved to the 400 block of New Jersey ave. nw., and again when it was recently moved to police headquarters in the Municipal Center," he explained.

"Most of those years I walked the pavements on 9th st., from Pennsylvania ave. to F st," he mused.

The biggest case he remembered was working on a double shooting in a downtown hotel, resulting from a gamblers' feud in the early 1930s. He participated in a chase of one of the armed men in the case.

He and his wife live at 3125 N. 8th st., Arlington. They have four sons and a daughter.

"My wife and I are going to stay right on here. We've got two grandchildren and just can't leave them," he declared.

Electric Theater Shows Push-Button Home

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

The American home—1949, push-button model—passed in review on the stage of the new Electric Playhouse here yesterday.

The occasion was the opening of a theater that has been three years in the making and is as full of engaging gadgets as the model rooms on its movable, crescent-shaped stage.

Sponsored by the Electric Institute, a promotional organization of appliance dealers, distributors, manufacturers, contractors and Potomac Electric Power Co., it is located in the Pepco Building, 10th and E sts. nw.

The all-metal stage, a three-part affair, rolls around on a semicircular track at the flick of a switch. Living room, kitchen, utility room and porch appear alternately between the curtains. The stage can be cleared entirely by switching the living room set off on another track into the lobby of the Electric Institute, where it serves as a display.

Seat backs in the auditorium tip up so that luncheon can be served on them. Concealed ultra-violet lamps give startling "black-lighting" effects. "Sterilamps" in the ceiling fixtures purify the air.

Special wiring in the back of the auditorium makes it possible to televise the show at any time. A huge, movable switch panel and cabinet makes elaborate colored lighting displays part of the program. Draftless heating and air-conditioning come through pin-prick holes in the ceiling.

At yesterday's opening, District Commissioners and Washington business executives heard from A. G. Neal, president of Potomac Electric Power Co., that to his knowledge the installation has no parallel anywhere in the world.

Next month the playhouse will become a mecca for women's groups from all over Greater Washington. They will hold luncheons there, see what's new and what's coming in modern electrical living.

Though the model rooms on the stage are replete with every sort of electrical work saver, there isn't a fuse box in the whole setup. Replacing the fuse—so often the object of frantic search in pitch-dark cupboards—is an automatic switch that flicks off the circuit as soon as a short occurs.

Six different kinds of lighting illuminate the model living room. There's "down" lighting from bulbs concealed in the ceiling, cover lighting from the drapery valances, "soffit" lighting that shines through a glass brick strip, an "ornament" light for the figurines on the table, recessed lighting in mantel and bookcases, and lamps that combine fluorescent and incandescent lamps. Main idea is to show different types of light, rather than suggest using all in the same room, but the general effect is soft and attractive.

Range, sink, washer, dishwasher and other kitchen and laundry equipment are in full working order, regardless of the fact that the stages are movable. Folding cables, hose, and water traps beneath the rooms make this possible. The kitchen will be used for cooking demonstrations by Miss Mary Turner, director of Potomac Electric Home Service, and members of her staff. Mrs. Clayton Smith will serve as director of the Playhouse.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Rejected by Mother and Ill-Behaved Toward Father's Second Wife, Girl, 11, Constitutes Family Problem; Is Boarding Home Advisable?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband's daughter Beverly, 11, spends her summers with us since we married and returns to her mother (who has her custody) for the school term.

Her mother, though married again, works continuously for funds to spend on clothes, beauty care, etc., and consequently Beverly has had very little home life such as a young child needs.

She is disobedient, quarrelsome and impudent with her father and me, can't hold friends either at school or here, seems always to have a chip on her shoulder, and if we try conversationally to show her where she is wrong, she shrugs us off with "I can't help it."

I have two children by a former marriage, too; and in addition Dan and I now have two lovely children of our own. Also, we are expecting another baby next spring and I must have a major operation soon after—all of which is background for the immediate problem.

Child's Mother Has Final Say

EARLY in October, Beverly's mother sent her to us to stay until Christmas, prefacing this with a long-distance telephone call. Now, our home, ordinarily peaceful even with four children, is a bedlam of quarrels and falsehoods, and the situation is making nervous wrecks of Dan and me.

In the circumstances, we feel we can't call on Beverly's mother to take her, because we've learned that the mother has left her husband tentatively, is seeing other men and inducing younger matrons to drink and carouse with her. But something must be done, for Beverly's sake to help straighten her out, and also to protect our young children from her behavior. She even fights with them.

It has been suggested that we place her in a boarding home. Is this a good idea? I'm not sure the mother would consent; and she, being the guardian, would have final say, of course; but Dan and I would be grateful for your comment. E. T.

Family Influences Injurious to Girl

DEAR E. T.: It's certainly true that Beverly's plight calls to high heaven for succor. She should be rescued from her "rejected" status, both in her mother's custody and yours.

Almost any spirited child, similarly shunted from pillar to post 'twixt mother and stepmother, equally vexed by her wretched personality and need of care, would become progressively furtive, defiant, defensive and difficult over the years.

What chance has she to relax and "be herself" constructively, in wholesome outflow of happy loving relatedness to anybody?

Emotional energies must be spent, if not in love, then in hate; and parents, but especially mothers or their proxies, by their innermost feelings, about a child, determine which attitude—love or hate—the child shall take towards intimates and society.

Stepmother's Soul Isn't Sympathetic

GRANTED that Beverly's mother has failed her terribly, still what have you done to repair the deficit? Search the record of your feelings about Beverly and face the fact that, all the while going through motions of including her in the family circle—as a wifely bid for Dan's esteem,—your essential attitude has been one of taut intolerance. Beverly feels this in her bones, and it's tragically true that she can't help how she acts in consequence.

You've never emotionally identified yourself with her; never sensed sympathetically the fierce distress—the fears, anxiety, loneliness—that underlie and animate her outlaw behavior. You've seen her only as a nuisance, to be adroitly underlined as such in Dan's eyes; and what's he doing for his child? Looking to you in vain, it seems, for redemptive mother-care of her, and matching your galled reactions with anger-symptoms of his own.

It seems a shabby device to railroad Beverly to a boarding home; but if your soul is too petty, too engrossed in "me and mine" to vouchsafe her mother-love according to her need, she'd be better off in impersonal surroundings than in your household, I think. However, for Beverly's sake, I'd favor a girls' boarding school as the best face-saving substitute for "home" in family emergency. M. H.

How to Remove Coating From Linoleum

How can I remove a plastic coating from printed linoleum? E. F. L.

You may have to try more than one solvent before you find one which will be successful. Start by using lacquer thinner, which can be purchased at paint stores. If that doesn't remove it, try a good commercial paint and varnish remover. When using this, be sure to work over only a small area at a time and wash the area as soon as the coating has been removed, before it has time to attack the linoleum.

What will remove nail polish remover from a bleached mahogany vanity? L. K.

If the remover has completely taken off the finish, the only satisfactory way to remove the spot is to refinish the top completely. Sometimes such spots can be made less conspicuous, however, by rubbing powdered pumice and oil into them with the ball of the thumb to smooth it. Then clean the area by wiping with oil, and polish the surface with furniture polish or wax.

I have a new wool suede coat which wrinkles badly when I sit down or when I fold it on my lap as in the movies. Is there any establishment in Washington which could process it so as to make it noncrushable and wrinkle resistant? M. M.

I know of no process, either home or commercial which will proof the coat against wrinkles.

I am to be a bridesmaid in a wedding late in December and would like to know if there is a store in the city that would be interested in buying the gown after it has been worn once? E. K.

There is a shop in Alexandria which sells used clothes for their customers and they tell me they have a big demand for good evening dresses. They can be reached by calling Alexandria 0649. Another shop that might be interested is located on Massachusetts ave., nw, and can be telephoned at Columbia 0005.

Our lace tablecloth needs to be washed. Which is more advisable after washing; to stretch on curtain stretcher or to hang "square" on the clothesline? C. T.

Either method will give good results, but some prefer using the stretcher because with that method there is no crease down the center.

I noticed an inquiry in your column the other day about removing lipstick. I have found a new spot and stain remover, made by a well-known manufacturer of cleaning fluid, to be most effective. It removes lipstick, fruit stains, grease, chocolate, paint, blood, etc. It comes in a pink-and-white can with a bright yellow label and is sold in housewares sections of department stores, etc. I recently removed fresh white paint from a green weathervane suit and ink from a brown cheviot skirt with it. M. E. S.

Would you tell me where in this area I would be able to find high shoes in a soft red leather for a 2-year-old? E. G. H.

A check of several large Washington shoe stores which specialize in children's shoes fails to find one which has the kind you wish. Can any of our readers help E. G. H.?

How do I clean brushes with hardened paint in them? "Petunia" says to use a little lye in water, but what proportion? Lye is apt to eat the brush. E. M.

I have not been able to find the proportion of lye to use to clean brushes, but soaking the brushes in turpentine or benzine will clean them. Also, there are on the market several good brush cleaners which are sold where paints are sold. It is not always possible to remove paint completely when it has been allowed to harden in the brush.

A hole was gouged in my inlaid linoleum kitchen floor by a person teetering on one leg of a chair. How can this place be repaired? E. W. K.

Smooth the edges of the linoleum with fine steel wool. Then for a filler take a small piece of the linoleum in the color to match the damaged spot, pulverize it, and mix with a small quantity of spar varnish to make a paste. Force the paste into the hole and allow to dry hard. The surface, when hard can be smoothed with steel wool and the spot polished with paste wax.

How can I remove soft drink stains from a colored cotton dress without taking out the color? R. D.

Sponge the stain with water or with a mixture of equal parts alcohol and water. Then pour glycerine or liquid shampoo on the stain and rub between the fingers. Let stand for 30 minutes and rinse. If the stains are not completely removed, repeat.

Would you give the proper proportion of water and gum arabic for making starch for nylon curtains? M. H.

Add one pint of boiling water to one ounce of powdered gum arabic and stir over low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved.

How do you thin old, leftover paint in the can so you can use it? E. M.

Paint can be thinned by adding turpentine. If there is a very thick layer or crust on the top, this should be removed before adding the turpentine so it isn't stirred into the paint.

What will get fingernail polish out of a chair upholstered in Broccatelle? P. F.

Wet the stain well with carbon tetrachloride and then apply a drop of banana oil. Brush lightly with a soft cloth, always using an upward motion to pick up the dissolved polish without spreading it.

New Idea for Custard

Graham crackers can be used to liven up your custard recipe. Mix 1½ cups graham cracker crumbs with a few tablespoons of sugar and about 1/3-cup melted butter or margarine. Then spread the crumb mixture over the bottom of a pieplate, pressing down evenly with the palm of the hand, and chill about an hour. Now you are ready to add the custard filling. A filling of fruit and whipped cream would be delicious in the graham cracker shell, too.

Quick Chocolate Sauce

Relaxing Pastime

Capital Needleworkers Busy Stitching Suspenders, Slippers, Rugs and Chairs

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WHAT are the little women doing these days? According to Alice Carson, a surprising number are plying their needles with decoratively satisfactory results. Miss Carson commenced needlework design as a hobby. The Carson needle pictures gradually drifted into her mother's Greenwich, Conn., decorating shop; then the demand pyramided to full-time business in an N st. house. Last autumn about a tenth of all prize winners in New York's American Needlework Guild of Today exhibition were Carson created and later loaned to the Metropolitan Museum's design show.

The designs, most of them special orders, are first drawn, then transferred to French canvas. Wools are dyed to match. Silk thread is seldom used these days, since it has to be imported from France at great cost.

Needlework, it seems, can be stitched on almost anything. Right now Miss Carson is whipping up such inconsequential trifles as eyeglass cases, suspenders, slippers; spreading herself on such monster tasks as parlor rugs.

Relaxing Technique

NEEDLEWORK, she claims, is a great relaxer, especially recommended as a soother to high-strung lady writers. Marcia Davenport, author of "Valley of Decision", completed a set of chair seats, imaginative scenes designed around Grimm's fairy-tale character. Another Davenport chef d'oeuvre is a wing chair, lent to the Metropolitan exhibition, in all-over greenery-and-animals copied from Sam Lewissohn's famous Rousseau.

Maxine Davis, who makes exotic and everyday ailments such fascinating reading, did an elegant bit of Chinoiserie fauteuils for her Georgetown house. Clare Luce stitched for her Harry a desk top with all Luce-owned magazine covers, and a coffee table top with the Capital, Willkie buttons and other mementos from her prosperously crammed life. La Davenport also covered her desk with needlework representations of her best seller covers.

Most ambitious project hereabouts is Mrs. L. M. C. Smith's fire screen—architectural fragments from Washington houses she occupied—doorways, gardens and such from Bancroft pl., Reservoir rd, N and O sts.

Current Projects

MRS. THOMAS STONE, wife of the Canadian Minister, is making suspenders for her husband; Mrs. W. Jasper Dubose is working on a fireside bench covered with every size elephant; Mrs. Lewis Strauss, whose husband is on the Atomic Energy Commission, is busied with 10 chair seats featuring vegetables; Mrs. Casanove Lee has her sisters needling a bench, with the Capital, the Lee Rhode Island summer place, plus the Lee crest, all suitably entwined.

Mrs. McCook Knox is stitching one of the newer whimsies—her own zodiac sign to be made into a bag. Mrs. Charles Saltzman, whose husband is an Assistant Secretary of State, will finish a pair of slippers by Christmas.

Most ambitious of all are the Joseph Reeds (he's brother of one-time theatrical producer Verner Z. Reed), who jointly are doing a circular rug. It's 12½ feet in diameter, depicts possessions they're fond of, eatables grown on their farm, and will be conversation piece for their circular library. The Reeds are allotting a four-year span for the rug's completion.

Women Wielded More Power In '33 Than Now, Club Told

"Women have very little real power in Washington today. In fact, they possess less than in 1933 when Frances Perkins was Secretary of Labor and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was named to a top diplomatic post," declared Doris Fleeson, syndicated columnist, in a luncheon address yesterday before members of the Women's National Democratic Club.

Calling upon the gentler sex to assert "your role in Washington in a constructive way," Mrs. Fleeson said, "because women are disregarded they have to fight for themselves."

She told the all-feminine audience that it should weigh what it could contribute to, rather than what it can get out of, Government. "It will be interesting to see whether the Republicans will give Senator-elect Margaret Chase Smith a place on the committees she deserves or pass her up because she's a woman," speculated Miss Fleeson.

Referring to the role women played in the 1948 presidential election, the speaker said, "You played a large part in the victory but not as politicians. Most of the women felt 'the little man,' Harry Truman, needed them in his valiant fight. So you responded." "A woman can't resist aiding a man who she thinks needs her," she added smilingly.

One of the greatest dangers facing the Democratic Party and the people, is that they will relax and depend upon the "Miracle Man" Truman to put through his program, according to Miss Fleeson. "You can't be sure Congress will pass his program," she warned. "For the last four years domestic policy was largely at a standstill due to a coalition of conservative Republicans and Democrats. There is a danger that coalition now will be re-formed."

Alluding to the ideological fight between the United States and Russia, she concluded, "We have won the cold war right here in the election. We have proved that Stalin and his Communists are liars . . . that the people can have a decent way of living without a revolution and communism."

Mrs. Julian Friant presided and introduced the speaker. Guests at the head table included Mrs. William Webb, Mrs. India Edwards, head of the women's division, Democratic National Committee; Mrs. Walter Maloney, who was guest soloist at the club's annual Christmas party Sunday; Mrs. Vincent Burke, Mrs. Ambrose O'Connor.

Special guests were Miss Reathel Odum, secretary to Mrs. Truman; Mrs. Lynn Nichols, head of the research department of the women's division, Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. James Murray, daughter-in-law of Senator and Mrs. Murray.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bradley School Roster Sounds a Bit Like Royal Flush

Max Karant, editorial director of Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, informs me that Bethesda's Bradley School has three boys named:

Barry King, Norman Queen, and Bobby Prince.

Without even checking, I'm sure they also have a few Jacks —and Jokers.

DISSERTATION ON SPEED

The current edition of the Minnesota Historical Society "News" includes an excerpt from a St. Paul paper published on December 27, 1871.

I reprint it here, for the edification of our traffic officials:

"If there is no ordinance compelling persons who glide around in cutters to have sleigh bells on their horses, there ought to be. Pedestrians who have their ears done up in warm muffs should have some chance for their lives in these days when the streets are so crowded with vehicles. Under any circumstances, it is hardly the proper thing for a man to drive at the rate of 6 or 7 miles an hour through the crowded streets, without making some sort of demonstration. Ring the bells, or look out for those noiseless cutters."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three beautifully marked, clever kittens." (Adams 9728).

"Gray and white male cat, half grown, very playful." (Chestnut 0138 after 6 p. m.).

"Affectionate white kitten, male, about 2 months old." (Republic 1400, Apartment 516).

"Three black and white puppies, 1 week old. Mother was pedigreed cocker." (Hudson 8684 or Republic 7500, Extension 2007).

HE LOVES YOU, BOBSY

The most confusing classified ad of the month appeared recently in our own columns. There must be a story in it, but I can't imagine what. It said:

"BOBSY, I LOVE YOU— Smokering. Don't you want me any more? Presently applesauce."

IS SUMMER OVER?

Dave Polmar, one of the owners of the Deuville Food Shop at 1629 Connecticut ave. nw., confesses that he's been getting a lot of ribbing lately for being ahead of the times.

The Deuville clock is still on Daylight Saving Time, and has become quite an object of interest in the neighborhood of 20th and Connecticut.

Dave explains that when we went back to Standard Time, he put in a call for a service man, to have the clock set back.

But the man never showed up, and the clock kept on pretending that it was still summer, and we were still rushing home at 5:30 for some gardening, a swim, or a quick round of golf.

Now that December has rolled around, Dave philosophizes that he might as well wait a few more months and be back in step again. But some of the customers have taken great delight in needling Dave with:

"Aw, the only reason you didn't get the clock set back is that it costs ten bucks."

UNBELIEVABLE!

Ruth H. Lane of 619 N. Jefferson st., Arlington, Va., tells me:

"Last week-end, we entertained the perfect out-of-town guest. She had already been up to the top of the Monument."

SLICK OPERATOR

The weekend snow brings back memories to A. M. Stephens of Box 1907. He recalls the blizzard of a score of years ago, which left its mark on the city for weeks.

District Liner Stephens remembers struggling manfully to get from his home on Rock Creek Church rd. to a bookstore on 7th st. nw., between H and I.

On entering the store, he noticed a man standing in the front window, peering out into the slippery street. He asked: "Are you the manager?"

"Oh, no," smiled the man in the window. "I'm a lawyer, waiting for somebody out there to break a leg."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Meyer Davis found a Sutton Place apartment and almost succeeded in renting it. But then the renting agency summoned him to its offices where the millionaire bandleader was screened—answering questions just as if he were a job seeker, questions about his background, references, etc. He didn't get the apartment . . . At the Chicago Country Day School, Merle Miller, author of "That Winter," lectured to the parents of the students. A haughty lady heckled him and then asked: "Do you think you can trust the masses with all these ideas?" Miller replied: "I always have, up until now."

Mr. and Mrs. Jock Whitney presented to producer Irene Selznick a two-foot-long replica of the original New Orleans street car named Desire. The presentation was made on the first anniversary of the play.

Jim Michener, the Pulitzer Prize winner, bought a Bucks County house which is so modern that he has had trouble in getting a mortgage. On Saturday night he and his wife went to a party given by Rodgers & Hammerstein, who are adapting his "Tales of the South Pacific" into a musical. Ezio Pinza and Mary Martin sang some of the new songs for the show. "Forget about the mortgage," Mrs. Michener whispered to her husband. "With songs like that, you won't need one."

Burgess Meredith, who went to France to produce and direct "The Man in the Eiffel Tower," didn't have the script ready until shortly before the filming was to start each day. A French screen-writer who watched Meredith working said: "No wonder French movies are better than American ones" . . . "Why, because you have the scenario ready before you start the picture?" asked Meredith . . . "No," explained the Frenchman. "We write the scenario only after the picture is made."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Another Spy Story Is Uncovered

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of Defense Forrestal had a significant conversation with two of his top men the other day—Admiral Sid Souers, secretary of the National Security Council, and Gen. Al Gruenther, director of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

PEARSON

Forrestal said he wanted them to get him a top-secret Army report on Communist espionage inside Japan. Because certain Americans were involved in this pre-Pearl Harbor espionage, the report has been considered highly secret.

However, Forrestal asked Admiral Souers and General Gruenther to "declassify" it (make it nonsecret) immediately.

"I want to give it to Joe Alsop," explained the Secretary of National Defense, referring to one of the newsmen who has consistently trumpeted the idea that Forrestal's continuation in office was essential to the Nation.

The Army promptly cabled General MacArthur asking if he has any objection to making the secret report available to the Alsop brothers (in order to further the Forrestal campaign to remain in office). But althought MacArthur, at this writing, had not replied, here are the main details of the top-secret report which Secretary Forrestal wants given to his pets of the press.

The story is somewhat similar to that being unfolded before a New York grand jury and the Un-American Activities Committee. Just as the Russians planted key men inside the United States Government, so they also began long before the war to plant key spies inside Japan. They began operating about 1934 and continued to 1941—two months before Pearl Harbor.

Two Germans were involved, two Japs educated in the United States, two Americans, and one German-British newspaperman. One of the Americans was Agnes Smedley, who lived 20 years in the Orient, has written many books on China, and who is listed in Who's Who as currently living in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where she has been a teacher at Skidmore College. A telephone call to Saratoga brought the information that she was no longer there.

The other American was Tycho Lilliestrom, United States Vice Consul at Harbin, Manchuria. Born in Finland, Lilliestrom served 21 years in the consular service, and died in 1943. It was in his home in Harbin that the Communist spies assembled a powerful radio set later smuggled into Japan.

So successful was the Russian spy ring in penetrating innermost Japanese government circles, that some of the warlords' most vital secrets were transmitted by short-wave radio to Moscow. The spies learned among other things that:

1. The Jap warlords would definitely attack the United States. This information went to Moscow two months before Pearl Harbor.

2. Japan would not join an alliance against Russia. This was learned in 1937, and caused Stalin, shortly thereafter, to sign the Nazi-Russian alliance, which in turn left Hitler free to wage war against France and England. Undoubtedly this piece of information alone swayed the tides of history.

3. Japan would not attack Russia. This information, sent to Moscow in 1941, caused Stalin to pull all his reserves out of Siberia and concentrate them in front of Moscow. Without this intelligence information, Moscow might have fallen.

Head of the Communist spy ring was Richard Sorge. Born in Baku, a soldier in the German army, he carefully prepared for his work by taking a special espionage course in Moscow and then becoming Far Eastern correspondent for several German newspapers.

In Shanghai he met Agnes Smedley, who put him in touch with Japanese Communists. In Tokyo, posing always as a German newsman, he became press attache to the German Embassy and close friend of the German Ambassador. All the secrets of the embassy passed through his hands.

Sorge's coconspirators were a Los Angeles Japanese woman named Tomo Kitabayani; a Japanese artist from the United States named Totika Miyago; a German businessman and radio operator named Max Klausen, and most important of all, Hozuni Ozaki, a Jap Communist who became an editor of the Tokyo Asahi and a close adviser to the Prime Minister of Japan.

Ozaki had access to some of the highest Japanese government secrets, which were transmitted to Moscow via Sorge and Klausen's shortwave radio.

Klausen sent his messages by going out in a boat, dressed as a fisherman and operating his radio as far as possible from shore. Although the Japs intercepted the messages and tried hard to find the transmitter, they were never able to do so. Nor were they ever able to decipher the code until shortly before Pearl Harbor, when, through an accident, they caught one of the spies, Ritzo Ito, formerly of Los Angeles.

He talked.

After that all were caught, tried, and the two top men—Sorge and Ozaki—beheaded. Klausen gave the Japs the secret code used to transmit the radio messages, whereupon all the back messages were translated.

When General MacArthur granted amnesty to Japanese political prisoners after V-J Day in 1945, he discovered the remnants of the Communist spy ring still in prison and turned them loose. From the Japanese court records, his chief intelligence officer, Gen. Charles Willoughby, pieced together this amazing story of Communist intrigue.

Note—Some of the Japanese spy leaders now head Japanese labor unions, and one, Ritzu Ito, is a leading Communist.

The gentle snow is falling now . . . And all the ground is white . . . And when the sun is beaming down . . . The earth is extra bright . . . The field and highway, house and barn . . . Look beautiful and grand . . . And villages and city streets . . . Are like a fairyland . . . The snowman smiles invitingly . . . As snowballs fill the air . . . And youngsters swiftly slide on sleds . . . Without a single care . . . It is a pretty sight to see . . . And one to contemplate . . . Especially in later years . . . When it is getting late . . . Because when snowflakes leave the sky . . . They move in harmony . . . And they appear as pure and white . . . As every soul should be.
